No one was injured but the plant was evacuated as a safety measure.

5-year probation for Bernard Rice

"Your Honor, I wouldn't do a thing like that. I have children of my own...we just had a lot of kids in the car."

Because Judge R. Ralph Warnken was inclined to believe this statement by Bernard L. Rice, 24, of 929 W. Lanvale St., and a plea by his attorney, Milton B. Allen, he suspended an 18-month House of Correction sentence and placed the man on probation for five years.

Mr. Rice was found guilty of charges involving improperly handling two little girls, six and seven years old, who were among several children he and a companion took on an auto ride to visit children at his home.

Pair get 4 years each for yoking, $250 robbery

Two defendants convicted April 8 of robbing a man of $250 were given Penitentiary terms of four years each Wednesday.

Judge John Tuckerimposed the sentences on John Wilkins, 26, 1700 block W. Fayette St. and Robert E Gwynn, 30, 800 block W. Fayette.

Testimony that they had produced at the trial James Robinson Jr., 1509 W. Fayette St., was spoke by the pair after he accompanied Miss Axille Towson to Mr. Williams' home on Feb. 28.

Miss Towson, 22, 800 block W. Lexington St., testified that she had been a prostitute and robbery charges growing out of the case.

Matrons have day in' court

In Pine St. Police Court Wednesday morning a charge of shoving Mrs. Blanche Barnes of the 1900 block Harlem Ave. were dismissed against Mrs. Florine Washington also of the 1900 block Harlem Ave.

The court was told that the shoving incident grew out of a long-standing misunderstanding between the two neighbors.

"FRONT THY FATHER AND..."

Invokes 5th Commandment, orders sons to support father

"This is not a matter which concerns justice.

"It goes back to the Commandments and that particular Commandment, which says: 'Honor thy father and mother.'"

With r?everence, Judge Reuben Oppenheimer leaned forward and softly spoke the above words on Wednesday in Domestic Court.

As he made the statement, no sound could be heard in the crowded courtroom except a deep sob from an aging father who happened to be the parent to which the Commandment applied in this instance.

He is John W. Cooper, Sr., 57, formerly a well-known painter who told the court he had no home, no place to go, and that his wife and three sons had "fought him off and kicked him out of doors."

HE FURTHER explained his plight to the court by stating that he was at present sleeping on the floor at the 1052 Pa. address of his brother.

There, in his brother's restaurant, Mr. Cooper said he did what little work he could and was given a slice of bread in return.

Mr. Cooper is paralyzed on one side, medical reports said. His plight came to the attention of the Domestic Relations Court when on Feb. 28 he charged his three sons with non-support.

At one time, before his sustained stroke, Mr. Cooper said he and his sons did commercial painting jobs for several large Baltimore firms.

Recently, Mr. Cooper said, he and his sons disagreed and they went to work without him.

THE THREE sons who appeared in court with their mother are: Benjamin Cooper, 25, who lives with his mother at 559 Biddle St. He is single and has been a B and O employee for 5 years. He earns $130 every two weeks.

A second son is John W. Cooper, Jr., 29, who is also single, and a painter and lives with his mother at the same Biddle St. address.

The third son, McCoy Cooper, 24, at present an unemployed painter, is buying his home at 2302 Orem Ave, and is also single.

BEFORE releasing the three sons on probation without a verdict, Judge Oppenheimer told them: "The principle involved is a very old one.

"No doubt, the father has had difficult times and he may have become hard to deal with during his trials, but "Honor thy father" does not mean "judge" thy father.

"It means you have to understand your father and sometimes put up with a lot.

"Here is a man who cannot do much work maybe some, but not a lot.

"But most of all he needs somebody, he needs something. I want you to give him $2 a week, each of you.

"That's not too much.

"I don't want you fine young men to have a record so I'll make it probation without verdict."

Trial separation turned into a permanent thing

A trial separation proved too attractive to her husband, according to Mrs. Bessie Obie, 31, of 1 Pine St.

Mrs. Obie, testifying in Circuit Court, last week, in her suit for separate maintenance from Harry Obie, won her case on grounds of voluntary separation.

Said she:

"We had bought a home, but we were leaving it. He was staying out a great deal. Then he suggested that I go to myself and he would get a room for himself, that maybe we could live together later on.

"But a month later, he told me that he was going to continue living like that, that he likes the place he was living in."

ASKED IF the arrangement suited her, Mrs. Obie said "I did not like it, but as time went on I got used to it."

Mr. and Mrs. Obie were married in 1934, and, according to the wife, separated in 1951. Her maiden name, Ricks, was restored.

"WELL, SHE started going out at night and not even coming home. I started telling her about it. She didn't like that, so she left."

Russell E. Blackwell of 2219 N. Monroe St. thus described the ending of his marriage to Mrs. Daisy E. Blackwell of 407 N. Carrollton Ave. He was granted a divorce on grounds of desertion. The Blackwells were married from 1940 to 1947.

"He left me. He didn't like Baltimore and said he couldn't get work here. So he went back to Pittsburgh," testified Mrs. Wilsonia Woods of 3464 Spellman Rd.

She was granted a divorce from Joseph Woods on grounds of desertion and given custody of their two children.

William Gosnell was attorney for the wife.

ALSO WINNING a divorce on grounds of desertion was Mrs. Florence Paxton of 315 E. 22nd St. from Herman Paxton.

"I guess he decided that marriage wasn't for him," she said, adding "he packed up and left."

The couple have a three-year-old daughter, whom custody was placed with the mother.

Mrs. Paxton was represented by George L. Parrish.

Mt. Winans mother charged with abandoning child

A young mother who allegedly abandoned a newborn baby boy on the railroad tracks near her Mt. Winans home was ordered held in bail of $1,500 for the grand jury Wednesday in Pine St., Police Court.

Mrs. Laverne Hamm, 18, entered a plea of not guilty and was released after posting bail.

The infant who was found last Thursday was taken to University Hospital where physicians estimated his age at between 8 and 12 hours old.

On Thursday the child died at the hospital. No additional charges were immediately placed against the mother, but the investigation was turned over to the homicide squad.

—CAP unit

it will be a good thing for CAP as a whole, we may integrate.

"At this time, it is a problem as to whether it is the thing to do."

He stated that while the Commanding Officer, Col. Paul Fonda, who is in charge of the Maryland Wing of CAP, was in Florida he is acting in Col. Fonda's place.

Asked who determined the policy of the Maryland CAP, Lt. Col. Ward replied.

"Paul Fonda determines the policy."

COL. FONDA is not a member of the U.S. Air Force. He is also a volunteer worker with the CAP and is employed at the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation as a public relations worker.

He has CAP offices at Pier C, Friendship International Air Port.

The U.S. Air Force Liaison Officer of the Maryland CAP Wing is Major Frederick R. Beal who told the AFRO that he had no authority to reveal the CAP policy.

He said: "I support the program as liaison officer, however, I do not have anything to do with the policy."

THE CIVIL Air Patrol was granted a Congressional charter under provisions of public law No. 467 of the 79th Congress in Dec. 1, 1945, just six days before Pearl Harbor and by executive order of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1952, Congress made CAP the official auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force and empowered the Secretary of the U.S. Air Force to support the CAP and in turn empower him to call upon the CAP to perform certain missions of the Air Force.

It receives six million dollars a year in Federal funds.

The organization's purpose is to provide private citizens with adequate aviation education and training to assist in meeting local and national emergencies.

CADETS ARE sent to summer camps, they go abroad, and receive training in all military subjects with the exception of technical training.

CAP units are located at Air Force base encampments in all the 48 states.

Baltimore CAP units are at Friendship—International Air Port and Harbor Field. There are 570 cadets, all white, on roll.

Among those who have been denied membership in the CAP is Rev. Julius Carroll, pastor of Sharp Street Methodist Church.

He has sought unsuccessfully to transfer his CAP membership from the Tuskegee Squadron of the Alabama Wing.

FRANK SORRELL, principal of Houston Junior High School No. 181 told the AFRO that three of his ninth grade students had applied and he was told CAP did not accept colored children as cadets.

The students who made application were: James Watson, 604 N. Pulaski St., Van Webb, 2427 Denison St., and Victor Cole, 1381 Madison Ave.

Accompanied by a teacher, Haywood Harrison, they report they did not have anything but CAP offices received them discourteously and stated: "We do not have an interest in colored cadets as a part of this particular unit.

"We have considered establishing a unit at Morgan State College if there are enough interested people."

"But until something like that is done, we don't accept colored cadets."

MAJ. GEN. Walter Agee who has been National Commander of CAP for one year and who is a U.S. Air Force official, told the AFRO:

"The CAP is strictly a civilian organization and its policy usually conforms to customs of the locality of the organization."

"In Maryland there may be some integrated CAP units but I know of none."

Major Agee's offices are located at Bolling Air Force Base in Washington. As National Commander, he has jurisdiction over all CAP units.

IN BALTIMORE, Capt. H. C. McMasters of the 3502 U.S. Air Force recruiting group, Detachment 201, told the AFRO:

"I am not acquainted with the policy of CAP. I know, however, it would be my guess that as an auxiliary of the Air Force, the CAP should conform to Air Force policies.

"The Air Force is completely integrated and I know of no segregation in the Air Force," Capt. McMasters stated.

Albert Quinn who is press secretary to Governor Theodore McKeldin told the AFRO:

"I don't know of any state connection the CAP has.

"To my knowledge, the state doesn't have any connection with it."

ACCORDING TO Dr. John H. Fischer, superintendent of Baltimore City schools, and Dr. Harry Bard who is director of Secondary Institutional Services, the Baltimore schools system has no connection with CAP.

Dr. Bard told the AFRO: "CAP, it seems, would come under the area of extra curricular organizations and clubs.

"We have no CAP units that I know of.

"The CAP is operated aside from the schools.

"Any club in the schools is open to all. We run no clubs that are segregated."

McKeldin says use every legitimate force to make hotels see the light

"At the ball game I shouted over to Harold Fink—'H Hobby Boyd hits a home run and it goes through your hotel window, you'll have to let him in the hotel to retrieve the ball.'"

Governor Theodore McKeldin used the above humorous statement as he addressed the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations in his Baltimore offices on Tuesday.

Members of the Commission were discussing further steps to be taken in the local hotel discrimination situation.

The Mr. Fink referred to is manager of the Southern Hotel and president of the Baltimore Hotel Association.

The Association has been asked by the Commission to change its rules which bind member hotels to admit white guests only.

IT HAD been reported minutes before the Governor's statement that Francis Keelty, president of the Baltimore Orioles, had informed the Commission that the National Baseball Association had no jurisdiction over the local hotel policy of not admitting colored players.

Leaving the baseball angle, but commenting strongly on Baltimore hotel policy as a whole, Gov. McKeldin urged the Committee to continue the fight against the policy of discrimination. He said:

"Keep behind it. We shall reap if we keep at it.

"It is inevitable.

"It is bound to come.

"Don't get angry but we will have to use every legitimate force we can to make them see the light.

"Keep behind them," he repeated.

FURTHER VIGOROUS comment came from the Governor when William C. Rogers, Sr., chairman of the Commission asked:

"Governor, do you think the proposed hotel ordinance would be 'bad'?"

The Governor replied:

"It would be better for the fair name of Baltimore if they could be opened without an ordinance, however, no action can conceive of would be 'bad.'

"We have to keep working in the hotel people," Gov. McKeldin added.

"It is a disgrace to think that such eminent men as Ralph Bunche and Jackie Robinson can't stay in our hotels here.

"But in a few years, I think we will see it done."

Dr. Young is the distinguished scientist and member of the medical faculty of Howard University who refused to attend the American Association of Anatomists meeting here this week after the Lord Baltimore Hotel refused to honor his reservation.

He was scheduled to read two papers before the Association based on original research which he had made on the cause of baldness in males.

Dr. Young rejected all offers of a special arrangement and said:

"I will not, as a scientist, be...jim crowed and showed separate with any special consideration when I have a scientific contribution to make to the society—it's their loss — not mine."

THE DISCUSSION of the hotel association with the Governor came after the Commission presented the chief executive with its annual report.

In that report, the Commission said that "the hard core of resistance is breaking down discrimination in Baltimore hotels" to the Hotel Association.

Rhodesdale man killed in crash

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — "The victim was headed south and the car operated by Stanley was going north on a narrow dirt road. Both drivers must have mistjudged the distance and they collided, bouncing fifty feet apart."

This was the way John Rosenberger, chief clerk of the State Police Division, described the accident which took the life of William Cornelius Jackson, 41, of Rhodesdale, last Friday morning.

The two-car collision occured between Shiloh and Rhodesdale on the Petersburg road and was the first fatal accident recorded in Dorchester County this year.

TROOPER D. G. SPEARIN, the investigating officer, said the accident was discovered by Kermit Jackson, who lives in the vicinity where the accident occurred. The victim, Mr. Jackson was dead, and Mrs. Vivian Jolley, 49, who was in the car, was in a critical condition. She has a fractured skull and fractured pelvis.

The other car involved in the accident was a 1953 Chevrolet operated by Lester Stanley, 41. Mr. Stanley has a fractured right leg and chest injuries.

Both of the injured parties were taken to the Cambridge Maryland Hospital and admitted after the accident.

Mr. Stanley has been charged with failing to drive to the center of the road but no date for the hearing has been set because of his present condition.

gles which the little victim had been reading just before she left the house after lunch.

The title of the book was "Day By Day." The child tried to memorize a little poem each day. Pencil marks showed she was halfway through the book.

THE TITLE, "Day by Day," had been important in the life of Valerie, because in addition to the book, she had learned a song by the same name, which had been featured on a recent television show by the singer, "Little Miss Muffet."

Valerie had not only learned the words, but as was her practice, she had learned to mimic the area is constantly being traversed by pedestrians going to and from the stores, night clubs and other establishments in the community.

Police are also convinced that the spot where the body was found was not the scene of the actual crime.

First, because there was no pool of blood around the body which would have been the case had the stabbing taken place at the spot. Second, because the scene was visible from at least 40 windows of houses which face toward the railroad track with people coming and going at all times. Even a faint outcry could have carried the short distance from the death scene to the nearest household.

THAT IS why police are making a room-by-room canvass of houses, garages, and outhouses throughout the neighborhood.

They feel certain that somewhere in the immediate area they will find evidences of blood which will establish the scene of the crime and eventually lead to the killer.

In the meantime, the once quiet and peaceful Deanwood section lives in a grip of terror. Children are kept in off the streets. Neighbors talk in hushed whispers. Everyone is tense and alert.

In the taverns patrons keep their eyes peeled for some unguarded word from a liquor-loosened tongue when the crime is being discussed.

Some person may "know too much."

Passage of the resolution will mean that the association's scheduled 1959 meeting in Memphis would be moved to other cities. One report is that the site will be Seattle, Washington.

Dr. Barry J. Alson, professor of anatomy at Northwestern University was elected new president of the group and Dr. Gerhard Hoeber, University of Pittsburgh, was chosen president-elect.
