Words to Live by

By ROBERT T. NEWBOLD

There was a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit in Buffalo last week. It was inspiring to witness. It was thrilling to observe. The occasion was an evangelistic visitation mission. Over 1,200 laymen gave time on four evenings to present in person-to-person interviews the good news that in Christ there is deliverance from sin and salvation from evil.

* * *

"WHAT WERE the results?" you ask. Simply these: Almost 3,400 calls were made, 5,980 individuals were interviewed and 1,262 persons made decisions for Christ. All of this occurred, mind you, in two nights.

The challenging facts behind these figures deserve consideration.

In the first place, the mission would not have been possible had not laymen been willing to spend time witnessing for Christ. The history of the church attests to the fact that great things happen when laymen become concerned. This fact cannot be ignored.

It should therefore be clear that the progress of the church depends upon laymen and not merely upon ministers. The call to witness for Christ is not a peculiar function of the clergy—it is the task of all Christians.

* * *

THE SECOND interesting fact is that over 1,200 laymen prayed for the success of the mission. This is exactly what happened before the Day of Pentecost. It can happen again. It did in Buffalo. And behold the results!

One can safely judge from this that if the Church is not effective today as it should be, part of the reason is because laymen are not praying as they should. Neglect prayer and you neglect the heartline of the church.

The third interesting fact is that the laymen represented many denominations. Much of the spiritual impact made upon Buffalo in the mission was due to the fact that it was not sponsored by one, but many denominations.

Denominations are important. They have made important contributions in the history of the Church. But interdenominational efforts are inspiring. They indicate and emphasize the oneness of the church.

* * *

MORE OF these efforts are needed. Moreover, they always redound to the glory and honor of God rather than to a particular church or denomination.

What happened in Buffalo can happen in every city. It will only happen, however, if laymen are willing to give more of their time to witness for Christ, to pray, and take part in interdenominational ventures.

They're Everybody's PRESIDENT and VICE-PRESIDENT

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Matt Henson, the late Matt Henson, and Carl Murphy, publisher of the Afro-American Newspapers, during a White House visit. Mr. Henson and Admiral Robert Edwin Perry were the first men to reach the North Pole in 1909. (Abbie Rowe)

President Eisenhower is the only Chief Executive who entertained within 12 months at the White House three chiefs of state of Negro-governed countries. Above, he and Mrs. Eisenhower are shown at a social affair with President Paul Magloire and Mrs. Magloire of Haiti. Others entertained at the White House were Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President W. V. S. Tubman of Liberia. (Abbie Rowe)

The President extends congratulations to John Edmunds, elected "Railroad Man of the Year," and Mrs. Edmunds, during a visit to the White House. (Reni)

Himself a deeply religious man, the President was especially pleased by the visit of a delegation of ministers from all sections of the country, representing many denominations. The group met with him at the White House to congratulate him on his forthright stand on desegregating Washington, D. C.

Eartha Kitt, world-famous star of stage, screen, radio, and television, is an interested listener as Vice-President Richard M. Nixon explains the operation of his job and the U.S. Senate, over which he presides. Miss Kitt, a friend, visited him in his office. (Cabell)

The Vice-President enjoys an informal moment with the nationally known Billy Williams Quartet, popular recording and TV aggregation. Mr. Williams is second from the right in the group. (Ken Scarpino)

A few of the discerning Democrats who supported Stevenson in 1952, but who have wisely switched to Eisenhower in 1956. They are supporting President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon because they are a team fighting for Civil Rights and Equal Opportunity.
