NIGERIAN LIBRARIAN—Gobole N. Nwikina, Deputy Chief Librarian Eastern Region Library Board, Ministry of Welfare, Enugu, Nigeria is seen holding a biography of Edgar Allan Poe in the Poe Room of the Enoch Pratt Free Library. Standing next to Mr. Nwikina is Arthur H. Parson Jr., director of the Library.

Nigerian studies new methods at Pratt Library

A 30-year-old deputy chief librarian from Nigeria is now in our city observing library method and techniques.

The Nigerian is Gbole N. Nwikina of the Eastern Region Library Board, Nigerian Ministry of Welfare, Enugu, Nigeria. He arrived at the Enoch Pratt Free Library on Monday and plans to leave this Tuesday.

Under a UNESCO fellowship, he has spent seven weeks in the United States, learning about the organization and operation of public library service, with special reference to extension work.

On leaving Enoch Pratt Free Library Science; Columbia University, New York City, for one week.

After leaving the United States next month, Mr. Nwikina will confer for two days with officials of UNESCO's libraries division in France, then will conclude his studies in Ghana.

THE PUBLIC library movement actually started in Nigeria after the last war.

Prior to this British Counsel had established reading rooms for the people which consisted of a few books and magazines. The Counsel has since turned over these rooms to the Nigerian government.

UNESCO has decided to develop libraries in the eastern region of Nigeria to show the other part of the country what can be done in the realm of enlightenment and for that reason Mr. Nwikina was sent here to learn American library techniques.

The Nigerian is mainly concerned with extension service, children and young adult services, administration of public libraries of the United States.

While attending the University of Manchester at Manchester, England, he had the opportunity to use annual reports of the Enoch Pratt Free Library.

In the search for this knowledge he has visited such leading cities as Rochester, Hartford and New York City.

EARLIER THIS year, he visited Denmark, Sweden and Norway, then toured country and state public libraries in Ohio.

A native of Kono Agoni division of Nigeria, he received his high school and college education at the Methodist College, Uzuokoli, Nigeria. He later attended the School of Library Science at the University of Manchester, Manchester, England.

He is a member of the Library Association of London, West Africa Library Association and the Public Library division of the American Library Association.

FROM 1952-54 he worked with the United States information center in Lagos, Nigeria as librarian of the center.

A Christian, he believes in the Methodist faith.

"The only library in Nigeria that can be compared with the libraries in the United States is the one at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria.

"Our libraries can not be compared with those of the United States in terms of standards, staff employees and modern facilities," said Mr. Nwikina in an appraisal of this nation's libraries and those of Nigeria.

The librarian is married to Winifred Nwikina, a midwife and a housewife. They have two girls, Nubaribo, 2, and Ekieny, nine months.

FVW MEETING

The monthly State Council of Administration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Maryland, will be held at the home of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, 205 Union St., Cumberland, Md., on Sunday, Nov. 3, at 2 p.m.

Sigmas back rights fight

Zeta Sigma chapter of Phi Beta Sigma, at its meeting, here Thursday, backed the national social action committee's aims for equal rights.

The committee will center its activities on seeking equality of wages and working conditions for minority groups, elimination of discrimination in Federal, State, county, and Municipal employment.

Plans were also discussed for the chapter's entertaining of the regional conference of the fraternity, here, in May, 1958.

* * *

THE CHAPTER will hold its annual dance on Nov. 27.

The president, Vernon Greene, announced that every member of the chapter is now a member of the NAACP.

The meeting was held in the home of William Russell, and was attended by the following:

Vernon Greene, Dr. Robert Hill, George S. Whyte, Leroy Gibson, Dr. C. Franklin Phillips, Douglas Camper, Edward Wilkins, Leo C. Wood.

U. Simpson Stubbs, Lemmuel Lewis, William Dorsey, Ernest Lee, U. Theodore Hayes, Dr. Cæsar Jones, Edgar Draper, Dr. J. E. T. Camper, Joseph Jenkins and Socrates Saunders.

Off the Beaten Path

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

The halls of the Courthouse have taken on the air of a Roman Holiday for reporters as they have watched many of Baltimore's most talked-about figures come and go in the corridors leading to the States Attorney's office and the Grand Jury witness room.

* * *

WEDNESDAY WAS a rare day.

About 10:10 a.m. when the scene was lolling between boredom and just plain routine, the word came that Charlie Burns was being "sent for" to come from the Pen and testify before the Grand Jury which has been sniffing around trying to find out what's been going on behind the taxpayers' backs in the now renowned Baltimore Police Department.

I'll vow the Queen of England was never awaited with such expectancy as Mr. Burns who was sentenced to serve a ten-year term on a numbers charge.

He was arrested after the May 1 raid on an apartment in the 3400 block Auchentorolly Terrace at which time he said he was "framed."

Mr. Burns spent almost two hours talking over things with the Grand Jury but if you ask me before he went in to the mysterious room he looked somewhat tired of it all.

* * *

ALTHOUGH HE was handcuffed when he entered the courthouse, as he came from the States Attorney's office I noticed no handcuffs and his hands were behind him — not in front as they were while the bracelets were decorating his wrists.

He was dressed in a grey business suit with a sweater.

Another witness, Businessman Henry Parks, looked the part of a magazine model in a dark suit and white, white shirt.

MR. PARKS, dubbed the "Sausage King" because he is president of the million dollar enterprise which bears his name, arrived 20 minutes after the stated 11 a.m. time.

He shed his smart, top coat, peeped inside the Grand Jury waiting room and remained in the corridor for awhile.

* * *

BUT — the center of all eyes attention was Mrs. Juanita Jones, 3442 Auchentorolly Terrace, who was also a witness.

Always the winner for smart clothes and the 'know-how' when it comes to wearing them Mrs. Jones seemed to step right out of a fashion magazine.

Her hair, as usual, was impeccable in each strand of the soft short bob carefully in place.

Topping a gray tweed suit of high fashion was a white Ermine collar.

Her new-type-long-toed slippers were black suede while her gloves were soft, soft, expensive black kid.

Around her slim ankle was a gold charm bracelet.

Her jeweled fingers sparkled and sparkled.

She arrived at 10:30 a.m. and without being the least bit flustered awaited her turn to testify, chatting sweetly all the while with reporters and folks in the halls.

Mrs. Etta Mae Johnson, 1803 Pressman St., was swanky and a vision of Fall in soft brown, attire.

Twinkling from her brown hair were golden - tinted wisps and her brown suede bag and slippers matched her pretty brown gloves.

Her brown tweed coat had flecks of yellow and green intermingled.

* * *

NEITHER OF the ladies wore hats but obvious in his gray plaid cap was Produce man Philip Taylor, who showed up at 10:10 a.m.

Featuring a long cigar in a holder and puffing frequently, Mr. Taylor sported a gray suede jacket which he held back to show off a powder blue teashirt and dark corduroy trousers.

His black high-topped shoes had natural colored leather soles a good half-inch thick.

* * *

CERTAINLY A complicated document is the writ which brought Mr. Burns out of the Pen for a brief time; was entitled in Latin thus: writ of habeas corpus ad testificadum.

Loosely, the meaning of the words is: "Let's have the body for the purpose of testifying."

Signed by Judge S. Ralph Warnken who was sitting in Criminal Court Part I, the Sheriff's car sped to the Pen and submitted the document to show that Mr. Burns was to appear before the Grand Jury.

A champ grows up

Baltimore's spelling prodigy, little Gloria Lockerman, isn't so little anymore.

Now quite a young lady, the child who captured the hearts of America's televiewers as a champion speller on a popular quiz show, celebrated her 15th birthday Tuesday very quietly.

"I didn't have a party," she said Wednesday, "but I did get money and clothes."

OBSERVATIONS ON becoming 15: "Well... I don't know... I feel the same as I felt before — but I wish I were 16."

Young Gloria said she would to be 16, because, "I could get a drivers' license — I wouldn't get a car but I would like to have my license," she said with logical reasoning.

"I am still undecided as to what I would like to be," she added. "... Maybe a teacher, a doctor — or an actress... I said maybe," she emphasized quiet clearly.

Now a little over five feet tall, Gloria weighs about "96 or 100 pounds."

* * *

SHE SAYS, "I STILL wear my hair in a pony tail, but I would like to get it cut... I've been wearing stockings since Easter."

Asked about her hobbies, Gloria said, "I still like to read and I take violin lessons—but I wouldn't say that was a hobby."

An eleventh grade pupil at Western High School, the captivating child said "French is my favorite subject."

She refused to commit herself as to which teacher was her favorite so she diplomatically answered:

"That's hard to say — I like them all."

She will graduate from high school in 1959.

Program staged at Banneker

Members of the intermediate opportunity class at the Benjamin Banneker Elementary School No. 113 recently staged a program based on a visit to Fort McHenry.

Among the members of the class are the following:

William Ross, James Clark, Gilda Jackson, Mary O'Dorns, Liams, Otho Greech, Pearl Austin, Larry O'Dorns, Martha Wilkins, Cody Wilson, Edgar Reed, Edward Harris, Lewis Johnson, Gilbert Dodd.

Hugh Ross, Robert L. Ross, Randolph Jackson, Lester Harris, Audrey Kernes, Rece Smith, Robert Ruckers.

Mrs. Terrie W. Gilmor is the teacher. Mrs. Florence Gloster is the principal.

BUNDLE'S OF JOY — Here are some of the children now in the Department of Public Welfare's adoption agency who are in need of help and loving care. From left to right: sits Nan, 7 months; Ronnie, 6 months; Diane, 10 months; and Bobbie, 5 months. Some of these children have been awaiting adoption since birth.

"I'M SUSAN" — That's the name of this bright eyed young lady who is awaiting adoption at the Department of Public Welfare. She's two years old.

Semi-finals in King-Queen contest at Douglass

The semi-finalists of the Queen and King Contest at Douglass High School were announced Monday.

The pupils who reached the semi-finals were:

Raymond Jolley, Patricia McClary, Amlie McIntyre, Kay Neal, Marian Cherry, Paul Wilson, Barbara Harris, Luther Brickers, Lawrence Hearn, Catherine Brown, Shirley Taylor and Marilyn Foote.

Friday marks the end of the contest. The winners will be crowned on November 8.

A bundle of joy is waiting for you

A bundle of joy is yours for the taking.

That's the consensus of opinion around the Department of Public Welfare's Adoption bureau while that agency is confronted with the problem of how to find permanent homes for 38 attractive children.

Because 20 little girls and 18 boys ranging in age from two months to eight years are literally all dressed up with no place to go, it is the hope of the department that the public will take an interest in the adoption of homeless children under their care.

Some of the children have been awaiting adoption since shortly after birth. Others were brought to the agency by mothers who found themselves unable to care for their children.

The department has been able to alleviate the immediate problem by placing the children in foster homes.

They are primarily concerned, however, with finding permanent homes for the children in order that they might be given the opportunity to lead normal lives.

* * *

OF THE 38 CHILDREN now available for adoption, some are Catholic but the majority are Protestants.

The group includes seven girls and seven boys ranging in age from two months to one year; 11 girls and three boys who are in the 1 to 2 age group; and one girl and five boys who range in age from two to three years.

There are also a girl and two boys in the 5 to 4 group, and one eight-year-old youth available for adoption.

THERE ARE five steps necessary for the completion of an adoption.

1. A couple must contact the Department of Public Welfare at 1500 Greenmount Ave., either by phone at MUlberry 3600 or by a personal visit to arrange for an interview.

2. At the first interview attended by both parents, the couple must fill out application forms.

3. A visit to the home of the prospective parents follows.

4. A doctor's certificate must be obtained by both parents.

5. Three references, including that of a minister must be filed with the department.

* * *

WITH THE completion of the above procedures, a child may be available for placement within 60 days.

Mothers are not required to give up their jobs if they adopt a child. All the department requires is that assurance is given that the new baby will get plenty of love and care.

The adoption bureau is under the supervision of Miss Alice L. Shugars, district supervisor.

Two of the case workers within the department are Miss Dorothy Crosswell and Mrs. Louise Gilliam.

NAACP honors top workers tonight

The mammoth Victory Awards Night celebration of the Baltimore NAACP chapter's successful membership drive will be held tonight (Friday) in the lecture room of Sharp Memorial Methodist Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts., beginning at 8 p.m.

Assurance that the campaign efforts have been most favorable has come from Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, branch president, who has announced:

"The campaign has been a wonderful success."

Some 30 awards will be presented to district leaders and other workers who have actively participated in the membership campaign.

Two two award winners already named are Mrs. Susie Murphy, 3029 Gwynn Falls Pkwy., whose recruitment of 398 members wins her a gold loving cup, and Mrs. Sarah Diggs, a residence hall supervisor at Morgan State College, whose 297 memberships brought in wins her a trip to the 1958 Annual NAACP Convention in Cleveland, Ohio.

MRS. JACKSON also announced that merchants are donating refreshments to be served workers at the final report meeting.

This meeting will be held Tuesday night at the Sharp St. Community House.

At a meeting on October 29, the Rev. L. R. Miller, pastor of Unity Christian Church, reported 110 memberships and a total of $845, which included his life membership.

Joseph Strickland, head of the youth division, submitted 29 memberships and a total of $73.

Mrs. Beatrice Martin of Douglas Memorial Church, turned in 55 memberships and a total of $102.

Mrs. Phoebe Murphy representing the Apostolic Faith Church submitted 23 memberships and a total of $51.

Observance staged at Johnson Hi

An assembly program was held at Harvey Johnson Junior High School No. 106, in observance of United Nation's Day.

Helen Brown, a ninth grade pupil at the school, was mistress of ceremonies. George Thompson also a ninth grader, read the scripture.

Speeches concerning the UN were presented by Helen Charles Gordon, Laver Cook, and Archie Adams.

Spanish songs were sung by Lois Lineberger, Delores Richardson, Elizabeth Jackson, Cynthia Alton, Jacqueline Whitney, Roberta Woodhouse, Cynthia Dixon and Phyllis Hendricks.

* * *

IN THE PROGRAM, Constance Cook and Roberta Woodhouse recited the Lord's Prayer and the pledge to the flag in Spanish. Linwood Scott played three coronet solos and Cynthia Dixon and Phyllis Hendricks recited poems.

A movie, "Pattern for Peace," climaxed the program.

Mrs. Maggie Robinson was chairman. The assisting teachers were Meredith Addision, Calvin Glascoe, Miss Jennie Thomas, Mrs. Ruby Gill and Miss Gloria Ford, director of music.

Southern High School's band presented a recital at the school in which they played selections representing different nations of the world.

Bainbridge ships its last grads

There was no lack of bugles Sunday as nearly 2,000 recruits put on the usual sparkling graduation show at the Bainbridge Naval Training Center.

But unless some unforeseable change is ordered, there were the last groups to receive their basic naval training at Bainbridge.

Inside an information center outside the main gate under which a big sign read, "Save Bainbridge," a man said a lot of local business will be hurt when Bainbridge cuts personnel from 12,000 to about 5,000.

Bainbridge was first activated in 1942 and by V-J Day had trained more than 240,000 young men and women. There was a form of deactivation between 1947 and 1951 but the program was restored during the Korean conflict.

Captain W. A. Cockell, center commander, took the last graduation calmly. Rear Admiral Francis M. Hughes told the graduates they stood for a time of "transition in order to take out the old and make room for the new."

* * *

ADMIRAL HUGHES pointed out that the Navy decided to economize to support the transition to new naval concepts. He spoke of atomic submarines and super-carriers.

Recently resigned Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson had ordered all branches of the armed services to make cuts in order to economize.

So as the ceremonies were over, the band played "Goodnight Sweetheart" and then, "Anchors Aweigh."

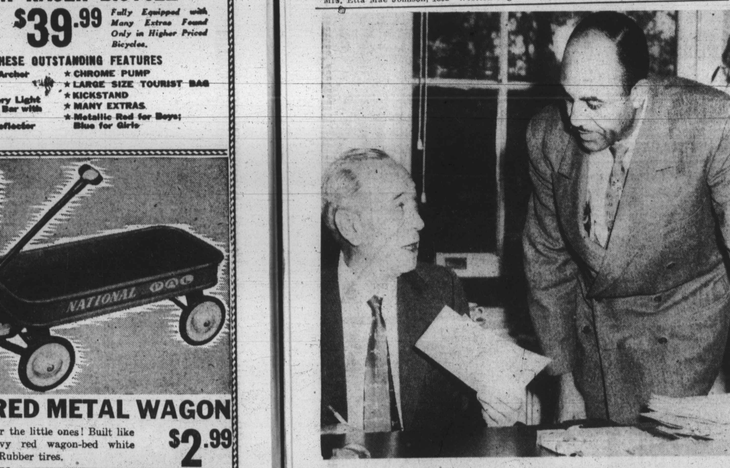
AVAILABLE — That's the predicament 2-year-old Jackie finds himself in. He's one of 38 attractive children available for adoption at the Department of Public Welfare.

SEND FOR ME—That's the plea two-year-old John makes as he awaits the arrival of new parents to take him to a permanent home.

SORORITY FOUNDER'S DAY AT TUBMAN YWCA

DURHAM, N. C.—Dr. Rose Butler Browne, chairman, of the education department at North Carolina College, was the Founder's Day speaker for the Lambda chapter of the Tau Gamma Delta Sorority at the Harriet Tubman YWCA Sunday.

Mrs. Ruth G. Reaves is basilus of the sorority and Mrs. Lizzie Jones, president of the local chapter.



ON THE JOB — In conference with his supervisor, Richard Wickes, director of Baltimore county's Probation Department, Robert A. Burkett of Elkridge, Md., gets a briefing on his duties as the county's first colored probation officer. The Morgan College grad joined the department on October 16.

Morgan grad named first county probation officer

"I've always been interested in people.

"I'm interested in knowing why they act as they do. That's why I'm sure I'll like this job."

That was the comment Tuesday morning of a 45-year-old Baltimore born Morgan State College graduate who 18 days ago was appointed the first probation officer for Baltimore County.

Robert M. Burkett of Elkridge, Md., became a member of the Probation Department's seven man investigation staff in the county court house at Towson on October 16.

The work of the former industrial relations secretary for the Columbus, Ohio Urban League is concerned with juvenile, criminal and domestic cases.

PRIOR TO WORKING with the Urban League, Mr. Burkett was director of personnel for a local manufacturing firm.

As a probation officer he is working under the supervision of Richard Wickes, director of the Probation Department.

Mr. Burkett is a graduate of Douglass High School, Morgan, and Howard University, and has done advanced study in administration and supervision at Johns Hopkins University.

He is the husband of Mrs. Grace W. Burkett, an instructor at the Victory Elementary School in Fairfield.

The Burketts operate a summer camp for children at their Elkridge home.

They are the parents of a daughter, June 14, a pupil at Western High School, and a son, Robert Jr., 2.

Call goes out for volunteers

More volunteers are being sought by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association to join those who are already helping with final preparations for the 1957 Christmas Seal Sale.

The principal task during the last two weeks prior to the Seal Sale which begins on November 15 is stuffing seals for mailing. This is probably the most time consuming of all the many phases of Seal Sale preparations.

Of the total of more than 210,000 envelopes to be mailed to Baltimoreans, almost 100,000 were stuffed at a series of three Stuffing Parties recently held at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Free midday talks offered at library

Four free midday lectures relating to broad political, military, scientific and economic problems, have been scheduled for the Enoch Pratt Free Library next month.

Opening the new series at 12:30 p.m. on November 6, in the library's central hall, will be Ellis Ash, deputy director of the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency.

The second program, stressing "Britain's Role in the East-West Conflict," is to be given by Miss Vera Brittain, distinguished author and lecturer, on November 13.

Dr. George S. Benton, professor of meteorology at the Johns Hopkins University, has set as his subject for November 20, "The International Geophysical Year."

The last lecture of the month, titled "Coexistence: Industry and Trade," will be delivered on November 27 by Dr. Evsey D. Domar, professor of political economy at Hopkins.
