LOVELY hats like the ones worn by the ladies at right were in abundance at the Provident Guild tea. Shown here are Mesdames Edna Walker, Elsie Redd and Ada Smith. The tea held in the school cafeteria, was followed by a program in the auditorium.

MORE CHARMING hats are these worn by Mesdames Mary T. Stokes and Beulah Plummer. They were among over 2,000 ladies at Provident Guild's annual tea. Guild uses money to buy 'extras' for hospital and supply nursing scholarship.

On the Social Front

SOME OF THE 27 tables occupied by the 2,000 guests at the Provident Guild tea are shown here. Mrs. Odell Payne is president of the Guild; and Mrs. Rosina Cole was chairman of the tea. In addition to this annual affair, ladies of the Guild also give volunteer service to the hospital.

CLOSEUP OF Miss Cora Brown, of Detroit, guest speaker at Philomathians' 25th dinner meeting. She is a Democrat and a former Michigan state legislator. In background, State Senator Harry A. Cole, who was among guests at the meeting held in Morgan Christian Center Saturday evening. Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, Washington attorney and her classmate at Fisk University, introduced her.

Philomathian Club has 25th annual dinner

"Women who have time can make special effort to register and vote, they can teach the voter to use the ballot.

"You may think everyone knows how to vote, but they do not.

"Women can keep abreast of the issues in their community, we can see what our representatives are doing and we can send some representativion to the legislature, and put them on the bench, or wherever else we have the strngt to elect them."

Miss Cora M. Brown, former Michigan State senator, was speaking at the 25th anniversary dinnermeeting of the Philomathian Club at Morgan Christian center on Saturday.

IN ADDITION to listing women's duties and the political role they play in the community, Miss Brown charged the club members and their guests to look at political issues from the point of view of how they affect the minority person.

She said: "You are Americans and what diminishes the American way of life diminishes us.

"It is most ridiculous when we let political party differences divide us and our cause for freedom, "She said.

Mrs. Marjorie McKenzie Lawson, a Washington attorney, who was Miss Brown's classmate at Fisk University.
