County for bond issue

Baltimore County's sprawling north central area faces chaotic schoolbound conditions, depending upon the fate of two issue questions that will appear on the November 6 ballot, according to a school spokesman.

Seriously overburdened public schools have the City line to the Pennsylvania border, stretching from Halethorpe town on the west to Parkville on the east, school officials said.

In the county's north central area that would be affected include elementary schools at Halethorpe, Towson, Sudbrook, Stoneleigh, Towson Elementary, Towson Junior High, Towson Senior High, Franklin, Fifth District, Sixth District and Seventh District.

Towson Junior and Senior High, Dundalk Junior and Senior High, Dundalk Junior-Senior, Franklin Junior-Senior and Deerfield Junior-Senior.

IN EXPLAINING why a bond issue defeat would affect these facilities a school spokesman declared that if schools never built in the county's newer communities, the children from these homes would have to be transported to vacate facilities in the county's older communities in the county's older communities. On Nov. 6, county residents will have two questions, each of which calls for expenditure totaling $18,250,000.

Don't tug these alibis, they didn't work the first time

They say that it takes all types of people to make the world. Unfortunately some fellows have to drive over the bumps.

Proof of this sham is the alibis they offer when they are caught in the act.

The operator of this sham was an Arizona man, who had his car stolen while he was out of town. He said he had hooked his rear bumper to the back of his car.
