Thinking Out Loud

By RALPH MATTHEWS

RELIGION CAN DESTROY YOU

Although I was expecting her, in answer to an appointment arranged by phone, I hardly recognized the little lady who came into my office.

When we have not seen a person for a good many years we expect some slight alterations in appearance, especially in our women folk who are inclined to take on additional and often unnecessary avoirdupois which is nature's way of tattling about their age. However, such was not the case with my visitor.

In weight, height and other appointments she was just about the same as I last saw her, but still there was something missing which I could not put my finger on.

After we had completed our amenities she placed her trappings on my desk among which I noted what looked suspiciously like a Bible. It was.

AS SHE TALKED QUIETLY telling me all the calamities which had befallen her since I last saw her several years ago, I gave her only half of my attention because I kept asking myself over and over just what was a fairly young and apparently intelligent woman doing carrying a Bible around in the middle of the day?

I examined her a little closer and noticed that she was completely devoid of all those personal adornments like lipstick, eyebrow pencil, dabs of rouge, earrings, costume jewelry, high heeled shoes, nylons, frilly dress, and all the other doodads which we have come to accept as an integrable part of the modern woman. I realized that it was the absence of these things which had brought about the transformation which made her almost unrecognizable.

"You see, as I remembered her last she was what might be termed a very attractive and personable young lady who was destined to go far in the marts of trade and commerce or in whatever other field she devoted her talents. Perhaps a stenographer or secretary. Now she looked pretty drab.

* * *

BUT IT SEEMED from her recitation that life had dealt badly with her and in spite of her devotion to duty and competence, some fairly good positions had slipped from her grasp. She had at last come to the conclusion that either some unknown enemies were putting the hex on her or else she was being polished for some unknown sins.

She sought my aid as a reporter, versed in the sneaky arts of investigation, to help her ferret out her tormentors.

She gave me a list of possible suspects who through malice, jealousy or both might be bent upon doing her dirt. Having been hounded off of other jobs through their malefactions she wanted to prevent their interference in her latest job. This interference I learned consisted of passing on scurrious gossip about her to her employers, whispering about her behind her back, and doing other slimy tricks of which the human race is capable.

"WHAT DO YOU SUGGEST I do?" she asked almost plaintively and there was real distress and desperation in her voice.

"I suggest that the first thing you do is take that Bible you are carrying and bury it in the bottom of your trunk and promise me you won't open it for the next six months," I advised.

The effect was castrophic. She flinched as though I had slapped her in the face and she stared the Holy writ as if it was a weapon to combat your problems. Nobody has done anything to you. You have done all these things to yourself."

She sat there staring in stunned amazement. "But," she protested, "I have tried to live a clean and righteous life and I have tried to lead others to repentence."

"For that?" I said you will receive your reward in heaven, but down here on earth being too righteous is a distinct liability. Holiness is not a salable commodity and should be indulged in only as an avocation. Sin is a relative thing. What one person considers wicked may be perfectly okay with someone else.

"That's why it is always dangerous to go around converting people on our conception of what is right and wrong. Now in your case you have allowed somebody to convert you out of your job."

"But I don't understand," she persisted, "I gave up my old companions and joined a Holiness Church, and I thought I would be blessed, but it seems from bad to worse. It looks like the Lord is punishing me."

"I don't think the Lord has anything to do with it. You are being punished for believing that the Lord wants people to go around doing things which make their way hard. I don't think he intended any such thing.

"For instance when you kept yourself attractive and were happy and vivacious you had a good job and work promotions. But when you turned holier - than - thou and tried to turn your office into a convent, became morose and said you were unpleasant to be around so they eased you out. It wasn't the sinners who hurt you, but the people who thought they were good.

* * *

"DO YOU KNOW WHY some church people discourage the use of powder and paint and insist that everybody go around looking like something the cat dragged in? Well that has nothing at all to do with morality. They do this because the majority of them are so sloppy, homely and repulsive that they are beyond improvement.

"So when an attractive young woman falls under their spell they try to reduce her to their state. They are like the monkey who lost his tail in an accident and tried to persuade all the other monkies to cut off their tails also. Everything is a sin to the person who is either to old or too timid to enjoy it.

"If God objected to women making themselves attractive nobody would get to heaven but the dinbats.

"Religion is alright in small doses, but if you take too much it acts like dope. I suggest that you quit this church and spend more time in the beauty parlor. God could not make all women beautiful, but He doesn't mind the others trying to catch up."

Life term for attack

Judge Anselm Sodaro in Criminal Court Wednesday sentenced Otis Luster, 26, of Virginia, Va., to life imprisonment for criminally attacking a 73-year-old blonde matron in November of last year.

Assistant State's Attorney Norman Polski produced testimony, including a statement the accused man gave police officers at the time of his arrest, which revealed that Mr. Luster had gone to the home of Mrs. Mary McCulley, 1000 block E. Chase St., and asked to see some tenants on the second floor.

Mrs. McCulley stated that the accused man grabbed her, placing a hand over her mouth, and shoved her to a back first floor bedroom where the alleged attack occurred.

Further testimony revealed that Mr. Luster had voluntarily turned himself in to police officers, telling them he was a parole violator from Greenville, N. C.

Judge Sodaro was told that the accused man had been arrested there on a criminal attack charge, which was reduced to a conviction on an assault count in the indictment.

WHEN PLACED on the stand in his defense, Mr. Gordon Brown Jr., Mr. Luster, a slightly built man of medium height, said he did not remember the alleged attack, or just what he told police officers in his statement.

Judge Sodaro was told that Mr. Luster has had several psychiatric examinations during his arrest a year ago, and has been at the Crownsville State Hospital for several months.

A recent court ordered report by Dr. B. W. Murphy, psychiatrist, listed the accused man as being "mentally deficient." Judge Sodaro ordered that Mr. Luster be sent to Patuxent Institution.

Body mix uncovers 'lost' kin

WASHINGTON

Mrs. Martha Whitley, 66, of Alexandria, was buried on Wednesday in Arlington Cemetery beside her husband after the body of another woman was exhumed in straightening out a mixup of bodies that occurred last week.

Funeral services are pending over the weekend for Mrs. Hattie Thomas, 34, whose body was released by the District morgue for burial as that of Mrs. Whitley.

District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald told the AFRO on Wednesday that an investigation into the mixup was completed and submitted to the Corporation Counsel.

"Any report on the investigation will have to come from that office," Dr. MacDonald said.

A SPOKESMAN for the Corporation Counsel said, "There's no action before this office in the case."

J. Bacon, funeral director, said the first body was released to him for burial as that of Mrs. Whitley.

"It wasn't our fault," Mr. Bacon said. "You only get the body they release to you. They both looked very similar. One was dressed in a blue dress. I can't tell that by looking in the casket.

"We accepted the body of Mrs. Thomas, who was supposed to be Mrs. Whitley. Nothing like this has ever happened to us before."

Dr. MacDonald said the mixup was the first at the morgue in his 30-year career.

THE MISTAKE was discovered by Wilfred A. Alsop, 18 Bryant St., NE, a nephew of Mrs. Whitley, who visited, along with other relatives that it was not her body.

Morgue aides said both bodies were tagged in accordance with their respective identity when they were brought in. The records were right, they said.

Mrs. Whitley died Dec. 2 in Ann's Convalescent Home, 1425 Belmont St., NW. She had a cancer patient. She formerly lived at 1301 Pendleton St., in Alexandria. She was the widow of Charles W. Whitley, World I veteran.

Mrs. Thomas died Nov. 25 in Freedmen's Hospital after suffering a heart attack in her basement apartment at 1350 Monroe St., NW.

HER BODY was scheduled for burial in Potter's Field when the mixup occurred. The coroner said a son, Earl Lee Thomas, refused to accept the body for burial. Police later reported that he is an inmate in the District Workhouse.

Since then, a nephew claimed the exhumed body and asked the coroner's office to hold it until the weekend while relatives arranged the funeral, Dr. MacDonald said.

He identified the nephew as John Brock, an aide at Emergency Hospital.

The second funeral service was held for Mrs. Whitley at Bacon's Funeral Home, 1722 Seventh St., NW. The first was conducted Friday.

ELISH Mt. C. Mills, pastor Canaan Baptist Church, officiated at brief services at 9 a.m. Wednesday. The second burial was at District government expense.

Others surviving Mrs. Whitley are four sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Alsop, Caroline County, Va.; Miss Mildred Ford, Alexandria; Miss Cecilia Ford of Washington, and Mrs. Catherine Saunders, Mount Vernon, and a brother John Ford of Washington.

THE BIG STEP— Michael Robinson, age seven, took the final step toward becoming a citizen of the U.S., at naturalization proceedings at U.S. District Court, Tuesday. Formerly of Germany, Michael is shown with Mr. and Mrs. Loris M. Robinson of 508 Park Rd., NW, his parents.

THEY'RE AMERICANS NOW— Among 89 persons who became American citizens at naturalization ceremonies in U.S. District Court before Judge John J. Sirica were Dorothy Louise Parker Byles, 1245 Kenyon St., NW. (left) and Mrs. Winifred Lindo, 5122 Fifth St., NW, both formerly of Jamaica, West Indies.

Michael Lorvoh Robinson, age seven, is all American now.

The youngster was one of 87 persons who were naturalized, Tuesday, in ceremonies at the U.S. District Court.

WHEN MICHAEL came to this country from Germany, he spoke only the tongue of his native land.

Now, three years later, he has adapted himself so completely to the American way of life, that he not only speaks English fluently, but has forgotten the German language.

Michael was brought here in 1954 by his adopted parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loris M. Robinson, of 508 Park Rd., NW, through the "Brown Baby" program co-sponsored by Mrs. Mabel Grammer, who at that time resided in Germany, and the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspaper.

A CURLY-HAIRED boy with a mischievous grin, he was accompanied at Tuesday's proceedings by Mr. and Mrs. Robinson.

As the oath of allegiance was administered to the applicants, Michael joined others in raising his right hand and attempted to repeat the words.

"He understood the meaning of the ceremony because we had tutored him," Mr. Robinson, an employee at the Naval Gun Factory, said later.

Michael, a second grade pupil at the Park View School likes sports, especially football. Cowboys are his favorites on television.

WHAT DOES he want to be when he grows up?

"I think sometimes he may be a minister," says Mrs. Robinson, a teacher at the Giddings School.

"He attends Sunday School at the Asbury Methodist Church each Sunday, and following instruction, he likes to open the Bible and pretend he is preaching."

Mrs. Robinson is on the Sunday School Board of Education.

AMONG OTHERS naturalized was Mrs. Winifred Lindo, from Jamaica, West Indies, who has lived in the U.S. for the past years.

Mrs. Lindo, of 5122 Fifth St., NW, is a bride of less than a month. She was the former Miss Winifred Yearde.

Presently attending a business school, Mrs. Lindo hopes to become a secretary. Her husband is a student of civil engineering at Howard University.

Wife found guilty in mate's death

WASHINGTON

Mrs. Dolly Mae Love, 39, was found guilty of manslaughter in District Court Tuesday in the fatal stabbing of her husband, Army Sergeant Eugene Love, 41, in their basement apartment at 226 C St., NE, June 15.

Judge Edward Tamm deferred sentence until a report from the probation office. He committed Mrs. Love to jail instead of allowing her to remain on bond. She faces a sentence of 5-15 years in prison.

Police quoted Mrs. Love as saying she grabbed a butcher knife and stabbed her husband after he came home intoxicated and knocked her to the floor with his fist.

SHE TESTIFIED she had been mistreated by her husband most of their 11 years of marriage. They had no children and lived alone.

Surprise witnesses Mrs. Hattie Avery, 815 Hamilton St., NE, and John Elliot, 712 Hamlin St., SE, testified that they had heard Mrs. Avery say she would kill her husband some day.

Sergeant Love, a native of Jefferson, S.C., was stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va., and had 16 years of military service.

Mrs. Love, a native of Georgia, admitted she killed her husband in self-defense. Assistant U.S. Attorney Joel D. Black prosecuted the case.
