Cooking Is Fun

By FANNIEJOE REID

With warm weather comes the urge to humor appetites with foods prepared and served out of doors.

Hence this week's dealing with barbecues.

There are some, well, practically all, barbecue fanciers who claim that the most important ingredient of any dish is the sauce.

So, I have gathered here, the barbecue sauces of some experts, all of which I have found excellent.

• • •

A SAUCE that is excellent with barbecued chicken, hamburgers or frankfurters is made with the following:

Two tablespoons molasses, two tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, four tablespoons prepared mustard, two tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, two teaspoons tabasco and a tablespoon kitchen bouquet.

Combine all ingredients, brush chicken or hamburgers during grilling. The above yields two-thirds cup or enough sauce for three two and one-half pound broilers or a dozen to 18 hamburgers.

In the case of the frankfurters you may place them in the sauce and simmer for 10 or 15 minutes; or you may serve the sauce as a relish after the frankfurters have been broiled.

To barbecue the chicken, halve or quarter the broiler, or if you desire, buy chicken parts. Sprinkle with salt, brush with the sauce.

When coals are glowing, arrange bird, cut side down, on grill or in folding wire broiler. Grill slowly about 25 minutes or until tender, turning with tongs and basting often with sauce.

• • •

I LIKE a spicy sauce for kabobs. This is made with three-fourths cup fresh lemon juice, a half cup of cider vinegar, a third cup tomato catsup, a third cup of water;

One and a half tablespoons of brown sugar, one and a half teaspoons salt, the same of powered dry mustard and paprika; a half teaspoon each of black and red pepper, three-fourth teaspoon onion powder, a fourth teaspoon garlic powder, one and a half teaspoons of red pepper sauce and three tablespoons butter or margarine.

Combine all ingredients. Boil one minute. This sauce keeps for several weeks in a covered jar in the refrigerator. The above makes two cups.

Make the kabobs with one and a half pound of lean beef cut into one-inch squares, one squares, two green peppers, cut into one-inch squares, onions and a half dozen small white onions, three fresh tomatoes, cut into wedges.

String beef and vegetables on skewers. Brush with the spicy sauce. Grill over a charcoal fire, basting often with sauce, until done. Turn skewers to cook all sides. Serve with extra sauce. The above serves about six persons.

• • •

ANOTHER VERY good barbecue sauce is made by combining in a heavy sauce pan a cup of tomato sauce, three-fourths cup of tomato paste, a third cup chopped onion, a clove of garlic crushed or minced, a fourth cup brown sugar, a fourth cup cider vinegar.

Also a tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, an eighth teaspoon tabasco, a teaspoon salt, a half teaspoon Accent, an eighth teaspoon pepper, a half teaspoon celery salt, a half teaspoon dry mustard and a half teaspoon chili powder.

Bring to a boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Reduce heat, cover and simmer about 20 minutes. This makes about a cup and a half of the sauce.

This sauce keeps well and may be stored in refrigerator for days before using. Heat before serving.

You bet there IS a difference

No difference in BACON? Wait 'til it starts to FRY!

There can be a difference in the serving amount in a pound of bacon. The bacon you buy can fry-away in the pan and you actually wind up with less eating-goodness than you really want. When you insist on Esskay Bacon you get less fry-away . . . less waste fat left in the pan. And better bacon flavor.

Only the extra lean, extra tasty center cuts of bacon go into the Esskay package. Every slice is a perfect slice and it cooks to sizzling, lean perfection. And you'll like the difference in Esskay's flavor. Nothing yet can take the place of slow, leisurely sugar curing and hickory smoking to bring out the best in bacon . . . and that's the way every pound of Esskay bacon is made.

The Wm. Schluderberg-T. J. Kurdle Co.
