Girl Friends' 25th year to begin at Me-De-Sos
with Lula Jones Garrett

By SHIRLEY KYLE
(Substituting for Mrs. Patterson who is on vacation)

The Girl Friends are opening their 25th annual program with a gala "Good Neighbor" party at the Me-De-So, Saturday. First thing on the agenda will be a noon cocktail hour.

Charter members from New Jersey, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Brooklyn, Newport News and Richmond will also be on hand for the festivities.

Catherine Law and Georgia Chester are making the plans for the event. Agnes Patterson is president and Vera Williams is vice president.

'TWAS QUITE a family reunion at the W. A. C. Hughes Jr.'s Arunah Ave. home, Saturday, when 60 relatives from thereabout gathered to celebrate the 80th birthday of his mother, the senior Mrs. Mary Butler Hughes (she's the widow of the late Bishop W. A. C. Hughes).

Amid the singing and piano playing, the family dined on chicken croquettes, peas, tossed salad, ice cream and, of course, the birthday cake.

Gifts included everything from handkerchiefs and gloves, to candy and perfume.

Assisting the hosts were Mesdames Paten Higgenbotham (Gwendolyn) and Ernest Martien (Bernice), both of Bluefield, W. Va., and Mrs. Alphonso Williams (Elaine) of Washington. All are sisters of W. A. C. Hughes Jr., attorney.

And here's more family news. Miriam Ray Nicholas, daughter of the Uthman Ray Srs., was graduated from the Rosewood School of Practical Nursing, recently.

Miriam is the wife of Lester Nicholas, local teacher.

Members of Sharp St. Memorial Methodist Church will participate in a Family Reunion and Friendship Night, Sunday, at the church. Guest speaker will be the Rev. Julius Johnson, director of education, of the Tennessee Conference of the Methodist Church.

PARTY PRATTLE—One of the cutest Halloween parties of the season was the one led by the 3-4 age group of the Jacks and Jills in Mildred Taylor's club cellar Sunday.

The small fry had fun watching movies and playing games, planned by the committee, Vivian Washington, Mildred Taylor and Merita Stokes. Ruth Jennifer is chairman of this age group.

Among the youngsters present were: Sharon Robinson, Mark Carter, John Stokes, Miriam Brown, Sharon and Warren Joyner, Karen Willis, Rudolph and Theresa Redd, Errol Taylor, Ellen Peck;;

Anita Mason, Elizabeth Julian, Raymond and Ralph Parker, Valdemar Washington, Patricia Davidson and Clinton Jennifer.

Mothers about were: Kay Carter, Dorothy Brown, Merita Stokes, Vashti Joyner, Carolyn Willis, Mary Lou Redd, Bertha Peck, Genevieve Mason, Rosearl Julian, Elois Parker and Edith Davidson.

In November, the kiddies will attend a story hour at the main branch of the Enoch Pratt Library.

THE BLUE Room of the York Hotel was the scene of another Halloween Party given by the Marcatos Club, Friday. Guests danced and dined from 10 'til 2.

Club members include Mesdames Mae Locks, president; Edythe Chatman, Ruth Davis, Morpheka Winston, Violet Ford, Louise Madden, Sula Carroll, Helen Lewis and Miss Hazel Gray.

Hodge-Podge

By ROBERT MATTHEWS

If children go to school, they eventually learn to read. In the process, they also learn to write. This is a good thing.

Around Madhouse Menagerie Number One Son and Daughter have reached that "avid reader" stage. It's got to the point that I have to hide all my books and Magazines if I wan to read them first.

Worst of all — they have reached the "clip out the coupon and send it in" stage.

ALMOST EVERY DAY now the mailbox is loaded with a varied assortment of things those two have sent away for.

Fortunately, most of them are educational — books and pamphlets on "Our Natural Forests," pamphlets and sticker stamps an birdwatching, various kinds of maps, etc.

Haven't complained too strenuously about this developing mania for clipping out the coupons, for I firmly believe the more interests a child develops, the more rounded he is as an adult.

That is, this was my theory until this week.

THE OTHER day, I noticed Numbed One daughter lingering around the front porch at just about the time the mailman usually shows up.

Didn't attach any particular significance to it, for the kids delight in removing the mail from the box and bringing it to either Wife or me.

Remembered that this daughter had joined the AFRO Junior Page Pen Pal club and had been receiving letters from kids all over the world, so I merely thought she was anxious to find out what letters she would get.

Then the mailman arrived. Oh yes, he had some mail for Number One daughter, all right—only thing wrong was, this one wasn't a free sample —It came collect.

There is now a new rule at the Menagerie—No coupons can be sent in until ol' Hodge gets a look at them first. Egad! Those kids might send away for an elephant.

THESE ARE THE CHAMPS: Runners up in the baby contest sponsored by the Laymens League of Bethel AME Church are, from left: Carmelita Hayes, 6 months, daughter of Mrs. Carol Hayes, 3114 Pressstman St.; Norma Middleton, 5 months, daughter of Mrs. Esther Middleton, 533 W. Lafayette Ave., and Karen Payne, one year, daughter of Mrs. Louise Payne, 1134 Myrtle Ave.

Citizens' Committee soiree draws suavest of citizens

By LULA JONES GARRETT

Most suave of the flock of soiree parties that clustered on the brim of last week was that soiree at the Citizens' Committee garnered 368 smartly dressed women at the Madison Avenue branch YWCA, Sunday afternoon.

I can't recall the auditorium of the Y being so decorative . . . with the flossy hats, the chic frocks the shower of furs that were perched about the elaborately decorated tables that featured the affair.

IN ADDITION to the guests and their own private showing of fashions, Pauline Brooks, Hendin and Valentine put on three fashion shows that left one actually breathless. And the guests were reserving the clothes right off the models' backs.

Someone sent a mole and sneaked a little brown, mink-trimmed suit from Pauline's collection, right from under my nose . . . while I was writing little notes about the other items. Was I picked!

And Valentine showed, among other things, a black and white evening frock from a favorite California designer with black pouffs at the back, and side treatments in the same black that I understood the commentator to call the "cat" frock. Well, I'm not sure of that name, but Oh Baby, it will certainly be a sure trap for some mouse!

But there was a lot of by-olay that I didn't get. Pearl Dyson, Valentine ace, was modeling Brooks clothes . . . and Valentine has another commentator, Gwendolyn Conoway.

HENDIN LET it be known in no uncertain terms that there would be no trifling with his star model, beautiful Marian Selby.

He has, he said, her under contract until 1960. And I don't blame him. For what Miss Selby does for clothes! And what clothes Hendin had Sunday for her to do things for!

Included was a black and white evening ensemble, the white satin gown fitted to a breath, the black, white satin lined cape something to dream about.

THE TABLE settings were perfectly beautiful. Lillian Lawrence took fourth prize for her table's decor, whose chief motif was tropical fruits, from nomegranites to avacados, artistically arranged in a pumpkin shell. She served a tronical drink from a huge crystal bowl.

Third prize went to Gwendolyn Lewis. Her table was laid with a handmade lace cloth over moss rose, and decored with red poms and roses. Her service was of ruby glass and sterling and to her punch, heavy with starwberries, went along with ices, cakes, and the cutest hand-turned corucula hors d'oeuvres.

Second honors were taken by Lois Carter. A hand painted punch bowl centered her table . . . otherwise white. The bowl was painted in a design of many colored grapes, and filled with grapes to match these painted on the bowl.

The Gay Northeasterners' table, arranged by Bernice Monroe, took first prize. They used a color scheme of white, green and silver. Magnificent silver services at table ends dispensed coffee and tea. In the center a tall arrangement of magnolia leaves, great white chrysanthemums and queens lace was accentuated with a porcelain madonna.

The Citizens' Committee, which sponsored the soiree, includes:

Mesdames Sadie Murphy and Catherine Adams, co-chairmen; Mae Adams, Mahalia Blair, Pauline Brooks, Virgina L. Brown, Lois Carter, Annie B. Drayton.

Mesdames Olivia Dixon, Ruth Glenn, Bessie Henry, Elsie Hunt, Trella Jefferson, Lillian Lawrence, Gwendolyn Lewis, Enolia McMillan, Mildred McLean, Bernice Monroe, Patricia Page;

Mrs. Lelia Powell, Misses Rita Soden, Alice Stewart, Jessie Richardson, Maizie Barbour and Rose M. Davis.

Mrs. Edna O. Gray who mistress of ceremonies . . . and a chief thumb in the whole pie was, of course, Executive Director E. Estelle Thomas.
