cipline and their application to the form and manner of notifying a preacher of his removal from his conference."

The judge expressed the hope that the present decree would prove satisfactory to both parties and end the case.

He pointed out that further litigation would "necessitate specific references to and expressions of opinion on the credibility of the witnesses, most of whom are clergymen and some of whom are bishops."

The court order, dated Aug. 15, said in part:

"IT IS ORDERED, adjudged and decreed that the presiding bishop of the First Episcopal District of the AME Church and his successors in office and all persons acting under his or their direction or authority

"Be and they are specifically enjoined from interfering with plaintiff, The Rev. William P. Stevenson, in the exercise of the rights and privileges of an elder in good standing in the Philadelphia Annual Conference of the First Episcopal District of the AME Church.

"That the presiding bishop of the First Episcopal District of the AME Church shall take immediate and appropriate action to restore to plaintiff all of the rights and privileges of an elder within the AME Church.—

"AND THAT the presiding bishop—shall forthwith assign plaintiff to the position of pastor of Bethel AME Church, Bryn Mawr, Pa., or to another church similar in character and size within the bounds of the Philadelphia Annual Conference."

The Rev. Mr. Stevenson was represented in this case by Leslie P. Hill Jr. Attorneys for Bishop Nichols were Lewis T. Moore, a former assistant district attorney and James C. Lightfoot.

MRS. BESSIE ADAMS

"Colored and white children have been playing on the school yard all summer long and when the buses come to take the children swimming at Patterson Park they all go together.

The area in which the colored residents live is composed of neat detached homes and is situtated in the center of an otherwise all white neighborhood.

ACCORDING TO KEISBY Clayton, 7406 Linden Ave., the area has never had any interracial incidents.

"I feel that it was some adult behind the cross burning because the sticks were too large to be handled by a child.

"Everything is peaceful here, and we've never had any trouble," said JJames Jackson, 7410 Linden Ave.

"I think its just the prank of some kids," said John Malth Jr. 7401 Linden Ave. "My two boys have been playing and swimming with the white children all summer long."

Fulleton police said on Thursday that they were still conducting an investigation but had no clues as to the identity of the person or persons who set the crossed sticks on fire.

"An official of the FBI told the AFRO, late Thursday that they will not investigate the matter unless "additional facts develop within our jurisdiction."

The burning of the two crossed sticks is believed to have been the first in Maryland since 1940 when several were set afire in Baltimore.

of which Mr. Nixon is chairman.

He said he knew of his own knowledge that Mr. Nixon believes that "this country can not afford the luxury of prejudice and realizes that there is no such thing as a second class citizen."

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER was nominated unanimously on the first ballot, Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr. insisting on a roll call and tally of the votes of all the states.

Mr. Nixon also was nominated on the first ballot, with one lone dissenting vote, which later was changed to make the vote unanimous. Terry Carpenter of Nebraska, ex-Democrat, dissented to test the "open convention" claim of the GOP.

President Eisenhower was nominated by Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, while Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts nominated Mr. Nixon after Harold Stassen's attempt to "dump" him collapsed.

MR. STASSEN joined the parade of seconds for Mr. Nixon, promised his support to the Eisenhower team, but warned the GOP that he is determined to remain in the party but will press for the right to disagree.

Before the nominating session began there had been talk of the North Carolina delegation's walking out of the convention when Dr. Edmonds was recognized to second Mr. Eisenhower's nomination.

But the walkout did not take place.

There also was some muttering among colored delegates because a northerner was not chosen for the honor of seconding the nomination of the Chief Executive.

On the previous day two colored women took part in a dramatic presentation, "The Women Speak," at the Tuesday session of the convention.

They are Mrs. Mason Higgins of Chicago and Mrs. Barrington Parker of Washington. They were among 15 women who spelled out in about 20 minutes a capsule account of the record of the Eisenhower administration.

USING EACH LETTER in the words, "Republican Women," the women speakers pointed up specific accomplishments of the administration. As each woman spoke an usherette raised a placard indicating the phase of the administration record being discussed.

Two of the usherettes were Misses Patricia Spaulding of Durham, N.C., and Beverly Blagburn of San Francisco. Miss Bertha S. Adkins, assistant to Leonard W. Hall, Republican national chairman, initiated the program.

"We are here to tell why we voted for Eisenhower in 1952 and why even more of us will vote for Eisenhower in 1956," Miss Adkins said.

The speech of Mrs. Parker follows:

"UNITY—THE ONENESS of our people; that is power. The unity that under this administration does not separate us into the East nor West, North nor South, that does not divide us into classes, religion, races or regions; the unity shown by this administration in regarding us all as citizens equal before the law, before men and before God."

The speech of Mrs. Higgins:

"Opportunity — It is a good word! For it means both today and tomorrow, the present and the future. It means open doors and happy people. It's what President Eisghnower and the Republican party mean to all Americans.

"I've noticed something. The Democrats talk opportunity for everybody but the Republicans give it. The Democrats talk about the 'little fellow' but the Republicans make him big. The Republicans give us a job."

All members of the Cabinet, except Secretary of State John F. Dulles, who was in London at the Suez conference, took part in the program of the Tuesday session. Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. represented Mr. Dulles.

PERRY W. HOWARD, whose faction won eight of the 15 seats of the Mississippi delegation, headed the group as national committeeman. Mr. Howard called the delegation's meetings and cast the state's 15 votes for Eisenhower and Nixon during the balloting.

However, there was division in the Mississippi delegation as the lily-white group of seven sat on one side of the hall and Mr. Howard's group on the other.

E. O. Spencer, who headed the lily-white delegation, said the separate seating had nothing to do with color. "We just don't want to sit with them," he added.

Ike, Dick refer to rights in acceptance speeches

SAN FRANCISCO — Both President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon Thursday night made reference to civil rights in their respective addresses accepting GOP nominations, tioners and the radio and television audience.

"ONE HUNDRED years ago the Republican Party was created in a devout belief in equal justice and equal opportunity for all in a nation of free men and women.

"What is more, the Republican Party's record on social justice rests, not on words and promises, but on accomplishment.

"The record shows that a wide range of quietly effective actions, conceived in understanding and good will for all, has brought about more genuine—and voluntary — progress toward equal justice and opportunity in the last three years than was achieved in all the previous 20 put together.

"Elimination of various kinds of discrimination in the armed services, the District of Columbia, and among the employees of Government contractors provides specific examples of this progress.

In accepting the Vice Presidential nomination, Mr. Nixon made reference to civil rights in saying:

"Every American family should have the opportunity to obtain a good income and to feel secure about his future.

He was cheered as he declared the farmer "would beprovided with his fair share of the national income. We did not create this problem, but we (the Republican Party) are determined to solve it."

"GREAT PROGRESS has been made in recent years in seeing that prosperity was fully shared by the 17,000,000 colored Americans.

"We will not rest secure until every colored American has proper housing, decent medical care, better educational opportunities and ulnimited chance for employment according to his ability.

"Here we do not offer promise; we can show performance."

-Plane loses

assist us, but it was not needed."

Examining his pocket New Testament afterwards, Mr. Frisby said he found he had torn the cover off.

As soon as Mr. Frisby arrived here, he got a hair cut. The next day, he found himself in another barber chair actually getting another hair cut.

In his excitement, he had forgotten about the one of the previous day. Now his scalp is on free exhibition.

"The armed service officers and men have been wonderful," he added. "No dull moments on this trip."

Mr. Frisby leaves here, Aug. 26, by way of Seattle, Portland, St. Paul and Chicago.

He arrives on the Capitol limited at Mt Royal Station, Baltimore, on Sept. 3.

MR. FRISBY mailed 2,000 cards bearing a "North Pole" postmark to friends in the United States commemorating his flight. A three-cent Booker T. Washington Centennial stamp was affixed to each card.

Along with other information, the printed card quoted the July 17, 1926 issue of Liberty Magazine, which said:

"Few people realize that Matt Henson, Peary's Negro assistant, was actually the first man to reach the Pole. Henson, the trailbreaker during the last lap of the expedition, was there 45 minutes ahead of Peary."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Cecil D. Halliburton, registrar and director of admissions at Fisk University, collapsed on the campus Thursday afternoon and died an hour later in Hubbard Hospital, apparently of a heart attack.

Game costs youth's life

EASTON, Md. — A 24-year-old Korean veteran, who police said was "apparently engaged in a game of Russian Roulette," shot himself to death at 1:30 this morning (Tuesday).

Leonard Brooks, 400 block South St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Easton Memorial Hospital. He died of a bullet wound of the right temple.

Police at first believed he had used a 12-guage shot gun, but upon further investigation, learned he had used a .32 calibre Henkin Richerson revolver.

It is reported that the fatal shooting occurred in the 100 block Port St., where Brooks is said to have taken his life in the presence of three persons.

Brooks, a shipping clerk, was single and lived with his mother, Mrs. Amie Brooks.
