Shields, Colts end, views leg injury with optimism

The exhibition football game between the Baltimore Colts and Philadelphia Eagles, to be played tomorrow (Saturday) night at Hershey, Pa., will be broadcast in this city.

Faced with the prospect of having his leg pinned down in an immovable cast for the next three weeks, Burrell Shields, Baltimore Colts offensive end, was in a philosophical mood when interviewed by the AFRO Thursday morning.

Shields is confined at Johns Hopkins Hospital following an operation on his left knee, injured in Monday night's intra-squad game at Memorial Stadium.

He is not expected to be available for the Colts for about six weeks.

• • •

"IT WAS a torn ligament," Shields described the injury, "which the doctors had to sew up.

"Up to now (48 hours after the operation) there hasn't been any aftermath. I'm not in pain and the doc tells me I should be able to count on full use of the leg in about six weeks," the big fellow continued.

"So I guess things could be a lot worse."

• • •

SHIELDS explained that he was hurt on being tackled after taking a flat pass from quarterback John Unitas.

"I had moved out to the right flat," Burrell said, "and had to cut back for a pass over my left shoulder.

"The moment I caught the ball, I was tackled. With my leg held tightly against the other fellow's body, the knee couldn't give as it would normally do. The ligament was stretched and torn as a result."

• • •

SHIELDS expressed satisfaction with being shifted from the halfback position he had essayed in his first two years in the pro league. He played end through his high school days and for three years in college and, in his own words, the change needed only for him to "readjust" himself.

The doctors feel that, despite the tricky knee injuries sometimes play with athletes, Burrell's youth will be to his advantage.

• • •

TWENTY-SIX, Shields is married and has a son, Burrel Jr., two years of age. His family is in Cleveland.

A crowd of 38,447 saw the Blues and Whites battle to a 20-20 tie in the annual game for the benefit of Baltimore Police Boys clubs.

Five colored players participated: Shields and defensive safety Jesse Thomas with the Whites; halfbacks Hurdy Young and Gene Hendrix and fullback Bob Hill with the Blues.

Isaac Murphy figures to make jocks' Hall of Fame

BALTIMORE — The name of Isaac Murphy looms as a strong possibility to be placed in the Jockeys Hall of Fame at Pimlico Race Course this fall.

Such a prospect came to light with the launching of nationwide voting to select five of America's most famous race riders to the honor roll.

More than 1,200 sportswriters and broadcasters in the 48 states will choose the three from ten noted jockeys prepared by a committee of horse racing veterans and experts.

• • •

THE 32 - MAN Nominating committee placed on the 1956 ballot Murphy, Johnny Adams, Ted Atkinson, Johnny Longden, Ted Sloan, Laverne Fator, Raymond (Sonny) Workman, Walter Miller, Edward (Snapper) Garirson and Mack Garner.

Longden, Atkinson and Adams are still in active competition and the Hall of Fame rules will permit only one of them to be elected this year for a permanent niche in the Pimlico gallery. The other two selected will come from the seven riders of past eras.

ALREADY enshrined are Eddie Arcaro, Earl Sande and the late George (The Iceman) Woolf who were overwhelming choices when the Hall of Fame was originated at Pimlico in 1955.

Huge oil portraits with bronze plaques telling of their saddle feats hang in the 86-year-old Maryland Jockey Club building at Pimlico.

Billy Bell of D.C., the first colored driver to pilot a midget racer in this area, ran into trouble in his first heat when he hit a bad hole on the track knocking the radiator of his mount off.

Ex-Cardozo flash most physical lit

Ed Saunders, 21-year-old former Cardozo High School track star, was selected the "most physically fit" soldier in his reserve officers training corps regiment, last Saturday.

Saunders, a University of Pittsburgh senior, won the honor after a week of drills in a physical exercise test given by his university ROTC corps at Ft. George G. Meade, Md.

THE CADET was selected on the basis of scores compiled in a series of five tests in squat jumps, pull-ups, push-ups, 300-yard dashes and 50-yard dashes. He scored a total of 471 points out a possible 500 to lead his company and the regiment.

Saunders lives with his parents at 1939 14th St., NW. He was a track star on the Cardozo team before graduating in June, 1953. At Pitt, he is a member of the university's nationally famed relay team; anchored by Arnold Sowell.

Calhoun edges Cotton in NYC

NEW YORK — Undefeated Rory Calhoun retained his unblemished record at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night, but he was forced to do it the hard way.

The fast-rising middleweight from Atlanta scored a split decision victory over Charley Cotton, of Toledo. It was Calhoun's 23rd straight victory.

The first and second rounds were fought mostly at close quarters, with Calhoun getting in his best punches with lefts to the head.

Cotton rallied in the third, took the round with solid smashes to the body. He also came off a slow beginning to look stronger at the close of the fourth.

At the outset of the fifth, Chirley staggered his heavily favored rival with a rocking right to the head. Calhoun was the aggressor in the sixth, although Cotton got in some healthy shots.

Rory was warned for hitting low in the seventh. And the remaining three heats were nip and tuck.

9-Girl Tuskegee team may challenge Tennessee

ROGER BAY (center) of Edgewood, fishing in Bush River recently, caught a rockfish bearing a tag number 3354. He had heard of the American Brewery's "Diamond Jim" fishing contest and reported his catch. The tag number was the highest reported that day—and that earned Mr. Bay the lure box shown in the hands of Nick Campofreda, at right. When no higher tag number was reported for the week, Mr. Bay was given, as a weekly prize, the spinnette 'rod-and-reel kit he's examining in the photo. At left is R. Leiter FitzSimons, vice president of the brewery.

PHILADELPHIA — Mildred McDaniel, national high jump champion, heads a team of nine from Tuskegee Institute in the National Women's Track and Field championships at Franklin Field, Saturday, August 18.

The Tuskegee team is coached by Nell Jackson 1956 women's Olympic coach and former national sprint champion. This year she took over as successor to Cleve Abott, long-time Tuskegee coach who died during the winter.

Winner of the Pan-American high jump title at Mexico City a year ago, Miss McDaniel is bidding for a new national record in this event. She is the current holder with a leap of 5 feet 6½ inches made last year in the national championships at Ponca City.

SIX GIRLS will compete for the sprint championships. Charlotte Godden and Mary Harris are in the 50 and 100-meter dashes. Vernell Golden and Freddie Daniel will shoot for honors in the 100 meters. Annie Acoff will concentrate on the 50 meters while Shirley Crowder will go for the 200-meter title as well as the 90-meter hurdles.

From these sprinters Nell Jackson hopes to put together a relay team that can challenge the defending champions from Tennessee State.

Barbara Jacket will try an "iron man" stunt by competing in the shot put, baseball throw and discus. A year ago she placed fifth in the shot put and sixth in the baseball throw.

Maryland angler wins $300 prize in contest

When it comes to fishing Roger Bay, of Edgewood is not only an enthusiast, he's an expert. His tackle collection is worth more than $300, proves that. And now he has a new item to add to that collection, an item of which he's particularly proud, because it proves he's not only expert, but lucky as well.

The new addition to his collection is a spinnette kit—rod, reel and lure box presented to him by Nick Campofreda, public relations director for the American Brewery, as a prize in the Brewery's "Diamond Jim" fishing contest.

• • •

MR. BAY won his prize when he went fishing in Bush River and caught a rockfish bearing Tag No. 3354. Like thousands of other salt water anglers, Mr. Bay was hoping to catch "Diamond Jim", the specially-tagged rockfish for which the brewery is offering a $25,000 cash reward.

Under the rules of the contest, one prize — the lure box is awarded each day for the fish with the highest tag number taken from the Chesapeake. A spinnette kit—rod and reel—is the prize for the highest tag number in any one week. The tag number on Mr. Bay's fish won both the daily and weekly prizes.

Mr. Bay, who is married and has a 17-year-old son, lives at 40 Battle Road, a Federal housing development at Edgewood, and is employed in the development.

His favorite angling spot is a short distance below the Conowingo Dam, on the Susquehanna.
