will take on all comers."

AND THEN the phone rang. Women were in the lobby. Could they come up?

"No," Addie said, and then shrugged his shoulders. "See?"

We ate in silence and then the phone rang again. This time friends from Nigeria and Ghana. Could they bring some of their friends to meet him.

"Yes," Addie resigned. In a matter of minutes Addie's small room was flooded with bug-eyed well wishers.

HERE EBFORE me was a man. A man born and reared in the tradition of Polygamy. And it was the Tradition that had been his undoing.

Like most men, Addie had become involved with too many women. Unlike most men, thank God, his involvements had become public.

He sat before me an embarrassed, disturbed, yet surprisingly confident man.

"You will come to the studio with me?" he asked.

I could not go for—I was scheduled for a network broadcast in a matter of hours. I shook Addie's hand, "God be with you," and we scheduled to have lunch on Wednesday.

WALKING DOWN the drilling throng that is Broadway at night, I could not help but remember Addie. And there were the people—those who find it so easy to judge, so simple to condemn and so hard to forgive.

Yet I somehow felt that Addie was" a better man for the experience. If not before, his acceptance of monogamy is now complete.

An hour later I sat in a bar. I watched wide-eyed and saw Addie say the dramatic words:

"I will go no further. Good-night and God bless you all."

"Jesus," a guy with a beer shouted: "If I had his knowledge I would stay on that show until I won a million."

No you wouldn't, I said to myself. No, you would not.

The Bible quiz ace had denied Monday that he is married to Miss Katherine McGee of Chicago. He admitted, however, that they are good friends.

Addie told this reporter and Miss Sara Slack of a NYC weekly in a three-hour interview that he would continue as a contestant on the $64,000 question and that:

Less than two hours following the interview, a source close to this reporter phoned from Chicago and said that records" had been uncovered showing Aderonmu and Katherine McGee were issued a marriage license on April 30, 1957.

Reached at her Chicago home, Miss McGee said, "Yes, we are married, but I will not say anything more until my husband returns."

THE MARRIAGE furore was followed by statements from the deans of the University of Chicago and Louisville Medical School.

University of Chicago officials deny that Aderonmu is or ever has been a student at the university. Louisville Medical school officials say that Aderonmu flunked out after one year of medical study at that institution.

"He didn't pass one single course," a Louisville Medical School spokesman said.

THREE WEEKS ago, Fay Mc Donald, the ex-Mrs. Aderonmu, told this reporter that her marriage to Addie failed "because he believed in free love."

Prior to last week's program, on which he won $96,000, Aderonmu was subjected to an all-afternoon grilling by producers of the show.

Because he continued to deny his marriage to Katherine, Aderonmu was allowed to continue on the program and was allowed, under questioning by quiz master Hal March, to explain his case to the nation.

IT HAS also been disclosed that in October, 1953, Aderonmu was arrested by Louisville Police and charged with disorderly conduct, reckless driving and driving without a license.

Aderonmu was convicted and fined on the reckless driving charge. The other charges were not prosecuted.

A New York spokesman for the U.S. Immigration Service told the AFRO Monday night that as a result of the latest development, Aderonmu's status "is returned to active investigation."

It now seems clear that Aderonmu has been out of school for over two years and has married without informing the Immigration Bureau of the fact. Either acts sufficient to revoke his visa and have the Nigerian returned to his homeland.

on my hand.

"I tried as hard as I could to pull my hand out but I just couldn't make it.

"The afternoon engineer Mr. Brooks was down in the boiler room and I called to him but he didn't answer.

"I thought to myself, well, he'll come up before he leaves for the night.

"I waited a while longer and I heard the exhaust fans in the ceiling cut off. I knew then that he was leaving.

"I didn't worry because I knew that the 12 to 8 policeman would come around and I would attract his attention.

"About ten minutes after twelve, the officer knocked on the door. I could hear him but he couldn't hear me. My voice carried right up to the ceiling.

"He returned around two or three and we went through the same routine again.

"I knew then that I would have to wait for the chief to come in at five."

WHEN ASKED what he thought about dirling the long wait Mr. Fleming said:

"My mind drifted over a lot of things but mainly about how lucky I was because it wasn't a Friday.

"If it had been a Friday I would have had to wait over the weekend. I thought about what if school had just let out for the holidays.

"I said to myself, well old boy you are a prisoner right here in school.

"I didn't get sleepy. I moved around as much as I could and kept swinging my arms.

"I kept looking at the clock and my watch and thought about how slow the time was moving. I never got tired or sleepy.

"I never found out which timepiece was wrong my watch or the clock. There was three minutes difference between them.

"I wanted water so terribly bad and that fountain was right in my face. I guess I came out o.k. because I didn't get excited.

"When Mr. Dates came in and saw me he said "Fleming" I said yes, please come and get me out of this thing. I have been in here all night.

"I never was so glad to see anyone in all my life.

"When the door opened I felt nothing so I started rubbing my fingers. After a little while the pain began to creep in and they started bleeding."

"WHEN ASKED if his family had worried about him staying out all night Mr. Fleming stated:

"No. They thought that I was in the house."

He explained that his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Fleming, and sons, Joseph, 20, and John 11, are usually in bed when he gets home after 10 p.m.

Mr. Fleming said that when he arrived home from University Hospital, he had trouble sleeping and went to see a neighborhood doctor who gave who gave him a prescription for some sleeping tablets.

"Before that I drank all the water I could hold. I was so thirsty that I never thought I would get enough."

Holding his bandaged fingers in front of his face Mr. Fleming added: "Those poor boys sure took a beating."

Mr. Fleming has been employed by the Board of Education for 12 years.

He assumed the duties of custodian at the Cherry Hill School in 1954. Before that, he worked at Schools 150 and 112.

Amos King

Mr. King died suddenly Saturday morning at his home.

The Rev. G. M. Edwards, pastor of the church officiated. Burial was in Baltimore National Cemetery. During World War I, Mr. King served in the Army.

Mr. King was a Class no. 25 leader and a member of the Choir No. 1 at Pennsylvania AME Zion Church.

HE IS survived by his wife, Mrs. Lula King, a brother Archer King of Baltimore, two aunts and one uncle and several cousins.

rell, entered a guilty plea for his client at this second trial.

No testimony was taken from either Mr. Farrell or the blonde matron, Mrs. Virginia Trechard, formerly of 1830 Linden Ave., whom he was accused of criminally attacking.

ASSISTANT State's Attorneys Joseph G. Koutz and John A. O'Connor Jr., presented a statement of the crime to Judges Tucker and Cullen, which revealed that Mrs. Trechard had left her Linden Ave. home shortly after 9 p.m. on the date of the alleged crime, and had gone to a tavern at Charles and Lee Sts. in South Baltimore.

Mr. Koutz said she had gone there to collect some money another woman, whom she did not know, owed Mrs. Trechard's common-law husband, and had drunk several beers.

Mr. Koutz charged that Mrs. Trechard was grabbed by three men, one of whom was Mr. Farrell, after she had left the tavern, and dragged to a nearby vacant lot where the attack occurred.

Mr. Farrell was chased from the scene of the attack and arrested by two policemen who were attracted to noises on the lot. Mr. Koutz told the court, and later admitted the attack to police.

* * *

MR. GOSNELL based his argument on the points that:

1. Mrs. Trechard had gone to the area seeking pleasure, rather than collecting money from a woman she did not know, and had consequently placed herself in a position for the attack;

2. Mr. Farrell had been out of Crownsville Hospital just two weeks prior to the crime, and that a report from Dr. Mansfred S. Guttmacher, Supreme Bench medical officer, stated that Mr. Farrell was highly affected by alcholic beverages;

3. Mr. Farrell admitted the relationship with Mrs. Trechard, but the accused man contended that she had propositioned him, and no other men were involved so far as he knew;

4. Mrs. Trechard, like Mr. Farrell, had an extensive record involving police court convictions for drunk and disorderly conduct charges.

"I don't believe of his own free will he did this, Mr. Gosnell told Judges Tucker and Cullen. "And confusion from alcoholism caused him to become involved with Mrs. Trechard."

MR. GOSNELL argued strongly that attention should be given to Dr. Guttmacher's report on Mr. Farrell.

"That report is actually the basis on which this new trial was granted," he told the court.

However, a dissenting opinion in the case was filed by Associate Judge Hall Hammond, of the Appeals Court, who wrote that he found no errors in the original trial that justified a new trial for Mr. Farrell.

"I fear that the decision in this case may prove confusing to the trial courts, and have an unfortunate effect in other cases," Judge Hammond wrote in his dissenting opinion.

'AW, G'WAN — That's what Baby Boy Williams seem to be saying to the AFRO photographer who took his picture at Provident Hospital where he was born on Friday the 13th.

Friday 13th infant tips scales at 9¼ pounds

Friday, Dec. 13, saw the birth of Baby Boy Williams at Provident Hospital and from all indications the little fellow may one day become the heavyweight champion of the world.

As yet without a name, the future champ weighed in at 11:07 a.m., and tipped the scales at 9 pounds ¼ ounces.

Hospital authorities say the average newborn weighs 6¼ pounds.

BABY BOY WILLIAMS was born to Mrs. May Williams, 2839 Spelman Road, Cherry Hill. His father is Eddie Williams, a TV and radio repairman who, no doubt, has great pride in the way his son shapes up for a future heavyweight crown.

Physicians at Provident who served as ring officials on Friday, say that the almost 10-pound king has additional advantages for picking up a champ's title at some future date.

Baby Boy Williams measures 54 inches in length while the average newborn measures 50 inches in length.

With this 4-inch advantage as a head start, Kid Williams is slated to slaughter any challengers, nail em to the ropes and, with belts and hooks, overhand rights to the head and chin, put a KO on anybody he takes a shot at or chances to tangle with.

Two sparring partners await the champ at home.

They are little sisters, Laverne, 2, and Linda Faye, 1.

NEAREST contenders for the heavyweight crown is Baby Boy Stokes who was also born on Friday Dec. 13 at Provident. The son of Mrs. Pearl Stokes, 2044 Orleans St., the infant was born at 11:50 a.m. and weighed 7 pounds 4 ounces.

However, first to arrive on the scene at Provident was Baby Girl Heard who was born at 3:46 a.m. to Mrs. Caro-

Retired lumberman buried Thursday

Funeral services were held yesterday (Thursday) for John Maceer, 84, 1331 Lafayette Ave., from John Wesley Methodist Church, where he was a member for 55 years.

Mr. Macer died Sunday at Harlem Hospital, New York City. He had been ill for one month.

The Rev. Charles Johnson, pastor of the Church, officiated. Burial was in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Macer, a retired lumberman, was a former member of the Board of Trustees of John Wesley Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maggie Macer, two daughters, Miss Lillian Macer of New York City, and Mrs. Mable Talley, Englewood, N.J. and a son, Robert Macer of Baltimore.

He keeps the shoes —with six months

"Your Honor, they are my shoes . . . I bought them last Saturday, and I've got a right to keep them."

This argument by James C. Palmer Jr., 23, of the 100 block W. Mosher St., failed to impress Magistrate Linwood G. Koger Sr., in Northwestern Police Court Tuesday morning.

Magistrate Koger sentenced Mr. Palmer to six months in the House of Correction for stealing a pair of $9.88 shoes from a shoe store in the 3100 block W. North Ave.

Mr. Palmer, a truck driver's helper, was accused of pilfering the shoes on Monday evening in the self-service store, and then walking out without paying for them.

Before Magistrate Koger Tuesday morning, Mr. Palmer refused to give the shoes back to the store, when the request was made by the manager, Leonard Feld, 2908 block Ridgewood Ave.

"Well," Magistrate Koger stated, "settling the matter, you can take the shoes with you to the House of Correction, Mr. Palmer."
