Rites held for pupil at No. 452

Funeral services were held yesterday (Thursday) for the youth who didn't join the trick-or-treat on Halloween.

Sixteen-year-old Calvin Dial, 400 Wilson St., was stricken on Halloween night with an illness and taken to Johns Hopkins Hospital where he stayed until the time of his death on Saturday.

Born in Baltimore, Calvin was the son of the late Joseph Dial and Mrs. Corrine Dial.

FORMERLY a student at Joseph C. Briscoe, No. 451, he was transferred to General Vocational School, No. 452 at the beginning of this semester.

Mrs. Johnson, Calvin's sister, a resident of Chicago, said her brother who wanted to be a mechanic liked to draw. "He could draw anything."

In describing him she said he liked to read "especially the Bible."

Young Calvin was buried from the church of his uncle, the Rev. Edward Litmon, 400 Wilson St. The Rev. A. J. Webb conducted the services there.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Corrine Dial, three George; and three sisters; Mesdames Annie Lee Dial, Lucille Harris and Miss Carrie Anna Dial.

Woman held for jury in 'rabbit slaying'

A 44-year-old woman who allegedly struck her boyfriend with a butcher knife when he attempted to strike her in the face was ordered held for trial in action of the grand jury, Tuesday.

Miss Hallie Smith, 1427 Arville Ave., was charged with causing the death of Douglas Jones, 46, a North Carolina born construction worker on August 9.

Lt. George Deuchler, Northwestern district police, testified at the Central Police Court hearing that the accused woman admitted stabbing Hickson in the chest but said "I didn't intend to do it."

The slaying occurred around 8:15 p.m. August 9 in the back yard of her Argyle Ave. apartment.

* * *

POLICE SAID Miss Smith was in her yard cutting grass to feed two pet rabbits she kept in the basement, when Hickson approached her and started a dispute.

Witnesses found Hickson lying on his back with blood flowing from a single wound on the side of his chest. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Provident Hospital.

Final rites Wednesday for dressmaker

"A pattern seems to follow in this sort of experience — when a child is born, dedicate that life to God — today at the close of that life we bring her again and offer her back to God."

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, pastor of Douglas Memorial Community Church was speaking Wednesday at the funeral of Mrs. Ruby Russell, 71, 1001 Brantley Ave., who died Saturday at her home. She had been ill for five years.

"She, like all of us, represents personality this being the crowning aspect of the whole life.

"She has now left her house to go to the father's house. May you the children of the family ennoble her dreams by being knit together in a bond of sympathetic understanding so that no cutting edge will be able to sever the bond which unites," the Rev. Bascom concluded.

THE FUNERAL services were held from a Brantley funeral home. Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Mrs. Russell was a well-known dressmaker and a member of Perkins Square Baptist Church for 30 years.

It was said that she could look at any garment and make it without a pattern. For over 30 years, she designed clothes and hats for women and children. She created her own designs.

Mrs. Russell is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Beatrice H. Watson, Mrs. Evelyn Dobson, Miss Emma Russell and Miss Myrtle Russell; four sons, Douglas, Charles, Thomas and Vernon Russell, and a sister, Mrs. Ellen Stevens, all of Baltimore.

Also surviving are 30 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Russell was a native of Baltimore and the widow of James Arville Russell, who before his death conducted a transfer business in the 1400 block W. Baltimore St. She was the daughter of the late Levin and Tamer West.

Government not liable in sinking of Nora V

The Government is not liable for damages in the sinking of a fishing schooner in the Chesapeake Bay three years ago which cost the lives of three persons and left six others stranded in the water 20 hours before they were rescued.

So ruled Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen in Federal Court last Friday.

In a written opinion the jurist held that the fishing boat Nora V did not strike the wreckage of a sunken Navy large shorty before it went down in July, 1954.

DROWNED in the tragedy were:

James N. Gosnell, an engineer at School No. 122.

Mrs. Marie Owings, wife of principal Samuel E. Owings.

Mrs. Leila Jennings, a teacher at School No. 122.

Those rescued were:

Mrs. Zelda Gosnell, and her son, Morris, now, 15 years old; Mr. Owings; John L. Burchette, a public school engineer; Charles W. Jones, the school principal, and Capt. Harry Hendricks.

FOLLOWING THE tragedy, Mrs. Gosnell filed a suit for $115,000 on behalf of herself and her son.

Judge Thomsen said that based on testimony of experts the Nora V was sunk by an object weighing about 2,000 pounds and floating vertically in the water.

However, he pointed out that the Navy and Coast Guard acted quickly to prevent debris from the sunken barge to float in the area.

Tavern owner freed of drunk driving charges

A local physician, testifying that Dr. Lizette H. Smith's court in Catonsville on Nov. 9, told the court that the symptoms of diabetic coma and those of intoxication are indistinguishable were by a physician or a person who has experienced diabetic coma.

The testimony was given by Dr. Charles T. Woodland in defense of Clifton G. Nichols, 49, of Catonsville, Md., who had been charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol, following an Oct. 4 collision with another car on a Catonsville road.

As the result of Dr. Woodland's testimony, Mr. Nichols was found not guilty of the drunken driving charge, but was fined $50 for reckless driving.

* * *

MR. NICHOLS is owner of the Pleasant View Inn, a tavern located near Henryton, Md. which he has operated for 10 years.

Police officers told the court that following the accident when they attempted to arrest Mr. Nichols he became unruly, resisted arrest and wept throughout the incident.

It was also testified that Mrs. Nichols obtained her husband's release from jail and took him to Lutheran Hospital in Baltimore where he was treated for a cut lip.

Subsequently, he suffered a diabetic coma and was removed to Johns Hopkins Hospital, it was reported.

REPRESENTED by Attorneys Milton B. Allen and George L. Russell, Mr. Nichols testified that he had been subject to diabetic illness for some time.

It was also stated by the physician that insulin shock such as Mr. Nichols experienced may occur after the suffered has failed to eat any one of three meals a day.

Testimony revealed that Mr. Nichols had been unable to have a noon-day meal on Oct. 4.
