Marinate with spices puts zip in ordinary veal roast

Marinades and long cooking dishes are usually seasoned best by whole (as against ground) spices. Did you ever wonder why? The answer is it is better to let the heat and time do the extracting of the flavor, instead of grinding. The heat and marinating will draw the flavor out of the whole spices slowly and when finished the food will be thoroughly saturated.

THIS SPECIAL VALUE of whole spices was the reason for development of the blend we call mixed pickling spice. As the name implies, this blend of as many as 16 whole spices, was designed for pickling. But when the proper use of whole spices is understood, mixed pickling spice becomes a mixture with many possibilities.

Stews and many soups can be flavored very effectively with mixed pickling spice. All sorts of meat and fish marinades offer especially good opportunities for this blend. In the following recipes, the American Spice Trade Association suggests two different marinade recipes and a quick pickle recipe which should help add variety to your summer fare.

MARINATED VEAL ROAST is made with 10½ ounce can beef bouillon, 1½ tablespoons fresh lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 1 tablespoon whole mixed pickling spice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon crumbled whole sage leaves, ¼ teaspoon crumbled whole marjoram leaves, ¼ teaspoon crumbled whole thyme leaves, 3 pound boneless veal roast, rolled, 2½ tablespoons shortening, 2 medium carrots, peeled and sliced; and 1 medium onion, peeled and sliced.

Combine first 8 ingredients. Heat but do not boil. Place veal in a close-fitting dish. Pour in marinade. Cool. Cover dish and place in refrigerator to marinate a full 24 hours, turning several times. Remove meat from marinade.

Heat shortening in a heavy skillet or Dutch oven. Wipe excess marinade from veal and brown well on all sides. Remove from heat. Add marinade and vegetables. Cover and bake until tender in a preheated slow oven (325 degree F.) 1½ to 2 hours, basting several times. Remove meat to a platter to keep warm.

Strain gravy and thicken, using 1½ tablespoons flour to each cup of strained gravy. Heat to boiling point, stirring constantly. Serve over sliced veal.

Yield: 6 servings.

MARINATED BAKED STUFFED FISH uses 3 to 4 lb. whole fish, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon whole thyme leaves, 1 table spoon whole mixed pickling spice, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon lemon rind, 10½ ounce can beef bouillon, ¼ cup onion flakes, 2 medium carrots, peeled and thinly sliced, and 1 medium onion, peeled and sliced.

Use bass, cod, bluefish, mackerel, whitefish or shad.

Stuffing for Fish requires 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon onion flakes, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper, teaspoon crumbled whole thyme leaves, and 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Have fish cleaned, scaled and ready to stuff. Remove head, tail and backbone, if desired. Combine next 7 ingredients and heat but do not boil. Place fish in a tight-fitting dish. Pour marinade over fish. Cool. Cover tightly with aluminum foil and place in refrigerator to marinate a full 24 hours, turning several times.

Remove fish from marinade. With a paper towel wipe off excess spices. Strain marinade and save liquid. Combine all ingredients for stuffing and spoon into cavity of fish. Close opening.

Place fish in a buttered shallow baking pan. Add carrots and onion. Pour over marinade. Bake, covered, in a preheated (350 degree F.) oven about 1 hour, or until fish is done, basting several times. Season to taste with additional salt and ground black pepper.

YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

HOT SPICED BUTTERED BEETS require 1 pound fresh beets topped (about 10), 1 inch boiling water in saucepan, 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ cup water, and 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon cider vinegar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon whole mixed pickling spice, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Wash beets but do not pare. Cook in a covered saucepan until tender in the 1 inch boiling water and ½ teaspoon of the salt. Drain and peel. Slice thinly. Add remaining ingredients and toss lightly. Serve at once.

Cooking Is Fun

By FANNIEJOE REID

There's a lot more to watermelon than being a summer refresher . . . though the summer delight is par excellence in that role.

An excellent trick is to carry some of watermelon's summer goodness over into the winter season, by the way of preserving.

For instance, I use watermelon rind preserves in many ways to perk up winter meals. The preserves are delicious with French toast or hot rolls, of course, but have you tried them, in thin slivers, over hot cereal?

The preserves are very easy to make First make a regular sugar syrup, adding the rind of one lemon (grated), a stick of cinnamon and a pinch of salt.

Cut the peeled rind of a melon in uniform blocks. Soak in salt water overnight. Measure the rind, using one cup of the rind to a half cup of syrup mixture, and cook until the rind is tender, about two hours. Be sure to remove the foam as it forms on the preserves while cooking.

When tender, place in clean hot jars and seal.

* * *

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND is a delicacy to serve along with your Thanksgiving turkey, Christmas roast or Easter ham.

When preparing the rind for pickling be sure that none of the red is left on the pieces to be used.

Soak in salt and water over night.

Now assemble a half cup of sugar to each cup of rind you have for pickling, six cups of water, an eighth teaspoon of salt, two teaspoons mixed pickle spices, a teaspoon of cloves, a stick of cinnamon, a half cup of vinegar, an eighth teaspoon mace, an eighth teaspoon nutmeg and the juice and grated rind of one lemon.

For this you use the regular sugar and water syrup. Add a pinch of salt. Place melon in a sauce pan, pour over syrup and cook very slowly until completely tender. Let cool and then place in refrigerator until thoroughly chilled.

* * *

HAVE YOU TRIED adding wine to your melon cup?

Put a half cup water, three tablespoons sugar, and an eighth teaspoon of salt in a sauce pan and bring to a boil. Remove from pan and refrigerate until cold. Add wine. Pour over the chunks or balls of melon and return to refrigerator until thoroughly chilled.

GLAZED MELON makes a delicious dessert.

Apricot bread

Sweet bits of flavorful dried apricots throughout corn bread make it unusually good.

Hot breads, like "Apricot Corn Bread," still fill the gaps nicely if the supper menu is a little light.

For Apricot Corn Bread use, 2 eggs, 1½ cups sour milk or buttermilk, 4 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ cups yellow corn meal, ¼ cup sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 cup cooked sweetened dried apricots.

Beat eggs and add milk and butter. Sift together flour, corn meal, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Add to liquid mixture and blend. Stir in apricots. Turn into greased 9-inch square pan. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Cut into squares and serve hot.

'Leans limas

Down New Orleans way, one of the favorite recipes passed from neighbor to neighbor is this one called "Limas, New Orleans."

Hearty large butter beans become extra inviting when served this tantalizing way. Once you've served it to our family and friends, you'll be passing this recipe over the backyard fence to your neighbors, too.

Limas, New Orleans are made with ½ cup chopped bacon, 1 chopped medium-sized onion, 1 chopped green sweet pepper, 1 crushed clove garlic, 1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups cooked California large dry limas, and ¼ cup grated Parmesan Cheese.

Fry bacon until golden. Drain off all but 3 tablespoons fat. Stir in onion, pepper and garlic, and cook until vegetables are limp. Add tomato sauce, salt and drained limas, and simmer 15 minutes.

Date cake

Our update down "Date Coconut Ring Cake" is made with packaged mix and comes out sparkling with a coconut and date topping. Since one recipe will make 2 cakes, you'll be all set for the gang.

DATE COCONUT RING Cake is made with 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine, ½ cup light corn syrup, ½ cup brown sugar (packed), 2 tablespoons hot water, 1 cup chopped coconut, 1 cup chopped fresh California dates, and 1 package yellow cake mix.

Combine butter, corn syrup, brown sugar and water; divide equally between two 9-inch ring molds, or two 8-inch square pans. Sprinkle with coconut and dates. Prepare cake according to package directions and spoon batter over date-coconut mixture.

Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees F) 30 minutes. Turn out immediately. Serve warm or cold.

Makes two 9-inch round, or 8-inch square cakes.

Is Stanley 'Gun Shy' Of School Fund Ban?

RICHMOND — Has the spectre of a governor standing in contempt of a Federal court caused Gov. Thomas B. Stanley to reconsider his plan to be solely responsible for withholding state funds from any integrated school in Virginia.

That is the question that is uppermost in the minds of most Virginians this week in view of official developments around the State Capitol within the past few days.

Mr. Stanley on Wednesday would neither confirm nor deny published reports that he is considering substitute legislation to take the place of that he had promised earlier to seek from the General Assembly to prevent integration in Virginia schools.

One method of doing that would be by amending the budget bill passed in the 1956 session to limit school appropriations to localities which continue segregated schools in defiance of the U.S. Supreme Court decision.

* * *

ANOTHER METHOD calls for enactment of a separate law providing that no appropriation made for operation of schools could be used by any locality that permits children of both races to attend the same schools.

Previously, Governor Stanley had declared publicly that he would ask for laws giving him personal authority to withhold educational funds from any locality which desegregated its schools.

Reports are that some lawyers have suggested that the 140 members of the General Assembly might be much harder to use than the person who serves as the state's chief executive.

* * *

SOME OF these same lawyers have pointed out also that if school funds are withheld because of integration by either the governor or the legislature, such a move would nullify the Gray Commission's pupil assignment plan.

That plan provides for classification of pupils by "any reasonable factor—other than race or color" — and sets up a circuitous procedure for appeals through school boards and all state courts for those objecting to their assignment.

Some state legal officers believe that nullification of the assignment plan by withholding funds would permit plaintiffs to go directly to Federal courts for relief, bypassing appeals to state courts.

* * *

DURING SECRET strategy meetings last week at the mansion Mr. Stanley agreed to drop his opposition to the pupil assignment plan in exchange for support of influential Gray Commission members for his request for power to withhold school funds.

Meanwhile Federal Judge John Paul has ordered school officials in Charlottesville to begin integration in public schools in that city when school opened in September.

Later, Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan issued an injunction against Arlington County school authorities barring continuation of segregation in elementary schools after next January and in high schools after September 1957.

His Gift To World

By RUTH JENKINS

J. Rosamond Johnson, who wrote the music for the Negro National Anthem "Lift Every Voice and Sing," was born on August 11, 1873.

Had he lived to celebrate his 83rd birthday anniversary, August 11, 1956, he would have seen his famous composition become public domain —that is, become a gift to the world.

Under the copyright laws, a composer's work is protected for 56 years.

During that period, he (or his legal agents) collects royalties and is guaranteed the exclusive right to publish or sell his musical production.

* * *

HE IS thus protected against having someone else appropriate his work and commercialize it for his own benefit.

A copyright is granted for a term of 28 years, and it may be renewed one year before its expiration date for an additional 28 years. But after these 56 years, all protection is withdrawn.

"Lift Every Voice And Sing" was first copyrighted in 1900 by Joseph W. Stern and Co. In 1927, the copyright was reissued by Edward B. Marks Music Co.

In 1932, the copyright was assigned to the Edward B. Marks Music Corporation. The latest band arrangement by Robert Cray was copyrighted in 1947.

Since the anthem was first copyrighted in 1900, the year 1956 sees the copyright protections now withdrawn.

The significance of this year as related to the Negro National Anthem was pointed out by music-minded William Dill of 749 S. 19th St., Philadelphia, an employee of a music publishing company.

A representative of the J. W. Pepper and Son, Inc., Mr. Dill is a musician himself, being quite adept with the trumpet and drums.

HE WAS personally associated with J. Rosamond Johnson, having met the musician-composer in 1946 in the office of W. C. Handy. They corresponded often until Mr. Johnson's death.

In his position with the music publishing concern, Mr. Dill is well known for his compilation of selected band compositions by colored composers.

Mr. Dill points out that few composers outlive the copyright on their works, due to the fact that they are usually up in age when they write the music.

One such fortunate composer was Jan Sebilius, responsible for the Finnish "Finlandia."

J. Rosamond collaborated on the Negro National Anthem with his equally famous brother, James Weldon Johnson who wrote the lyrics.
