IF TOWN women keep making them hen parties so flossy they're going to wake up one morning realizing that they're working against themselves when they try to drag reluctant husbands out on dates.

Now take that triple - decker entertaining by the Hampton Pals, over the weekend. You've never seen such a chic group, such an elegant luncheon, or so much fun the parties as the lassies had . . . all by themselves.

I guess you might call the Hampton Pals a club . . . . though their "officers" serve only a two - day term and their meetings are narrowed down to this one affair of the year.

They included Vernice Wynn, this year's president; Thelma Rice, secretary; and Inez M Kent, chairman of activities;

Also Catherine Adams, Belle Braxton, Lois Carter, Ivora Evans, Gwendolyn Lewis, Elizabeth Matthews, Patricia Page, Mae Parrott, Melissa Perdue, Catherine Royston, Estelle Thomas and Phyllis Tilley.

Their special guests were Sophronia Johnson of Washington, Rebecca McGuinness of Charlottesville, Va., Elois Edmonds of Washington, Helen Hart of Hampton, Aurelia Williams of Hampton and Vandola King of Annapolis, all former Hamptonites;

And Zella Washington, Marguerite Peterson, Ida Collick, Agnes Patterson, Sarah Early, Rosa Raye, Audrey Williamson, Marion Gregory and Lula Patterson, some of whom are Hamptonites, others married to Hamptonites, etc.

The out - of - towners arrived Friday evening, were feted at a closed party in the home of Mrs. Kent that evening.

All the above gathered at flower - decked tables for luncheon in the YWCA on Saturday afternoon, and at which Mrs. Lewis had expended her special talent in providing the cutest place cards and souvenirs (the later were leather trinkets, all with individual names, etc.) for a full course meal.

The program at the luncheon included the grace as sung at Hampton, greetings by Mrs. Wynn and introduction of guests by Mesdames Carter and Page.

Miss Thomas served as mistress of ceremonies . . . broke the ice with a hillarious game of "What is your pet peeve?" And don't think the girls had any inhibitions about airing their peeves . . . from one "big feet" to another's "failure to find a wealthy old widower who wanted her."

And Saturday night, Mrs. Wynn opened her beautiful home for a Coffee Home at which a large number of friends were invited to meet the visitors.

At the latter party, in addition to the luncheon guests were:

Blanche McDonald, Ida Washington, Elmira Miller, Aurelia Parker, Rose Kenney, Pearl Pennington, Dorothy Howard;

Charlotte Brent, Ethel Clarke, Lorette Wallace, Julia Nelson, Mildred King, Juanita Kelson, Charlotte Shervington, Alyce Young;

Jeanne Simms, Marion Smith, Idella Nichols, Mary L. Allen, Elizabeth Henderson, Emma Jones, Aubrey Williamson, Vera Williams, Mabel Perkins, Mary Pitts;

Kathryn St. Clair, Constantia Jackson; Lillian Parrott, Ethel Hucles, Ida Berry, Helen King, Xaveria McDonald, Hilda Higgins, Verna Gosnell, Theresa Waters;

J. Ethel Hodges, Carol Diggs, Mabel Priby, Mamie Williams, K. Estellena Showes, Agnes Underwood, Mae Parrott and Nellie Buchanan

THOSE JUNIOR SORORS (they're all 13 and 14 years old) the Sigma Omega Kappas, saw "The Ten Commandments" Friday, then went on to the home of Carol Spencer for lunch and a discussion of the picture.

Know what? These youngsters have pledged themselves to raise $100 for the NAACP Freedom Fund!

They are Carol Spencer, Andrea Brown, Veronica Hackett, Beverly Barrett, Jackie Finney, Carolyn Dotson, Arlyce Chapman, Anita Sampson, Brenda Winder, Patricia Smith and Catherine Jordon.

THE MATERS don't tucker their kiddies in bed, Saturday night, and then hold forth at Cupid's dance for the fathers.

They wined, dined and danced until the wee hours.

Missing were Margaret and Madison Walker, because of her illness, but about were:

Esther and Ralph Hudson, Jessie and Ernest Jones, Regina and Johnny Simmons, Juanita and Robert Harris, Ellen and Bunny Melvin, Etheline and Thomas Ballard;

Betty and William Wooden, Mandy and Robert Bynum, Mildred and William Parrott Jr., Maxine and John Gaskins and Joan and George Stevenson.

Now the Maters have their heads together planning an Easter party for the children.

ON SUNDAY, Moncella P. Cook gave a birthday dinner for her son, Ellsworth, at her Piedmont Avenue home. The dinner was at five and was attended by members of the immediate family.

These included Moncella Cook, Edythe Cook, Delores C. Green, Thomas Cook, Charles, Linda, and Nathan Cook, Fannie C. Marshall and George and Sara Spencer, of Washington.

Dashing from dinner to be at their home on Harlem, at seven, Ellsworth and Edytha were expecting to host some sixty odd guests at a cocktail party at eight.

The drinks flowed like water. The canapes were so delicious some of the guests ate from 10 to 12. They all had a wonderful time sipping cocktails and listening to the new Hi-Fi which was given to him by his wife and children.

Guests at the party included:

Drs. and Mesdames R. C. Jones, B. I. Higgins, Louis Hall, Messrs and Mesdames Arnold Gamby, Henry Blair, Bruce Bragg, Elroy Wilson, Jesse Redden, Moses Davis, Fred Tilghman, Theodore Murray;

Messrs. and Mesdames Gilbert Cook, Hyland Williams, Franklin Kent, George Simms, James Veney, Joseph Cook, George Spencer, William Adams, Frances Whyte, William Dixon;

Messrs. and Mesdames Bernard Briggs, Lawrence Cook, Samuel H. Hall, Raymond Carpenter, Sidney Frowies, James Meane, H. T. Carpenter;

Messrs. and Mesdames Charles Richardson, Ernest Diggs, William Gosnell, Morris Shipley, and Bob Croxton;

Mesdames Elizabeth Culver, Alice Hall, Mae Allen, Ida Hughes, Blanche Dixon, Kathy Coleman, Patricia Wooten, Olivia Bates;

Misses Shirley Gilmore, Mildred Tafe, Catherine Law, Linda Seaborne, Ethel Cook, Amy Moore, and Cora Norris;

Irving Pratt, Frank Carr, Donald Hall, Thomas Parker, James Burrell, Clarence Smith, Preston Johnson, William Jones, Vance Cook, and Roosell Tabb.

From Washington came, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Spencer, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wallace, Edgar Lansey, Irving Pratt, Arrie Sharpe;

Paul Howay, Carl Parshall, Albert Browne, and Claude Muldrow. Mesdames Dorothy Nelson, Edna Bland, Marie Scott, Barbara Braxton, Anne Pearson, and Maria Brightwell.

SMALL ROXANNE CHISHOLM celebrated her sixth birthday at a gala party given by her parents, Buddy and Jeanette Chisholm, Sunday.

The youngsters played games, recited poems and sang (the latter being recorded and played back to them, much to their delight) and were entertained by magic tricks.

They were greatly intrigued by a vanishing milk trick and an egg bag one, to say nothing of an empty bag filled from nowhere . . . all performed by George Peck Jr.;

At the party were Tanya Quille, Karen Rouse, Linda Taliaferro, Marsha Williams, Joe Ann Minnis, Julia Brooks, Richard Showes, Lester Hudgins;

John Lane, Henry Goodman, Bedford Bentley, E. Diamond, M. Simpson, William Johnson, Lonnie Nickens, Lloyd Mitchener, Richard Quarles, Eugene Henry and Harry Cole.

Alpha Wives told to come in casuals and they did

When Alpha Wives presided, Catherine Adams, sent out notices that "casuals" would be in order for Tuesday's meeting, she probably had no idea how far she had lowered the bars.

The girls took their president literally and staged a fashion parade in leisure clothes, ranging from the usual slacks, to peddle-pushers, culottesm husband's shirts and what have you.

Ada Veney held all eyes when she appeared in a World War II Army uniform, which several years ago had adorned the ample frame of her husband, Frank.

It didn't take long for everyone to drop all formalities and get to the serious business of having fun.

Adding to the merriment was the caverting of the budding dance trio of Catherine Adams, (who reached way back for a pair of those lace-up high-top shoes) Ada Veney (soldier suit and all) and Alma Gray (who was dressed conventional.)

And to top it off Alma did a solo.

Hostesses for the evening were Ella Edemy, Margaret Driver, Otyce Proe and Lucille Fitzgerald.

Others enjoying the evening were:

Elaine Hardy, Mae Campbell, Bertie West, Marguerite Brown, Carol Hayshert, Olivia Dixon, Maxene Higginbotham, Rubye Walker, Mae Pitts, Elk John, Hilda Higgins, Louise Dennis, Josephine Kimbro, Hortense Winder and Francis Mackay.

Schmidt's Blue Ribbon bread has new wrapper

"A wrapper for easy reading."

That was the topic of conversation among some 1,000 friends and employees of the Schmidt Baking Co., Sunday when that firm unveiled a new package for their product.

The company let the public in on their latest innovation at a dinner party at a local hotel.

The surprise package is an entirely new blue and white bread wrapper that has been designed with larger letters for easy reading on the grocery shelf.

The new package now on the market is the result of an extensive survey conducted by the company which revealed that housewives wanted to be able to see their favorite bread at a distance.

• • •

IN DESCRIBING the new package, company president Carl P. Schmidt said that the survey showed that shoppers had to back away from bread displays to read the end labels and could not read the top of the loaf because the labels were printed in the wrong direction.

To put the idea into circulation, the company used electronic devices and re-engineered its wrapping department and wrapping technique.

Headquarters for the Schmidt Baking company is at Carey and Laurens St.

There are branch offices in Martinsburg, W. Va., Cumberland, Md., and Johnstown, Pa.
