1. Fair employment practice (FEP) laws and enforcement power. Begin with city, county, state and federal government.
2. 100,000 registered voters in Baltimore City.
3. A judge on the Baltimore Bench and in the Federal District Court.
4. Integration in the state's reform schools and penal institutions.
5. Public hotels and restaurants open to all well-behaved citizens.

Not Druid Hill Park

Location of the Civic Center is going to take some 2,000 to 10,000 people to Druid Hill Park several nights a week and this means such an increase in automobile, streetcar, but and pedestrian traffic that it will depreciate the value of the residences in that immediate area and in the approaches to it, so that many people will find it no longer desirable to live there and will be compelled to move.

In addition, this area is closest to the residents of Woodbury, to those who live in Druid Park Drive, as well as to the colored people who live on Druid Hill, Madison Avenues and McCulloh Street areas.

It will mean that they will have to travel a longer distance in order to enjoy the quiet areas of the park.

In any dispute between the Park Board and the Mayor, we are for the Mayor. The Park Board has a long history as a Prima Donna and was not brought to book until the Mayor and Mrs. Marie O. H. Baumenschmidt and other civic organizations united to compel some resignations from the Park Board membership and oust the director of recreation.

The present Park Board permits its director, Harold S. Callowhill, to operate in a manner which, we think, does not benefit all the citizens. A complaint has been filed against him with the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

The Bureau of Parks and Recreation, which holds on to everything on which it gets its hands, has been particularly high-handed in suggesting what other city and state departments ought to do with their property.

All of this is aside from our main thesis — that the location of the Civic Center in Druid Hill Park seems to us highly undesirable.

The proposition has been kicked around for several months, and it is time a decision is made.

The difficulty seems to be that the present appropriation of 6 million dollars is not adequate. If the Inner Harbor or the Marsh Market areas will require additional appropriation, the Mayor ought to ask for it.

In the long run, it will not be to the physical benefit or the economic benefit of the city to locate a Civic Center in Druid Hill Park.

Thanks, Senator Beall

Senator J. Glenn Beall as a candidate in 1952 made a faithful promise that if he were elected, he would give his whole-hearted support to President Eisenhower.

Last week when visited by a delegation of Baltimore ministers representing the United Baptist Missionary Convention, he pledged that the jury trial amendment trotted out by the Dixiecrats to cripple the Civil Rights Bill would not get his support.

Senator Beall, a man of his word, kept both promises.

SPURNING THE honeyed overtures of the Southerners, he has consistently honored his oath to uphold and defend the Constitution.

He has stood behind the President and more importantly has never hesitated to use his vote to advance the cause of freedom and democracy.

His ability to see through the thinly-veiled stratagems of those who long to turn back the clock to 1863 was best illustrated by the question he posed during last week's conference with the Baptist ministers.

"If these people did not intend to violate the law," he asked, "why should they be so much concerned as to how they shall be tried?"

We think that was the crux of the whole issue.

THE SENATE, sadly enough, by heeding the devious machinations of the Southerners, reserved its sympathies for those who would break the law, rather than for the millions of citizens who for 85 long years have been their victims.

Senator Beall has clearly demonstrated that he is a man of strong humanitarian convictions, who agrees with the United States Supreme Court that the Constitution of his great nation makes no provision for second-class citizens.

It comes as no surprise that he has taken his rightful place in that band of modern Republicans, upon whom the party must depend for forward-looking leadership if it is to continue to enjoy the confidence of the majority of Americans.

Mr. Laukaitis replies

An AFRO reader has called our attention to a letter which has been mailed to postal patrons in the Waverly-Govan area, where few colored persons reside.

The letter, signed by William F. Laukaitis, the acting postmaster, calls attention to a number of existing job vacancies in the Baltimore postoffice.

The openings are for substitute clerks and substitute letter carriers, jobs paying up to $2.19 an hour. Added benefits include a liberal pension plan, up to 26 days vacation, leave when sick and low cost life insurance.

The AFRO queried Mr. Laukaitis, to determine whether his job announcement had been sent to all areas of the city in view of the fact that Civil Service examinations are being held now to fill permanent vacancies.

Mr. Laukaitis replied:

"... it is my intention to send one of these letters to each mailing address of the Baltimore Post Office.

"You understand, of course, that it is a tremendous undertaking to prepare and mail these letters, and the city is being covered by sections.

"Each household, however, will receive one in time for interested patrons to make application for participation in the Civil Service Examinations mentioned."

THE AFRO'S CREDO

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself—
Whether it has kept the faith with the common people;
Whether it has an other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured;
Whether it is fighting to get rid of slums, to provide jobs for everybody;
Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustice, race prejudice and the cowardice of compromise.

New Liza Heading South

Thinking Out Loud

By RALPH MATTHEWS

ALTHOUGH I HAVE been pretty sore about the way Congress is behaving itself on the Civil Rights bill, I cannot help but chuckle to myself over the letters I received from a number of infuriated Republicans who got sore over a recent column I wrote.

It seems in this piece I accused them of helping the Dixiecrats to sabotage the program which they vehemently denied. I think what aroused their ire was the following paragraphs:

"By a 71 to 18 victory the administration's civil rights bill exposed for the first time the true weakness of the South which has been bluffing and blustering against all such measures for the past 40 years.

"Although the South has always been blamed for the defeat of these measures in the past the very preponderance of this victory proves that the South would have been as helpless in the past as it was this week had it not been for an unholy alliance with Republicans. This proves that the real enemy of the colored people has always been those who pretended to be their friends, cutting their political throats while hiding behind the skirts of their accomplices."

One reader writes:

"FOR FAIRNESS I have found myself in agreement with many of your columns, but when you made your vicious attack on the GOP, I cannot go along with you any longer.

"Everybody knows that under the leadership of President Eisenhower the Republicans have done everything possible to make equality a reality and I am certain that they will continue to press for the enactment of meaningful legislation during this session." Signed, A Good Republican."

That note was received several days after the Senate had met its first test which proved conclusively that if they had so desired they could have pushed through any kind of civil rights legislation they desired, if striking power counts for as much in politics as it does in other fields of endeavor.

We can only assume that if they permitted themselves to be defeated, they planned it that way.

NOW HOW do politicians go about evolving the defeat of a measure that they pretend to support?

The mechanics are simple if you know the game. First, it must be manipulated so that nobody gets hurt. So here's what they do:

Both the supporters and the opponents get their heads together and decide among themselves first whether a measure is to be passed or killed and by what method this is to be accomplished.

They might decide that responsibility for killing the measure will be assumed by the executive branch. All that is necessary in that case is for the President to lay down a hard fast pronouncement that the bill must contain certain specifications or else it will not meet his approval.

THEN CONGRESS proceeds to enact a measure that is unacceptable to the President. He promptly vetoes with righteous indignation which takes both himself and his party off the hook.

He has given the bill the coup de grace, but he does it in such a manner that even the supporters believe he has done them a favor.

THIS ALSO gives a clean bill of political health to the smaller fry. Those who must face the ire of colored voters can say blandly: "My record is straight; send me back for another term and I will keep up the good fight."

The white supremacists can go before their crowd with the same argument and everybody is returned to office on the basis of what they did on the floor of the senate instead of what they did in the cloakroom and around the conference tables.

Now let us see how this is worked out. First they take all about placing the civic center in Druid Hill Park.

The strange thing about that session was the fact that almost everyone knew before hand that the center would be in Druid Hill Park.

Don't know why I bothered to spend my lunch hour there when I knew all along what the decision would be.

A TALL, young man interrupted the proceedings of the Liquor Board last Thursday and all because he stepped into the room to see what was going on.

Everyone was asking everyone else "Is that Connie Johnson the Oriole's pitcher?" It was.

Alfred Hitchcock couldn't have provided a better setting than the one that prevailed at City Hospitals where the alleged merchant marine died under mysterious circumstances Monday.

Now since when did you read a mystery story when the main character is murdered in his hospital bed?

Of course no one in authority said for sure that it was murder, but you must admit, the suspense is still there.

Ironic is the fact that those teenage boys allegedly involved in the robbery where one of their number was killed by an officer last Sunday, should have taken a Madonna figurine among other things.

After spending a few hours around our state and city beaches and parks I'm inclined to believe that they were built for the citizens of Washington.

Visit any Maryland park or beach and you will see more cars with D.C. tags than Maryland.

Sure enough, after waiting for service in the dining room for a half hour the place did not cater to colored guests.

Later the young man was told by the desk clerk that a mistake had been made and he would have to find lodging elsewhere. Insult as this took place in the middle of the night, a truce was arranged and the guest allowed to remain until the following morning.

THAT'S HALF-BAKED integration for you.

According to my way of thinking, it should be illegal for any place holding a license for the convenience and necessity of the public to refuse accommodations to well-mannered members of the public.

both ends against the middle. He can vote against civil rights while protecting their pocketbooks. I'll bet on the pocketbook."

"That's fine, fellows, now we have everything all squared away let's go in and take up this momentous issue and when you fellows are on the floor try to keep those smiles off your faces. Remember your constituents are watching from the gallery. Now, one more thing when the results are announced try to look surprised. Some of you can hide your fists on your desks and stalk out of the room in disgust, but keep it natural so it won't look too stagey. Gentlemen, there's the bell for roll call. Your country awaits you."

THAT'S THE WAY these things are done in politics, but there is another method which we have never used. That is the gay off method. 14 million colored people by putting in one dollar apiece could raise a slush fund of 14 million dollars. Send this directly to me and give me one afternoon on Capitol Hill and I will distribute it around in the proper places and I will guarantee that before a week is passed I will get a civil rights bill passed, signed, sealed and delivered. That's how the big corporations get things done and what works for them should work for us.

So far all we have invested in civil rights is a lot of lip service and a childish faith in the belief that men will do what is right for right's sake. That is idealistic and seldom pays off. Let's stop kidding ourselves and become political adults.

REPORTERS REPORT

Noteworthy Along the way

By STEVE DUNCAN

Members of the Baltimore Hotel Association agreed to a limited desegregation plan last month when they voted to honor reservations of colored colleges and professional athletes, and colored convention goers so long as they are a part of a predominantly white group.

Even here they reserve the privilege of accepting or denying reservations to the above named groups as it suits their fancy.

A young man employed by a labor union was sent down from New York to Baltimore to work here for about a month. His home office made reservations for him to stay at a hostelry which is a member of the Baltimore Hotel Association.

On arrival at the hotel the young man's reservation was honored and he was assigned to a room. The first notice that "something is rotten in the State of Denmark" came from a colored bellhop who advised the guest that he might have trouble eating in the dining room.

Note of thanks

Dear AFRO:

Many thanks to you for publishing our news each Friday during summer (YWCA) activities. It certainly added to the success of the program.

The Safety News, the publication of the Baltimore Safety Council, has sent out congratulations to firms with accident free records. One of the winners was the National Casket Co.

Cabbie George Street, 1422 Linden Ave., who recently contributed $25 to the NAACP, wants it known that he drives for Fleetway Cab Co., and that his wife is a nurse in Baltimore, Mrs. Vonderlear Street. Okay George, it is now known.

That ceremony held recently at the Lafayette Market was simply the turning over of the building by the contractors to the city, which now assumes responsibility.

To date some 65 stalls, out of a total of 219, have been taken by the merchants. The temporary market will be closed on or around August 31, and the formal dedication will follow shortly thereafter with a number of events arranged to make it a red letter day.

THE MANNER in which Nat (King) Cole is staging his TV show on Tuesday night should be attractive enough to interest a sponsor — but sponsors are a strange group of people who often resemble small frightened men.

If Mr. Cole was a blond, would you care to wager that he would have no difficulty in obtaining his own sponsored show, instead of keeping an eye on the Deep South the sponsors are seemingly keeping their hands off the talented Mr. Cole, and what a pity.

A gentleman who has spent most of his life in Vienna and Paris, visited the office Thursday and launched into a lengthy discourse on America and her racial problems.

The gentleman showed a very broad and comprehensive knowledge of the subject, mentioning names, places and events, that he had to do some digging to obtain.

Then to top everything else he mentioned his habit of picking up hitchhikers and beginning conversations on America's No. 1 problem. If his passenger shows any evidence of being a racist, he lets him talk on and on and then finally tells the rider that he is a member of the darker race.

This usually shuts up the speaker and sometimes, according to our friend, it makes the rider start thinking that maybe differences in people have nothing to do with the shade of their skin.

IF YOU happen to be planning to take up stealing for a living, don't bother with the parole office recently set up for release from the department out of the number of criminal cases the agency brought to trial, 98.8 per cent of the defendants were convicted.

So you see, it doesn't pay to mess around with the U.S. mails.

However, there are those who are willing to take a chance. There was one gang of five men who hilked an elderly Rochester, N.Y., man out of $425,000 for the purchase of phony stock in a company supposed to have valuable television and electronics patents.

In another case 13 criminals managed to chalk up a $500,000 haul by faking credit references and getting merchandise on credit. They were caught and are now behind bars.

If You Ask Me

By B. M. PHILLIPS

This and that about town...

Like the lady in the beauty shop said the other day: 'At least if it (civic center that is) is in Druid Hill Park, it will be in the heart of the area where we live. No chance of getting second-rate treatment or reservations."

Actually, the people who want the civic center downtown represent the big businesses.

Their downtown stores and businesses have not welcomed colored people in the past.

While there have been some token jobs open in some downtown stores, the majority still welcome you and you and you only in certain departments.

And while a few of the downtown eateries (5 and 10's, Read's) welcome you, the majority of the downtown eating places won't let you in except to cook.

And, while the Sheraton-Belvedere gives you a fair shake for hotel lodging, the majority of the downtown hotels are not for letting you and you in to use their facilities.

Thanks to Mayor D'Alesandro's resolve to locate the center in Druid Hill Park and the City Council's approval of the Mayor's plan, the center is likely to be right uptown in the Park.

And, if you ask me, the downtown interests are to blame.

Their white only customers have moved to the suburbs and the colored customers they spurned, are moving out too. So the heart of the city is no longer Lexington and Howard St.

The Mayor's executive secretary, Tom O'Donnell, told the council this week that those urging a downtown site for the center are not yet aware that "Mondawmin is now considered to be the heart of metropolitan Baltimore!"

And, he is so right ... times do change ... and it looks from this corner like the lilywhite department stores and lilywhite restaurants and lilywhite hotels better do some fast work in encouraging ALL citizens to come downtown ... or in another ten years they'll have to close shop.

And also that Mr. and Mrs. Brown Baltimore would have easy access to a building which would be a sports arena, public meeting place and feature an exhibition hall?

The NAACP, Urban League, Frontiers are aligned with the Committee for Downtown Inc., and the Baltimore Hotel Association and the other 20-odd groups opposing Druid Hill Park site! No-hum.

The recent death of William Fannon, (d. July 23 at age of 56), chief of the city's Department of Sanitation, reminds me that he was one of the stalwart supporters of the AFRO's Clean Block drive.

Back in 1935, when Miss Frances Murphy, now retired, started this AFRO promotion, she called on Mr. Fannon for help and he gave it.

She recalled this week: "There never was a time when we asked Mr. Fannon for help that we didn't get it.

"He always said he enjoyed working with the clean blocks—they were energetic and knew how to get a place cleaned up.

"Mr. Fannon was a fine man and a gentleman. He would go into the troubled blocks, talk with the workers.

"And he didn't call them, "Mary" or "Susie". Everybody, no matter who they were or where they lived were "Miss or Mrs." to him.

"And there never was a time that a child or worker called him a liar in getting the trash removed, that he didn't follow through and see that it was done . . . he said he'd see that it was, and it was . . ."

By the way, the city's new sanitation engineer is Joseph McCarthy.

In some northwest neighborhoods, it has been noted since Mr. Fannon's death a decrease in the colored workers on sanitation trucks.

Says Mr. McCarthy, "No, there has not been a decrease in colored workers. In fact, we are taking more on. There has been a change in assignments and that may account for the fact on some routes you do not see colored workers where you saw them before."

People, places and things...

Dr. D. O. W. Holmes proposed to Alverta Jones Cundiff on July 26, when he gifted her with a solitaire.

Dr. Holmes, you know is president-emeritus of Morgan State College, a member of the State board of education, and at 79 is considered Baltimore's elder statesman.

He has been a widower for eight years.

She is a teacher and a divorcee.

Remember when the Jones family lived on W. Lanvale St?

More wedding news: Laura Walker White has been Mrs. Mr. Bryant for four months.

The newlyweds and the bride's six-year-old Hilda (by a former marriage) are at home at 4532 St. Georges Ave.

Bridgroom is a Korea vet, and a former Tuskegee and Virginia Union student. He hails from Hiawatha, Kansas.

More people and things...

The Ivory Russells (Thelma Wainwright) hope to be in the new home they're building next month.

Local Shriners — Jerusalem Temple No. 4 are preparing for the 56th annual convention in Philly August 18.

Just recently, she won a $2,000 fellowship from the American Association of University Women.

She already held a John Hay Whitney scholarship.

You know she is a candidate for a Ph.D. degree at Johns Hopkins University.

Yet more good news in her household—her husband and her hubby, R. Clarke Davis, expect the stork early next year.

Still in Md. General: Mrs. John (Philathea Carter) Hall, the real estate lady. Drop her a card to Room 219.

Out of Provident: Mrs. Vera (Nikki) Randolph.

Into Hopkins: Mrs. Vera Houston, who underwent an operation on Thursday. Drop her a card at Room 243, Women's Clinic. She is a stranger in our town.

Jerry Osborne of D.C. and Mexico City writes 'that the weather is fine at the Hexagon at Pentiwater, Mich., where he will be through Labor Day.

Mrs. Juanita Patterson visited in Philly and N.J. before returning to their Buffalo, N.Y. home.

Back in Baltimore and glad of it: Calvin and Letitia Ashe. They were in Mexico City during the earthquake. "I've had enough foreign travel now," says Letitia who admits she was 'frightened' by the quake.

They were asleep in their hotel when the first tremors came.

Dr. and Mrs. James Edwin Fassett, formerly of Cambridge, Md., have pulled up stakes there to call Baltimore their home.

He has closed his Cambridge office.

They are at 2220 Garrison Boulevard with their two sons, Dennis and Jay.

Mrs. Fassett (Jacque when she isn't busy as a doctor's wife and mother, serves as social worker at Crownsville State Hospital.

Mrs. J. Hiram Butler (Bea) is in Hanover, New Hampshire.
