bama Supreme Court.

"This will have the same effect as granting a stay of execution," Mr. Shores explained.

THE LEGAL ACTION against the NAACP dates from June 1, when Attorney General John Patterson filed a suit against the organization, charging illegal operation in the State of Alabama.

He contended the NAACP, a New York corporation, had failed to "register as a foreign" agency in accordance with Alabama law.

On the same day the suit was filed Judge Jones granted a temporary injunction prohibiting the NAACP "doing business in the state."

The NAACP filed its answer on July 2. In effect, it denied that the law applies to the NAACP since it is a non-profit organization.

However, NAACP officials offered to comply with the law and filed the necessary forms.

THE COMPLIANCE offer was rejected by the attorney general.

On July 5 he filed a motion requesting the NAACP to produce various papers, books and documents—including its membership list.

Hearings were held on the motion to produce on July 9 and 11, with the court granting the attorney general's request on the latter date.

The deadline date for submitting the records was set for July 16. However, the deadline was extended to July 24 after the NAACP filed a motion with the court to set aside the order to submit the records.

For some unexplained reason, the hearing on the NAACP's motion was set for July 25, the day following the deadline for turning in the records.

CONSEQUENTLY, NAACP attorneys failed to observe the deadline on the grounds the court could not hold a hearing on whether or not the records were to be submitted if they had been turned in 24 hours earlier.

The hearing was held July 25, with the court refusing to set aside the order to submit the records.

Consequently, Mr. Carter told the court the NAACP would stand on its legal position that the records were not material to the case and refuse to submit them, particularly the membership list.

The court held the NAACP in contempt and levied a $10,000 fine, stipulating that the penalty would be increased to $100,000 if the records were not produced in five days.

Also, the temporary injunction on June 1 was declared permanent until and unless the NAACP purged itself of contempt.

ON JULY 30 the NAACP filed a motion with Judge Jones asking him to set aside his contempt order and/or reduce the fine. It also asked that execution of the order be stayed to afford the NAACP opportunity of review.

The petition was denied and later the same afternoon the NAACP asked the State Supreme Court to stay execution of the order of the lower court.

The Supreme Court heard argument on the motion at 10 a.m. July 31 and one hour and 20 minutes later announced its refusal to interfere with the ruling of the lower court.

SIMULTANEOUSLY Judge Jones ordered the $10,000 fine increased to $100,000.

Political observers both here and in Montgomery say the handling of the case has been influenced by what they term "White Citizens Council politics."

Three of the men who had much to do with the outcome of the case to date are being mentioned prominently as possible candidates for governor.

PROMOTED — The Rev. Frank L. Williams, left, pastor of Christ Methodist Church, confers with the Rev. Kelly L. Jackson, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church, whom he will succeed Aug. 15. The Rev. Mr. Jackson has been promoted to head the Washington District of the church. See details on this and other appointments in this issue.

of the Rev. A. S. Parker Sr., formerly of the AME Zion Church, to become pastor of the Huntington, W. Va., charge.

He succeeds the Rev. John R. Washington, who recently was transferred to the East Tennessee Conference where he is now superintendent of the Chattanooga District.

The Rev. Mr. Washington had served in Huntington for two years and joined the Washington Conference in 1951, coming to this area from the East Tennessee Conference to which he now returns.

OF HIS promotion to District Superintendent, the Rev. Mr. Jackson told the AFRO: "I just like everything in the Methodist Church pretty much. I'm in love with it, I guess, and movin' is part of our system. We have situations, and that's the case with me.

"I have come to love Baltimore, of course, but I am being called elsewhere. I think it is going to work out very nicely. It looks as though I am going to a big field, and on the whole it is a promotion.

"It's a situation that must be taken care of, and the Bishop felt I was the one to do it and if that be the case, I'll go on over and do it."

Metropolitan, located at Lanvale St. and Carrollton Ave., is the largest Methodist church in the city, and said to be the richest. It has over 2,000 members and an annual budget of $40,000.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson was appointed to Metropolitan in 1950. He was formerly superintendent of the West Baltimore District and also served as pastor of Sharp Street and Mt. Zion churches in Baltimore.

He was one-time professor at Bennett College before becoming an active minister in 1934.

He is married to Mrs. Viola C. Jackson, principal of Alexander School No. 112. They will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary on December 26.

Just last month, over 400 members of the church gathered in the church parlors to fete the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. It was the fifth pastoral reception in their six years at the church.

THE REV. MR. WILLIAMS, the new pastor of Metropolitan, is just 39 years old.

Of his promotion, he said: "I feel humbled. It is a pleasant shock to me. I'm lost for words."

The Rev. Mr. Williams is a native of Bennettsville, S.C., a graduate of Claflin College, Orangeburg, S.C., and the Howard University School of Religion, class of 1942.

He has served only two charges in his brief ministerial career.

The first was in 1942 at John Stewart Memorial Church where he served seven years.

In 1949, he was named pastor of Christ Church which occupied a new $75,000 building at Chase and Washington Sts., in 1948.

The Rev. Mr. Williams is married to the former Miss Ruth Carr. They have three children, Frank Jr., 10; Beryl, 7; and Sheryl, 3.

THE REV. MR. PARKER, a veteran of 33 years in the Washington Conference, has pastored twelve churches in Va., Pa., W. Va., and Md.

He comes to Baltimore after eight years at Leigh St., Richmond. The only other Maryland charge he served was New Market in 1931.

A native of Antigua, BWI, he is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary. He is married to the former Miss Nellie Pryor and they have two daughters, one of whom is the wife of Willis Graham.

"I have been expecting a change, for after all, Methodist ministers almost never remain at the same church for more than six years, and I have been at Leigh Street for the past eight."

That was the comment of the Rev. Mr. Parker when he was asked about the new appointment on Tuesday afternoon.

"I feel that I have had a very effective ministry in Richmond, and we are in love with the city. If I live to retire, I feel that I shall make my home here.

"YET IT is with no feeling of regret or dissatisfaction that I go to Baltimore, for the Methodist ministers know that they are men under orders."

The Rev. Mr. Parker said that he will deliver his farewell sermon to his congregation at Leigh Street Methodist on Sunday morning.

—'Ricky'

He is not down."

This statement, revealing that Richard L. "Ricky" Hunt, 26, will plead self - defense when brought back here to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Elizabeth, 24, and the wounding of their daughter, Ivy, 6 months, on June 29, was made in Los Angeles last week.

It was made by Miss Catherine MacDonald, assistant public defender in Los Angeles, who was appointed as Hunt's counsel for his extradition hearing which was set for Aug. 23.

Hunt was taken into custody by FBI agents on July 20, shortly after he was indicted for his wife's slaying by the Middlesex County grand jury in New Brunswick.

He was found working in an auto assembly plant in nearby South Gate under the name of Robert Brooks.

The Baltimore, Md., truck driver was first quoted by attendants at the Los Angeles County jail that he wanted to return to New Jersey quickly to "face the music."

But later in the day, Hunt requested legal counsel and refused to waive extradition.

U.S. Commissioner Theodore Hocke had set bail at $20,000, but it was withdrawn when the sheriff pointed out that California law does not permit bail on a murder charge.

New Brunswick police moved swiftly to meet Hunt's challenge on the extradition issue and to combat his plan to plead self defense.

Middlesex County Prosecutor Warren W. Wilentz announced last week that he plans to send two members of his staff to the extradition hearing.

He announced also that he and two other members of his staff will go to Baltimore Monday, July 30, to talk to Hunt's father, Jesse Haskins, and his alleged girl friend, Miss Joann Campbell.

jord to continue his journey to Copenhagen. He was scheduled to sail at 11:30 Wednesday morning.

GETTING RIGHT to work, Mr. Bagwell started a series of telephone calls which finally netted him the information that the younger Boswell was now living on the Columbia University campus, at 514 W. 122nd St., and pursuing a masters degree in health and physical education.

The elder Boswell, who was just cleared by the ship's doctors to re-embark for his Copenhagen voyage, was told by Mr. Bagwell how to reach his son and daughter-in-law.

A gala Tuesday evening dinner at one of Gotham's restaurants was the scene of their family reunion. The son, 35 years old now, is a resident of Detroit.

When the Bergensfjord slipped her moorings and pulled out to sea Wednesday morning, George Boswell — in search of adventure —carried with him his long-lost son's best wishes for a "bon voyage."

THE SCANDINAVIAN trip of Mr. Boswell's was the culmination of a life-long dream. "I have always liked the idea of travel," he told the AFRO previously.

"I have a special interest in Scandinavian countries," he also said, indicating that he may live out his retirement in Denmark, Norway or Sweden.

Mr. Boswell recently resigned as assistant chef at a Portland hospital. He was the only Angrian colored person on the Stockholm.

He said, however, that there were also three African students aboard who had been studying in New York and were en route to a religious conference in Stockholm.

Photo was made in New York, Wednesday, as he prepared to sail for a vacation in Copenhagen. He was bound for Europe on the Stockholm at the time of the collision which he termed 'a nightmare.' A former resident of Kentucky, Mr. Boswell described himself as 'a fond AFRO reader.'

baby in question, plus her three other children to county authorities.

At present, an appeal has been filed in the county Circuit Court, by Mrs. Malcom's attorney, Milton Allen, in an attempt to get her children back.

IN BALTIMORE, there is some question of how Miss Howard's case finally made its way to the state's attorney's office after the father had been ordered to support the child.

The brown baby was born on June 7 at Johns Hopkins Hospital. Sometime later, the young mother was summoned to juvenile court on charges of neglecting her child.

Without going into the racial features of the case, Juvenile Court authorities ordered the child to St. Elizabeth's Home for Children, where she is at present.

Miss Howard was ordered to file a complaint with the Domestic Relations authorities to seek support for her child from its father.

The mother and Mr. Billy, who is married and has two children of his own, appeared before the Domestic Relations master, Thomas P. McCarthy, on July 3.

When Mr. Billy admitted he was the father of the child and agreed to pay $7 a week for its support, courthouse attaches engaged in excited whispers, it was reported.

And when the couple left the court arm in arm, it created a sensation.

Records show that Mr. Billy earns $37 a week and that he paid for hospital and medical expenses at the time of the child's birth.

THE CASE was then referred to the Probation Department, a natural procedure, where all support payments are made.

It was here, the AFRO was told, that the first question on the racial features in the case was raised.

Although Chief Probation Officer Charles Snyder denied to the AFRO that he alerted the state's attorney's office on the matter, he did say that he notified Mr. McCarthy.

"I know the law," he told the AFRO, Thursday.

Miss Howard, a graduate of Patterson Park High School, is now out on $1,000 bail which was posted by her mother, Mrs. Carol Howard, Thursday morning.

The young mother met her tan lover at a dance at the Fairmount Community Center, the AFRO learned. According to the charge filed by the Grand Jury, the child was conceived on Sept. 7, 1955.

Miss Howard is being represented by John J. O'Conor Jr., attorney.

Immediately after the charge was filed, Mr. Billy sought legal aid from Milton Allen, member of the Brown, Allen and Watts law firm.

The AFRO was told that the NAACP and the Maryland Civil Liberties have taken an interest in the case. Both groups are expected to get permission to sit in on the case as "friends of the court."

Named to housing bureau position

Frans J. Vidor, director of the Housing Bureau of the City Health Department, announced this week the appointment of Miss Jan Drake as educational director. Miss Drake is a native of West Palm Beach, Fla.

A graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, she has a masters degree from Columbia U. Her function with the bureau will be to be the contact persons between the bureau and residents of neighborhoods where rehabilitation is to be effected.

'He said I was a good wife, but..'

"He said I was a good mother and a good wife and that he didn't deserve to live with me," Mrs. Ora E. Jones quoted her husband as saying.

Mrs. Jones, who lives at 1779 Moreland Ave., added that her husband Norvin Jones, then went off to live with the other woman. She identified the other woman as Miss Doris Hall of the 1300 block Jefferson St.

"He (Mr. Jones) told me that he was going with another woman and that this woman had borne a child for him. I knew of his friendship with Doris Hall. In fact I directed the Probation Department to serve him with a warrant at her home."

Following the testimony, Mrs. Jones was awarded a divorce and custody of their two children, and he was ordered to pay $15 per week for the children's support.

DIVORCES ON grounds of voluntary separation went to Mrs. Bernice Plowden from Ernice Plowden, Mrs. Gertrude Contee from Herbert Contee, James E. Brown from Mrs. Sue Brown and Mrs. Louise Harris from William Harris.

"We had a lot of arguments, so we voluntarily separated," Mrs. Plowden, of 3704 Woodbrook Ave., said. They were married in 1942 and separated in 1948.

"We argued all the time about other women," Mrs. Contee, of 2021 N. Smallwood St. testified. She added that they "decided to separate in 1947 after their marriage in 1941. Her maiden name, Jones was restored.

"We had so many misunderstandings that we agreed to separate," said Mrs. Harris, who asked for and was given custody of their son.

Mr. Harris was ordered to pay her $8 per week for the child's support.

"WE WEREN'T getting along well. We had in-law troubles," testified Mr. Brown, who said that he and his wife agreed to separate.

They were married in 1949 and are parents of two children, now with the mother. Their marriage ended in 1953.

"I don't believe she liked married life after we were married," Stanley Robinson of 1829 Walbrook Ave. explained the briefness of his seven-month union with Mrs. Shirley E. Robinson.

"She said she didn't want to be married any longer. I tried to stop her, but she refused to stay," the husband continued.

Mr. Robinson said that his marriage lasted from the end of November, 1953 until the first of July, 1954.

'Spoons' White dies at Hopkins

"He went on the Avenue last Monday night and ate a crab cake and then he came home and drank some milk. He went to bed; and went into a coma.

"We took him to Johns Hopkins Hospital and he died there."

Mrs. Marion White was speaking this week of the death of her husband Edward (Spoons) White, 32, 2836 Clifton Ave.

A MUSICIAN since he was 17 years old, Mr. White was employed at an Avenue night club as a drummer at the time of his death.

He was given the name "Spoons" in tribute to his skill at coaxing rhythmical sounds from a pair of ordinary kitchen spoons.

Mr. White was admitted to Johns Hopkins early Tuesday morning and died that afternoon. The medical examiner has announced that the cause of death is still pending.

FUNERAL SERVICES are scheduled for tomorrow (Saturday), 1 p.m., at the Mt. Olivet Church, Woodyear St. and Riggs Ave., with the Rev. Robert Evans officiating. Burial will be in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. White attended the Francis M. Wood School. Despite blindness in one eye, he decided on a musical career while still in his teens. Gifted with a natural talent, he eventually became a professional drummer.

He had appeared with a number of the big name bands, and was a well known personality in the music field.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles White; five brothers, Jerome, Donald, Avon, Robert, and Harold, and three sisters, Mesdames Grace Robinson and Cecilia Press, and Miss Shirley White.

'I want to forget it,' says 'honeymoon' widow

MRS. REGINA J. PRYOR
'I want to forget'

"I would prefer not to talk about it, and I—want to forget it. But thanks for your interest."

This was Mrs. Regina Jones Pryor speaking on Thursday, one year after a grand jury had freed her in the slaying of her husband, Henry O. Pryor Jr., 27.

The slaying occurred in late July in Great Neck, Long Island, where the couple had just marked four months of marriage. Because of the shortness of the marriage the case was dubbed the "Honeymoon Slaying."

Both members of families well known in Baltimore's Turner Station community, the Pryors were residents of the section before they moved to Long Island.

IN A STORY given a reporter from the jail cell where she was being held pending grand jury action, Mrs. Pryor told of a stormy marriage with her handsome husband.

"I was afraid of him but I loved him," she was quoted as saying. Late in July, of last year, Mrs. Pryor said that she and her husband became involved in a domestic argument at their home, 84 Steamheat Landing, Great Neck.

Mrs. Pryor said then that her husband struck her in the side and when he lunged at her she picked up a fruit knife in self defense. Mr. Pryor died of a wound of the neck.

Later a grand jury cleared her and she returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis H. Jones, 205 Fleming Drive, Turner Station, where she is now retiding.

And of the tragedy that happened a year ago, the attractive 22-year-old widow has this to say:

"I want to forget it."

She yelled, 'out,' but he was slow

"She yelled for him to get out, but he was a little slow moving."

In Northern Police Court Tuesday, that's what an officer testified to following the arrest of a man and woman on a lottery charge.

Rackets Division officers arrested Mrs. Nellie Kreiner, 52-year - old housewife of the 2500 block Woodbrook Ave., and James Carey, 36, of the 2400 block W. Lanvale St. Bail for both was set at $2,500.

ACCORDING TO Lt. Hyman Goldstein, a large quantity of numbers slips, and a notebook listing winning numbers from September 11, 1953, through last week were seized.

Carey was arrested when he walked into the Woodbrook Ave. apartment during the raid and was told by Mrs. Kreiner to "get out."
