'He kept on clicking the pistol'

"I had just got in the car and could smell the fight. His car drove up a little ahead of our car. I rolled the window down and said, 'What do you want?'

"He stuck a gun down in the open window and said: 'This is what I want.' I did.

"I fired."

This was the testimony of Miss Edria Smith, 22, 3000 block Brighton St., who appeared Wednesday in Northwestern Police Court wearing a close-fitting green top coat with a white fur collar.

Charged with possession of a .32 caliber revolver, discharging the weapon within city limits and with shooting Miss Smith with intent to kill her, Ernest J. Padgett, 34, 2600 block N. Mosher St., was released on $3,000 bail for grand jury action.

ACCORDING to the police, about 9:30 a.m. October 22, while Miss Smith was seated in a parked car in front of her home in the 3000 block Brighton St., in company with Harry Evans, 29, 2500 block E. Biddle St., a black car pulled in front of them.

The police release points out that Mr. Padgett, until about two weeks ago a friend of Miss Smith's, then got out of the car he was in, walked to the couple and ordered Miss Smith to "get out of there."

The shooting took place, police report, when Mr. Evans replied: "She doesn't have to get out of here."

Treated for a gunshot at Lutheran Hospital, an X-Ray disclosed that Miss Smith has a slug in the area of the pelvis.

Mr. Evans testified:

"He fired two times before I moved. He fired, went behind her. One went in the window. The gun misfired. I pulled off. He held on clicking the pistol."

Michael Friedman, counsel for Padgett, asked Miss Smith if the gun went off by accident. She replied:

"I don't think it went off by accident. He was holding onto the car. I know a shot was fired before we pulled off."

Mr. Padgett, a ten-year employee of the telephone company, appearing in court neatly dressed in a light brown herringbone suit, white shirt and bow tie, did not testify.

2 years in slaying

A 20-year-old man, Lucius Myrick Jr., 1600 block E. Pratt St., was sentenced to two years in the Maryland Penitentiary for manslaughter by Judge James K. Cullen Tuesday morning.

Judge Cullen on Monday found Mr. Myrick guilty in connection with the death of Lynn E. Fourpaugh, 38, on July 26.

Holdups-yes assault-no

"I'm willing to plead guilty to holdup but not to assault. At no time did anybody try to stop me from taking their money."

"I didn't hurt anybody."

Unshaven and unpressed, Donald Lee Dobson, 33, 500 block N. Pulaski St., stood in Northeastern Police Court on Tuesday and made this statement as he was charged with seven armed holdups and the theft of an automobile.

Unimpressed by the statement, Magistrate Sidney Schofield ordered the defendant held for action of the grand jury and set bail at $400,000—one of the highest bails ever imposed in a police court.

THE MAGISTRATE set the same bail for Dobson's alleged accomplice, James T. Hall, 30, 200 block E. Lafayette Ave., charged with six holdups, one shooting and the theft of an automobile.

Bail of $100,000 was set for Phillip R. Rice, 39, 1200 block Laurens St., who was charged with being an accessory before and after the fact of a tavern holdup on Oct. 26.

Appearing against the men was a string of witnesses who filled the courtroom and whose testimony wove a story of violence, holdups, rifles, pistols and robbery that covered a few months period.

DODSON WAS arrested in the Northwestern District on Friday on a charge of assaulting Miss Frances S. Weeder.

Taken to the Northwestern Police Court Dobson was fined $75 which was $15 more than he had. Before the extra money could be raised he was taken into custody by detectives who began putting together his alleged role in the series of holdups.

At the hearing on Tuesday in Northeastern, Dobson and Hall were charged with holdups in September and October at taverns, sandwich shops, grocery stores, liquor stores and a drugstore.

The shooting charge was placed against Hall as he rolled out of a holdup in a grocery store in the 700 block Aisquith St. on Sept. 13, when Ernest Cureton, 800 block Aisquith St., was wounded when a woman patron attempted to grab the gun held by Hall, it was testified.

THE CAR theft charge involved the theft of a vehicle from a parking lot where Dobson was employed. Police said he was arrested in the holdup of a Harford Rd. sandwich shop on Oct. 19 but when the men attempted to flee they dropped the key and were forced to leave the car which police later found.

According to police a sawed off shotgun with a sling so the weapon could be carried beneath a coat, a pistol and ammunition were found in the Rice's home.

They also reported that Hall and Dobson had stored their weapons at Rice's home where they also changed their clothes before and after robberies.

More than $1,800 was taken in the holdups, police said. It was also noted that Rice had been released from the Maryland Penitentiary many years after being sentenced to a ten year term for armed robbery.

'Right now I'm a little confused'

"Right now I'm a little confused. I'd rather talk to someone before I enter a plea." — Donald J. Smith, 29, 800 block W. Saratoga St., says.

'Maybe he was mad about gambling'

"Why do you think Clayton would charge you with an offense like this if it wasn't true?

"I don't know. Maybe he was mad about the gambling."

Norman Polski, assistant State's attorney, received this answer to his question in Criminal Court Tuesday from Alphonse Lee, 22, 100 block S. Bond St.

Mr. Lee, accused of robbing Joseph Clayton, 63, of $1.20 on October 5, and carrying a switch blade knife, was sentenced to a total of seven years in the House of Correction by Judge L. Carter.

MAINTAINING innocence of the robbery charge for which he received five years, Mr. Lee said:

"I met Clayton at Pratt and Bethel Sts. We had a few drinks. We got in an argument over some money involved in gambling (a dice game) earlier in the day. We got into a fight."

Mr. Clayton, until block 5, Bethel St., who said he has known the defendant for some time, testified that he was at Pratt and Bethel when Mr. Lee "slapped me in the face and took my little change from me." He said the man threatened him with a knife.

The prosecutor cited Mr. Lee's criminal record which showed the defendant received a one-year sentence in 1953 for robbery and the following year a 10-year sentence for robbing Mrs. Margaret Small of the 500 block N. Paca St., up a flight of stairs. Mrs. Belinda Chaney, of the 500 block N. Paca St., was fined $50 for assisting the robbery.

Witnesses said the two women struggled following the robbery and payment of a $100 loan.

THE FOLLOWING CASES were disposed of Wednesday in Northwestern Police Court:

Leroy Brown, 26, 2500 block Calvertor Hgts., was found not guilty and dismissed on a disorderly conduct. Charge, provided by Det. Sgt. George Andrews testified that the young man had driven on the wrong side of the street at 3 a.m. that morning and when questioned about it, "acted like he was drunk."

"I hate to see him lose his job," the officer said in the defendant's behalf.

EDWARD LEE ASH, 22, 1600 block Bakerbury Ct., failure to support his wife and three children, $500 bail, held for grand jury action.

Ray Craighead, 1900 block N. Eutaw St., drunk, $25 fine. Thomas Goode, 400 block Oxford St., disorderly conduct in a bus station, $25 fine, and Willie Frost, 600 block W. Fayette St., disorderly conduct, $25 fine.

Foster McNeil, 28, 1700 block Linden Ave., fined $20 and costs for refusing to pay a cab fare.

Howard Taylor, 22, 2100 block W. North Ave., six month sentence suspended for stealing set of china. Also fined $25 and costs. Bedford Elsey, 21, 100 block N. Aisquith St., 45 days in Baltimore city jail for resisting arrest.

William Miller, 40, no address given, fined $10 and cost for lying in street.

Donald Franklin, 1400 block Fulton Ave., fined $50 and costs for annoying his estranged wife, Mrs. Louise Franklin.

Avon Molden, 24, 2200 block Brook Ave., fined $25 and costs for attempting to enter a horse stable.

CLARENCE Jones, 23, 1900 block Lanvale St., fined $25 and costs for attempting break into a stable on Reisterstown Rd.

Calvin Wainright, 20, 2700 block of Edmondson Ave., fined $25 and costs $50 and costs for attempting to break into a stable and for possession of an axe. The stable is located on Reisterstown Rd.

Clifford Ball, 21, 1300 block Carroll-Ave., held in $1,500 bail for the grand jury on charges of assault by threatening a knife. Mrs. Jessie Saff and non-support of his four children.

mont Ave. office of James L. Bundy, his lawyer in the divorce action.

MR. BUNDY explained: "I was representing him in the divorce case. I had asked him to bring in a witness. He had just sat down when suddenly he clutched at his chest.

"Within moments, he slumped in the chair. When the ambulance arrived, he was apparently dead."

Mr. Bundy added: "Ford objected to paying his wife anything. They had been separated 18 years, and he said she had deserted him. Actually his wife is better off with her share of the estate, than she would be under the divorce agreement."

At the time the divorce was filed in July, Mr. Ford stated that he and his wife married January 15, 1913, but separated in 1938 and had not lived together since.

MRS. FORD did not protest the divorce but asked the court to set support money for her saying she was without funds and physically unable to work.

She contended that Mr. Ford earned $75 a week and asked for $75 attorney's fees and $35 a week support. When Mr. Ford protested he made only $25 a week, the court awarded Mrs. Ford $15 per week, temporary alimony and $25 for her attorney, pending the final divorce.

Since his death, an inventory of his estate now shows that Mr. Ford had $4,500 cash in a local savings bank; that he owned a 1949 truck valued at $200 and owns the house at 1000 and 1007 S. Eutaw St., valued at approximately $2,600.

Mr. Hayes has been named administrator of the estate. He has posted $4,500 bond.

MRS. FORD, who makes her home at the Laurens St., address with her son, Arthur, his wife, Florence and a grandchild, is the AFRO "I saw him the Friday before he died at the hearing.

"I told him to give me what he wanted. I haven't been well and I had no money. I didn't desert him. He left me."

The other Ford sons are Henry of 2007 Denison St.; Herbert, 1356 N. Stricker St.; Abraham, 420 Laurens, all of Baltimore; and Benjamin F., Blackstone, Va.

haven't asked about their father."

Married more than two years, Anderson Lee Best was arrested at his home in the 2400 block S. Paca St., the day after Shirley Blocker, 16, was found dead in her home.

The young Cherry Hill High School pupil was baby-sitting for the accused man's two children and his wife was awaiting his appearance in court to answer charges of non-support the day of the slaying.

The girl had been raped and then stabbed to death.

Her nude body was found on a stairway last October 4th by her father Howard Blocker.

"The constable from People's Court was moving his stuff out when he came across it." The defendant's furnishings were being moved out of his apartment because of his eviction for non-payment of rent, officers said.

In Northwestern Police Court Tuesday morning, that's what police said about a 35-year-old caddy who was charged with writing numbers.

Charles H. Medley of the 1400 block McCulloh St., denied that the equipment was his, police said, but declared that he stopped writing numbers in 1952.

MR. MEDLEY surrendered to police at Northwestern on Monday.

The arresting officers testified that they were called to the apartment on October 23 when the betting equipment was discovered by Constable John Luciano.

Ordered held in bail of $2,500 for the grand jury, the gray-haired defendant entered a plea of not guilty.

'I never touched you, salesman's plea

Why didn't you tell the man the truth, I never touched you. I never laid a hand on you!"

These angry words tumbled from Jerry Wolfe, 22, 3100 block Bancroft Rd., blond salesman for a shoe and clothing store in the 500 block N. Gay St., Wednesday at Northwestern Police Court.

The young man was held for grand jury action without bail on a charge of raping a 20-year-old resident of the 3400 block W. North Ave. on October 14.

A $250 bail was set on a second charge of striking Miss Alston on October 19.

THE COMPLAINANT told police that she and her friend, a 41-year-old man have had business with the store for a long time, and that it happened he was carried on through the salesman, Mr. Wolfe, who occasionally takes customers in his automobile to the store to make selections.

According to the police, Mr. Wolfe called at the North Ave. address on October 14 about 6 p.m. to take an order from the young woman. However, she told him to return later because she needed money and her friend was not there.

Police report that about 7:30 p.m., Mr. Wolfe returned and following a conversation, they decided that the young woman would go with him to the store to select a coat and other wearing apparel.

After they reached the store
