Funeral Tueday for Mrs. Edith Fields

"She belonged to God and he took her. She was one of God's noble women and has been accorded a place among the galleryof saints. Her body is at rest and her soul is in peace."

The Rev. Baxter Matthews, pastor of Union Baptist Church, was speaking on Christmas Eve at the funeral services for Mrs. Edith J. Fields, 2231 Madison Ave., who died Saturday at Provident Hospital.

She was a record clerk for 29 years at the hospital.

The Rev. Mr. Matthews also said on Tuesday that "she gave love, sympathy, hope and encouragement. Mrs. Fields lived to serve and shared what she had among others. Let us so live that men will love us while we live and miss us when we are gone. She gave her best."

Some hundred persons attended the rites held at Holland Funeral Home, 1631 Druid Hill Ave.

Present for the services were many physicians, nurses and other personnel from the hospital.

Burial was Thursday in Braman Cemetery, Newport, R. I.

Some 20 beautiful floral pieces draped the brown mahogany casket. Mrs. Fields was dressed in a blue lace dress.

Music was given by members of the senior choir St Union Baptist Church.

* * *

MRS. FIELDS was a member of the church for several years and also secretary of the Dime Circle.

She was vice-president of the Maryland State Medical Record Libraries, a member of the Urban League Guild and a member of the Madison Ave. Neighborhood Club. She also held membership in various other civic and professional organizations.

Mrs. Fields received her high school education in the ing. public schools of Newport and attended Howard University and Freedmen's Hospital, where she received her certificate from the school of Nursing.

Born in Newport, R.I., she was the daughter of the late Octavia B. Yancey Johnson and Nathaniel B. Johnson.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Angelyn McDaniel of Seattle, Wash., a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth N. Johnson of Cambridge, Mass., and a grandson Gregory McDaniel of Seattle.

ONE OF THE most respected and beloved persons at Provident, Mrs. Fields had planned to retire after completing 30 years of service at the institution.

She was admitted to the hospital on Sunday, Dec. 15. Her condition was listed as critical for several days and on Dec. 20 at the annual Christmas party for the hospital staff the revelers stopped for a moment to say a prayer for her recovery.

Christmas Eve rites for Mrs. Callie L. Phillips

"Your presence here today is true witness that she served and served well. . .

"Too often we find people who feel that they have done enough and they want to relax and accept no more responsibility.

"But 42 years ago Sister Phillips joined the church and she kept working — she was faithful until the end. . .

The Rev. Nathaniel Wicks was speaking at Christmas Eve funeral services for Mrs. Callie Lawson Phillips, active member of the Morningstar Baptist Church of which he is the pastor.

Mrs. Phillips, who was 66, was the widow of Thomas Phillips, who died in 1951. She died suddenly on Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Doris Thomas, 502 Seagull Ave. Cherry Hill.

* * *

IN HIS eulogy, the Rev. Mr. Wicks referred to the fact that for "more than 30 years Sister Phillips was active in the primary department and the Sunday School.

"Nobody knows how many lives she touched and influenced for Christ. And she was faithful I saw her at church Monday night in class. She was just as active then as she was 30 years ago."

Also eulogizing Mrs. Phillips was the Rev. C. L. Bryant, pastor of Wayland Baptist Church.

The Rev. Mr. Payne said: "Personally, I feel a sense of loss. She just didn't come and join the church. She worked in the church. She believed, 'the Lord is my shepherd.'

Music during the services was by sextet of the church choir. Miss Alethia Branch was at the organ.

EXPRESSIONS of sympathy were read from organizations with which Mrs. Phillips was associated. They included the Silver Leaf Club, Mrs. Mary F. Williams, president, which cited her as one of the oldest members who will be greatly missed; and the Mary E. Wynn Flower Circle, the Sunday School and Primary Department which paid tribute to her as "conscientious, loving, kind-hearted and congenial."

A native of Maryland, Mrs. Phillips was the daughter of the late Hezekiah and Elizabeth Lawson. After schooling in Baltimore she taught for a while in North Cumberland County, Va.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Phillips is survived by her sister, Mrs. Flora Jones; a brother, Albert Lawson, 12 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren and a number of cousins, nieces and nephews.

ONE OF her nephews, Clifton M. Wainwright, was the funeral director. Other nephews include AFRO Photographer, J. Henry Phillips and AFRO Art director Frank W. Phillips.

Among other relatives and friends who occupied the dozen cars for the trip to Mt. Auburn Cemetery were the following:

East Thomas St., Mrs. Muriel Johnson, Calvin Thomas, Mrs. Vivian Smith, Earl Thomas Jr., Mrs. Barbara Beach, Miss Garland Thomas, Mrs. Martha Wainwright Preston, Mrs. Beatrice Martin.

Mrs. Inez Clay, Bernard Beach, Mrs. Catherine Long, Miss Ethel Johnson, Clifton Hughes, Mrs. Vera Palmer, Mrs. Gertrude Nutter, Andrew Preston, Mrs. Frank W. Phillips Sr.

And, Mrs. Bessie Burley, Mrs. Lucy Wainwright, Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt, Frank and Donald and George Wainwright, Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt, Mrs. Rena Ferguson. —BMP

Ga. ministers back high court decision

ATLANTA, Ga.—"As Americans, we feel and believe that all of us should obey the laws of the land, including the ruling of May 17, 1954 by the U.S. Supreme Court on the unconstitutionality of segregation in the public schools."

Five prominent ministers adopted this anti-segregation resolution here recently as part of a six point bill of principles at a meeting in the Mount Olive Baptist Church.

Other principles subscribed to are that:

"HATRED, SCORN, injustice, intimidation, suppression and destruction of liberty, life and property cannot ever be justified as we approach our problems to secure to all men the benefits of mutual respect, charity, love, goodwill and understanding. . .

"The public school system by no means should be destroyed. Its principles of democracy should be bigger and of more importance than segregation or desegregation.

"We believe in a free people; in a free land, in a free society, with a free choice to live free lives without intimidation and other tactics that force one into the status of second class citizens.

"Five prominent men with them that these are days of tremendous tension politically and socially throughout the world. We also recognize that the Christian church in times like these should not be quiet on these great social and moral issues.

The measure was signed by the Rev. W. W. Weatherspoon, president, Atlanta Baptist Ministers Union; Bishop S. L. Greene of the AME Church; Bishop J. W. E. Bowen of the Methodist Church; Bishop W. J. Wilkes of the AME Church and the Rev. William H. Borders, president of the Georgia Baptist Ministers and Educational Convention.

First civil rights measure is Morten's second choice

This reporter's selection of the "Ten Top Stories" of the year 1957 follows:

1. The school integration dispute set off by Gov. Orval Faubus' defiance of Federal court integration orders, which has opening a wider chasm made between North and South, the Arkansas governor's action is was literally a declaration of war on the Union.

2. The passage of a civil rights measure by the 85th Congress, its enactment into law notwithstanding the South, the bill is significant in that it is the first step toward progress made by the Congress in 82 years.

3. RUSSIA'S launching of two earth satellites, Sputniks 1 and 2, and the U.S. failure in outer space. If nothing else, Soviet supremacy in the missiles race, it reflected a new efficiency in the organization and direction of scientific and technical fields.

4. The establishment of the Federal Civil Rights Commission, an agency designed to investigate violations of civil rights in voting.

5. The Prayer Pilgrimage for march on Washington ranks high among this year's biggest stories since it pointed to the increasing unity among colored persons in quest of their civil rights and equal citizenship.

6. The redistricting of the city limits in Tuskegee, Ala., disfranchising hundreds of colored persons in the vote in municipal elections.

7. THE CONVICTION in Knoxville, Tenn., of seven Negroes in the Clinton High School, for contempt of court in refusing to obey the Supreme Court's decision to end racial segregation.

9. The dynamiting of the Hattie Cotton School in Nashville, in reflection of the grade level pupils were integrated.

10. The brutal attack on the Rev. C. L. Bryant, Shuttlesworth in Birmingham, Ala., by a mob of 20 white men. Things get to be in a pretty sorry state when professed Christians in the South, stoop to attack the ministry.

"GAZETTE GIRL" Phillda Ragland of Plainfield, N.J., reigned as 'Gazette Girl' at the 8th annual winter carnival dance of Upsala College, East Orange, N.J. last week. A freshman, majoring in psychology, she was elected by popular student vote, the first of her race to be so honored.

A.D. 1957--Writer Sees TV 1st Time

(First of two articles on "Rome, Italy)

By CHATWOOD HALL

ROME, Italy — Rome is another city where even hills along the Tiber, but her Ciampino Airport looked to me to be among the newest and best that I have seen anywhere.

The spaciousness and conveniences of Rome's Aeroporto Ciampino and the graciousness and efficiency of its attendants is something that I believe will make an indelible impression on air travelers along the Mediterranean.

After bidding goodbye to my friends, Mrs. Ruth Bullock and Dr. Frances Hammond, cultural attache at the American Embassy in Dahar, Senegal, who had been attending a meeting of American cultural attaches in Athens, I was on my in the big bus to enter the Eternal City.

(Dr. Hammond continued on to Paris, thence back to Rabat.)

* * *

THE ANCIENT ROMAN touch becomes evident shortly after the bus leaves the airport—ruins of old Roman aqueducts appear on both sides of the road. Increasing numbers of ruins—and droves of scooters indicate that we were entering Rome itself.

Signora Contessina (meaning "little Countess") greeted me with customary Italian warmth and verve at the Pensione Metropolitan. Certainly, a better room had been reserved," she said.

Maria, one of the husky maids, was struggling with my bags upstairs and into my room. The same she had told Lina coming for her luggage.

"When I commented that I had to be a husky girl to do this heavy work, Maria, in perfect English, said she was healthy.

INCIDENTALLY, IT was in her partner of this person that I first saw television.

When I asked an my way out of Ethiopia through Europe in 1935, television had not come into being. I believe I am one of the very few Americans who had never seen television until A.D. 1957.

A budding amateur began to develop in me. I became a politan, with me being involved lives comes freely and uninhibited to Italian people.

"Among the guests was a Spanish woman, Senora Hazzaner, married to an Italian from Genoa. With her was her 19-year-old daughter, Vivien, a student in the Rome Academy of Fashion Designing. Her mother was paying her a visit.

* * *

FROM MY very first day in the pension, mother and daughter became my warm friends. Vivien spoke English and we always ate at the same table and drank the same red wine.

On my second day, they had already invited me to go with them to Villa Adriana, near Rome, for a pleasant weekend.

Signorina Vivien was a dreamy type of girl, rather romantic and introspective, with a soft and elfish look in her eyes.

* * *

"VIVIEN SEEMS to be in love with somebody," I remarked one day to Signora Contessina.

"She is, Signor," answered Signora Contessina. "She is in love with you, and her mother has told me that they are going to invite you to visit them in Genoa."

So the pension was not only intimate and homelike, but was becoming romantic, too.

Automobile traffic in Rome is terrific and it has added to the droves of scooters darting in and out everywhere and the highly volatile Latin nature makes the streets an easy place to commit quick suicide.

I had to watch my every step at intersections to keep from adding to the number of the dead.
