come here every day and sit with me because I am expecting another child."

REFERRING TO the stabbing, Mrs. Armstrong, returning to the chair, said: "Lizzie never did anything like that before; she didn't mean to do it."

Noting the blood stains that were still on the rug, Mrs. Armstrong explained that Mr. Brown had walked about 20 feet and fell, his head resting on the rug.

The couple had been friends about a year. Mr. Brown had been injured while in the army and received a monthly disability check, she said.

"I took her down to the police station to give herself up. They didn't pick her up," Mrs. Armstrong pointed out.

The Rev. Mr. Brown, still upset by his son's slaying, said:

"It was a strange case. One of the boys who was with him said he wasn't fighting. All of a sudden, the girl called him and said: 'Come here, boy, we've got to get something straight,' and stabbed him."

HENRY CLAY BROWN

James Still were cruising in the 3700 block Pennsylvania Ave., about 2:45 p.m. Monday when a man rushed up to them shouting that "there was a woman cut very badly," at 915 Fremont Ave.

SPEDING TO the scene, they found Mr. Brown, lying in a corner of the first floor front room bleeding profusely from the left side of his neck.

Police said they asked Mr. Brown who stabbed him and quoted him as saying that he had become involved in an argument with Mrs. Reed.

At this point an ambulance reached the scene and Mr. Brown was rushed to Provident Hospital. He was treated there for stab wounds of the neck and left side and face, but died during treatment.

Funeral services for Mr. Brown were held at 10 a.m. today (Friday). The Rev. L. S. Riley, of the Gospel Peace Church officiated.

A veteran, who served in Italy during World War II, Mr. Brown will be buried in National Cemetery.

BESIDES HIS father, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Janet Miller, three brothers: Howard, Pratt W. and John T. Brown, as well as two sisters: Mrs. Mary Cutler and Mrs. Alter Lillian Jones, all of Baltimore.

burgh, was the other honoree.

Mr. Foreman and six other senior law students were told of their election at the annual banquet of the University of Maryland Law School Alumni Association Saturday night.

Mr. Foreman graduated with high honors in economics from the University of Cincinnati in 1950, the same year he earned his Phi Beta Kappa key. The following year he received a masters of arts degree in economics from the Ohio University.

He entered the Maryland law school in September, 1953, and is scheduled to receive his law degree this June.

UNTIL HE was appointed a bailiff by Judge Niles last September, he was employed as an education specialist at the Aberdeen Proving Ground, where he served as an Army lieutenant for 17 months.

During World War II Mr. Foreman, a native of New Iberia, La., served three years in the Marine Corps.

Mr. Foreman recalled with a chuckle that when he decided to enter college following his discharge from the Marine Corps he was rejected by both Dillard University, New Orleans, La., and Howard University.

It was then that he enrolled at the University of Cincinnati and blazed an enviable scholastic record.

Of his position as court bailiff, Mr. Foreman said, "I have gained tremendous experience and valuable insight into court procedure."

Upon graduation from law school Mr. Foreman expects to become associated with the law firm of Brown, Allen and Watts.

Married to the former Thelma Pulliam, a teacher at School 120, Mr. Foreman has a 5-year-old son, Christopher Jr. The Foremans reside at 2417 Piedmont Ave.

attempted burglary and carnal knowledge of the teenage girls.

THEY WERE given a total of 37 years in the penitentiary by Judge Ralph Warnken.

Roland W. Carter, 29, 1300 block Myrtle Ave., was sentenced to 19 years following his admissions to ten burglaries and one attempted burglary. He was given an additional six months on the sex charge.

Warren G. Woodridge, 30, 3000 block Brighton St., pleaded guilty to eight burglary charges an an attempt and was sentenced to 15 years. He also received an additional six months for carnal knowledge.

ACCORDING TO Mr. Weiss, the teenage girls, now being detained at the House of the Good Shepherd, acted as "lookouts" while the men burglarized apartments and homes where the tenants were absent.

One of the victims was Mrs. Sue Branson, a school teacher of 2826 Windsor Ave.

The prosecutor told Judge Warnken that Northwestern District police arrested the four in the 2200 block Riggs Ave. following an unsuccessful attempt to break into a house at 1115 N. Wheeler Ave., on Feb. 21.

A large quantity of stolen merchandise was recovered in a house in the 2300 block Madison Ave., where the men maintained an apartment with the young girls.

Other goods were recovered from various pawnshops.

It was reported that both girls had run away from their homes and were being sought by police as runaways at the time they were apprehended.

College expenses doubled since '40

The amount that students of Maryland spend in attending college has doubled since 1939-40, Lawrence G. Derthick, commissioner of education, announced after preliminary findings of an Office of Education survey.

Commissioner Derthick said the expenditure per year for full-time undergraduate students attending public colleges this year averages about $1,500.

Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, before the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, which is looking into the question of the rights of United States newsmen to cover happenings inside Red China.

WORTHY, this week, was denied a renewal of his passport for having defied a State Department ban on travel of United States newsmen into that country last year.

Worthy, who gave his address as 759 N. 29th St., Philadelphia, on Oct. 3, 1944, when U.S. Draft Board No. 8 instituted court action against him, denies charges of "draft dodging."

A check of the court records by the AFRO also certifies that any charges against the correspondent had been nolle prossed by the government in 1944. James E. Bristol, 1924 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, was listed as his bondsman in the more than 12-year-old case.

CONTINUES Mr. Worthy in his statement:

"In 1943 I was classified as a conscientious objector. After discussing the case with A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and the late Walter White of the NAACP, I refused to enter a conscientious objectors' camp, because the government was assigning men geographically on the grounds of race and color.

"There was no charge of 'draft dodging' or evasion, and my statement of refusal to the government was fully published in the press, including the Baltimore Afro-American.

"RATHER THAN face a court test on the racial discrimination issue, the Department of Justice nolle prossed the case after it learned that I was eligible for 4-F exemption because of a duodenal ulcer.

"My medical records are available at the Pratt Diagnostic clinic in Boston and at the Episcopal Hospital in Philadelphia.

"Contrary to today's testimony of Robert Cartwright, acting director of the Department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, I did not serve one day or any longer time in jail and I never went to a conscientious objectors' camp.

"The records were available to the State Department in 1951, 1953 and 1955 when I previously obtained passports without difficulty.

"In March, 1955, Mrs. Ruth Shipley, then chief of the passport office, personally validated my passport for travel to the Soviet Union.

"My record presurably had been especially reviewed for this purpose by the department.

"When I was cleared for permanent Pentagon accreditation several years ago for visiting military installations in Korea and elsewhere, I listed all the facts of the case."
