AFRO news tipsters earn holiday loot

Aware that extra cash comes in handy during this season of the year — with Christmas less than a month away—news tipsters this week were busy calling in information which developed into AFRO news stories.

The top news tip award of the week, a check for $5 went to a caller who informed this office of the death of a widely known church and fraternal worker.

Three persons were selected to receive checks for $3 each for timely newstips. These tips included a fatal stabbing, a matron who died in a fire and an East Baltimore cutting.

* * *

IN THE CATEGORY of $2 checks for news tips there are five persons.

These callers informed this newspaper of a fire in which a family lost everything—including, a turkey for Thanksgiving; gave additional information on the fatal fire; an incident at School 181 in which the Police Department's K-9 Corps were pressed into service to look for a suspect; more details on a fatal stabbing and the death of a mother of eight.

Eleven persons, including seven reporting automobile accidents, were selected to receive checks for $1 each. Others in this category tips on a wedding anniversary, the illness of a well known Baltimoran, and two persons giving additional information on the school incident.

* * *

CHECKS ARE sent out every week for news tips and it is simple to earn cash — including Christmas money — this way.

Here is all you do:

CALL MU-5-6015, 6016, 1812 and 1813. If no answer, call LA. 3-3024.

A sum of $50 is set aside each week for NEWS TIPS and NEWS PHOTOS and there are winners every week.

Winners are selected on the basis of the newsworthiness of the tips called in, and in case of more than one tip on a single incident the first person to telephone this office gets priority.

Her mother, Mrs. Georgiana Chester, is the head of the music department at the school. The entire music department there is furnished with Hi-Fi equipment.

Plan appeal of Boys Club decision

"We will appeal the decision immediately."

This is what Thurmond L. Dodson attorney, told the AFRO Wednesday in commenting on District Court Judge Burnita S. Matthews' decision that the Metropolitan Police Boys Club is a private agency.

"Its practice of segregation is the practice of a private organization," the judge ruled.

The judge dismissed all complaints argued by Mr. Dodson against the Police Club on Oct. 2 in behalf of a colored youth who was turned down for admission to a white branch because of his color.

* * *

JUDGE MATTHEWS, who heard the case without a jury, further ruled that the court "is not empowered to interfere with segregation practices of a private corporation."

Mr. Dodson represented Welker C. Mitchell, 18, 1119 Lamont St., NW, who sought membership but was refused in one of the Club's white branches.

Mr. Dodson argued vigorously that the Club "is an agency of District Government and therefore Mitchell was deprived of his constitutional right when refused."

Mitchell, the son of Curtis P. Mitchell, attorney, and now a freshman at Howard University, testified he tried to join Club No. 5 at Ninth and K Sts., SE, on Sept. 7, 1955, but was turned down while in the company of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, and Bishop Smallwood Williams.

Mr. Dodson claimed that the Club "is the last Island of Jim Crow in the District."

* * *

MOREOVER, CLUB officials testified in court that the 179-member board of directors include 54 police officers, chief of police, 61 District government officials and two judges.

It was also testified by Club officials that the Club uses District-owned property rent-free and more than 75 per cent of the $315,382.47 funds collected this year were solicited by policemen on and off-duty.

Judge Matthews ruled that "it is well settled that aid given by a government to a private corporation is not enough in itself to change the character of the corporation from private to public."

* * *

"THE CLUB was not set up as a private corporation in a scheme to have the D. C. government to get around the Fifth Amendment."

With a membership of approximately 22,000 boys (13,000 colored) the aim of the club is to develop correct speech, sports and clean habits and to lessen juvenile delinquency among the boys of Washington.

Although the salaries of the captain and policemen who have assignments to duty with the clubs amount to about $50,000 yearly, Judge Matthews ruled "the boys clubs are not financed from any public treasury."

"If each time a government lends its assistance to a private institution it were to acquire that institution as an arm of the government," she ruled, then the government would indeed become a many armed thing."

The defendants in the suit included the Boys Club and Commissioners Alvin C. Welling and Robert E. McLaughlin who during the hearing told the AFRO: "I have helped those people (Boys Club) to start integration."

Ike names general to contract body

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—The appointment of Maj. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan, U.S. Army (retired), as a member and executive vice chairman of the Government Contract Committee, was announced by the White House Friday.

President Eisenhower appointed General Ryan to the new position to ease the burdens being carried by Vice President Nixon, chairman. Mr. Nixon has found that the demands upon his time make it impossible for him to carry all of the duties he has been performing.

Ike approves White as civil rights unit head

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—Before his physicians ordered him to bed Monday, President Eisenhower approved the selection of W. Wilson White, 51, of Philadelphia, as Assistant Attorney General to head the new Civil Rights Division in the Justice Department.

In a change of strategy the White House made known that the nomination of Mr. White would be sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Mrs. Anne Wheaton, associate White House press secretary, said Mr. White will resign his post as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Office of Legal Counsel in the Justice Department and will be given a recess appointment by President Eisenhower as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Civil Rights Division.

* * *

OBVIOUSLY THIS change in strategy indicates that the Administration is not running away from a fight with Southerners over the civil rights issue.

Mr. White's nomination will be referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Sen. James O. Eastland, Dixiecrat, of Mississippi, is chairman. The membership of this committee also includes such arch civil rights foes as Sens. Olin D. Johnson, S.C.; John L. McClellan, Ark.; and Sam Ervin, N.C., all Democrats.

Originally, Attorney General William P. Rogers had planned to bypass the Judiciary Committee and avoid a fight over confirmation by simply transferring Mr. White from the Office of Legal Counsel to the Civil Rights Division.

* * *

IT IS expected that he will be grilled by Southern Democratic members when he appears for questioning before the Senate Judiciary Committee because he was responsible for the drafting of the proclama to Little Rock to enforce the Federal court order for desegregation of Central High School.

As the head of the Civil Rights Division, Mr. White will be responsible for instituting and prosecuting the suits which the Civil Rights Act authorizes the Attorney General to bring to enjoin threatened deprivations of the right to vote and violations of other civil rights.

In addition, he will also be responsible for enforcement of the Federal criminal civil rights statutes.

Federal job lack may cause minority to vote against GOP

By LOUIS LAUTIER (For NNPA News Service

Little or no advancement has been made in the political recognition of colored voters through appointments to office since the Taft Administration, despite the progressively higher educational level achieved by colored people.

In the Taft Administration colored persons held the Ministerships to Liberia and Haiti. Those posts have since been raised to Ambassadorships, but only one of them is now filled by a colored person.

Richard L. Jones of Chicago is the Ambassador to Liberia. A white man is the Ambassador to Haiti.

The late William H. Lewis, who was a noted Boston lawyer, was an assistant Attorney General during the Taft Administration. J. Ernest Wilkins of Chicago, assistant Secretary of Labor, holds a comparable position.

In the Truman Administration no colored person held a Little Cabinet post.

* * *

DURING THE Taft Administration colored persons held such Presidential offices (requiring Senate confirmation) as Register of the Treasury, Collector of Customs, Collector of Internal Revenue for New York, Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia, and several postmasterships.

James C. Napier of Nashville, Tenn., and William T. Vernon of the AME Church served as Registers of the Treasury under Taft.

President Woodrow Wilson appointed no colored man, to any job other than Minister to Liberia. He even named a white man as Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia.

In 1921, the late Charles C. Cottrell of Toledo, Ohio, sought to be the Register of the Treasury.

Mr. Cottrell had served as Internal Revenue Collector at Honolulu in the Taft Administration and had helped to manage the Harding campaign among colored voters in 1920.

But President Harding would not appoint Cottrell as Register of the Treasury and named a fellow white Ohioan to the post.

* * *

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER appointed Louis B. Toomer of Savannah, Ga., a banker, as Register of the Treasury in 1953, after the late Sen. Walter B. George (Dem., Ga.,) appealed to Mr. Eisenhower not to name Toomer as Collector of Customs at Savannah but to give him any post he chose outside of Georgia.

Mr. Toomer resigned in 1956 for the stated reason to take part in the Presidential campaign. The office of Register of the Treasury has since been abolished.

The last colored Collector of Customs was the late Walter Cohen of New Orleans appointed by President Harding.

No colored person has been appointed postmaster at other than an all-colored town since the Taft Administration.

* * *

THE MOST consummate American politician of modern times was perhaps President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He named colored Democrats to the jobs which had been traditionally held by colored Republicans.

Such as, Lester Walton as Minister to Liberia and Dr. William J. Thompkins of Kansas City as Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia.

Roosevelt added one new job to the list. He appointed William H. Hastie as judge of the U.S. Court for the Virgin Islands.

Another innovation during the Roosevelt Administration was the appointment of race relations advisers — a breed of jobholder, which in some instances, rendered very valuable service to both his agency and colored people, but for the most part, had no voice in policymaking.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN boldly departed from custom. His first departure was the naming of Judge Hastie as Governor of the Virgin Islands in 1946.

He was dean of the Howard University Law School and took leave just before World War 2 started to serve as civilian aide to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

Judge Hastie did an excellent job in the War Department in influencing policy respecting the use of colored troops, handling problems of segregation, discrimination and violence directed at them in Army camps, and also handling complaints of race or religious discrimination in employment at plants furnishing services or material for the Army.

Judge Hastie added to his stature when he resigned because the Air Force sought to bypass him on policy question after he had opposed the establishment of a segregated Air Force piloting training school at Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

THUS, WHEN Judge Hastie was persuaded to speak in the 1948 Presidential campaign in which Truman was pitted against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, GOP candidate, and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and, Fielding Wright of Mississippi, the Dixiecrat ticket, no campaign (except President Truman) drew larger crowds.

Truman appointed Hastie a judge of the U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals of Philadelphia. He also appointed Irvin C. Mallison of Chicago as a judge of the U.S. Customs Court.

The two unusual—appointments of Mr. Wilkins and Scovel Richardson, first as a member of the Federal Parole Board and later as a judge of the U.S. Customs Court. Of course, he will name a colored person to replace Judge Herman E. Moore, who is retiring from the Virgin Islands Court.

But the Eisenhower Administration will have to do more than it has done if appointment to office is to be made one of the campaign issues by Republicans in 1960.
