'Knew something was dead up the creek'

He didn't say anything so I pants and marched him right grabbed him by the seat of the to the police,"

James F. Coogan, post office inspector, in reference to the case, told the AFRO Wednesday.

"We're going to let the prosecution be in the Juvenile Court. I filed a petition over there Monday morning."

According to Mr. Coogan, the youth stole a magazine which was in a condensed form.

Police credited Mr. Brown with catching the youth red-handed.

MR. BROWN, an amateur detective who likes to study law books and frequent the Courthouse, reported he was walking along the 500 block of W. Mulberry St. Saturday morning about 8:45 a.m. when he observed the boy looking at a "for rent" sign on the house.

"I was across the street and I smelled a rat. I stopped and watched the boy," Brown said.

"I also saw the mailman put mail at 505 W. Mulberry just before he approached the house," Mr. Brown continued.

"He went into the vestibule right after the mailman left and closed the door.

"I walked over across the street where I could see just what he was doing and I saw him take the mail, put it in his coat and zip up his coat."

* * *

STATING THAT he then knew something was "dead up the creek," Mr. Brown approached the Bond youth and said:

"What are you doing?"

The youth replied that he was "just looking at the for rent sign," Mr. Brown said.

SCROLLING the AVENUE

A celebration will hold the spotlight at the CLUB TIJUANA this Saturday and there will be some mighty fine music to make it a gala affair.

The occasion is the second anniversary of the Interracial Jazz Society, the group which is responsible for bringing a lot of good music to Baltimore.

The doings start rolling at 9 p.m. when the Society presents Al Cohn and the New Jazz Quintet that will be well worth hearing.

* * *

COHN IS a tenor sax man of the Lester Young and Stan Getz school and also one of the original Four Brothers of Woody Herman's Second Herd.

That's the group that was distinguished by its "head" arrangements as typified by such terrific numbers as "Four Brothers" and others in a similar vein.

Cohn has recently held down the post of chief arranger and writer for RCA Victor jazz artists.

* * *

THE NEW JAZZ Quintet hails from Washington and features Bill Potts on the piano, Al Seibert on the tenor, Earl Sayoc on the trombone, Norman Williams on the bass, and Jim Lucht on the drums.

This promises to be one of the best of the Saturday afternoon jazz bashes and we can't think of a better place to spend Feb. 16, than at CLUB TIJUANA.

For the future, the Jazz Society has lined up a number of star attractions including Sonny Stitt, Kenny Dorham, Chet Baker, Zoot Sims, Sonny Rollins, Donald Byrd, Gigi Gryce, Horace Silver and Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers.

* * *

OF INTEREST to jazz buffs is the news that the aforementioned Sonny Stitt has been tentatively scheduled to open at the COMEDY CLUB next week.

Original plans called for Oscar Peterson to fill the bill at the COMEDY CLUB, but a conflict in dates grounded the plans.

Currently featured at the club, is the exciting music of Jaques Moody.

Miss Julia, the lady in the hat check room, passes on the information that the customers leave chanting the praises of Moody which is a very good recommendation and constitutes an excellent reason for visiting the COMEDY this week.

* * *

OVER AT the CLUB CASINO the entertainment duties are being handled by Cornell Muldrow and Tommy Moseley, the youngster with the big voice.

Wednesday night the CASINO played host to a number of employees from Provident Hospital headed by Mrs. Vera Macer who also arranged the affair.

Keeping up with the calendar, the CASINO has bedecked its walls with cupids and hearts-all as a tribute to Valentine Day.

* * *

THE CLUB PAREE at 2714 Pennsylvania Ave., features a matinee every Sunday from 4 to 7 p.m.

Music comes from a group of gentlemen who call themselves the Night Hawks.

Wolst, Andy Brooke, Viala

The outfit includes Vernon Booker and Kenneth Polley.

Drinks and foods are first rate at the PAREE and the prices are very reasonable.

* * *

THE LAS VEGAS, over on Warwick Ave. near Franklin, is offering live entertainment and inviting givers of cocktail parties to make use of the club's facilities.

Like Old-Man River, Flink Johnson keeps right on rolling along at CHICK'S COCKTAIL LOUNGE. He has an all star group to back him up and the outfit includes one of the top sax men in Baltimore, Mickey Fields.

The RED FOX LOUNGE is very proud of Miss Ethel Ennis' with her smooth as satin style of delivery.

* * *

A GREAT DEAL of the pride is traceable to the fine reception that her latest recording, "A Pair of Fools," has received.

Every Tuesday night, Billy Foxx, the radio personality, shows up to join in the festivities. There's always a wonderful time waiting for you at the RED FOX so why not pay a visit this weekend?

THE SPOT BAR AND LOUNGE is featuring the music of Dottie Stearns and drawing large crowds. Door prices are given away every Monday and perhaps this Monday night might be lucky for you.

Like your music in the early morning? Well, a lot of people do as witness the crowd that turned out at JONES GREEN DOOR 'LOUNGE last Sunday morning.

Fact of the matter is that there is always something doing at JONES, one of the top night spots in town.

Hi-fi sounds are featured every Tuesday night at the PINK DOT, 1907 Greenmount Ave.; the Blue Pearls are at the CLUB AMBASSADOR; the CLOVER CLUB has Al Brown and the Tune Toppers.

Modern music is the theme of things at the CLUB ASTORIA with the Henry Baker group; Zane Cypress is the man at CARNIVAL LOUNGE; there's always fun in city the CROSSROADS, Pennsylvania Ave. and Fulton Ave. That's it . . . Have fun.

Fellowship to present Philadelphia singers

The famous Fellowship House choir of Philadelphia will be presented here by the Baltimore Fellowship House, Sunday, March 3, at 4 p.m. at the New Metropolitan Baptist Church, McCulloh and Mosher Sts.

The choir's performance in Baltimore will end a short tour which will include recitals in Wilmington and Washington.

Last year the Philadelphia group sang; in nine southern states and earlier, several of its members toured Europe with the choir's director, Mrs. Elaine Brown, at the invitation of UNESCO, the International Music Council, and the U.S. State Department.

MRS. BROWN is coral activities director at Temple University, is founder of "Singing City," and the winner of many awards for her contributions to brotherhood through music.

Within the Philadelphia Fellowship Choir is represented every race and religion, and such varied occupations as printing, sales, watch making, homemaking, teaching, chemistry, nursing, office work and art.

This season's tour includes musical numbers which range Gregorian and Hindu chants to works of contemporary American composers such as Aaron Copland and Randall Thompson.

The Philadelphia group has sung with the Philadelphia Orchestra on several occasions and has appeared at music halls like Carnegie Hall, and nationwide TV and radio programs like Ed Sullivan's.

Bear tankmen in final meet

The Morgan State College swimming team, undefeated in conference competition, completes its schedule here tomorrow (Saturday,) meeting Hampton Institute in a 2 p.m. contest in Hurt Gymnasium.

The team will host the tenth annual CIAA Swimming and Diving championships here February 28-March, 2.

Rossiter's re-opening give orchids, door prizes

Rossiter's Restaurant, for 45 years a famous landmark for seafood on the East Coast, began a three-day grand re-opening to last from Friday through Sunday, Feb. 15 - 17.

Located in the center of Hamburg and Hanover, Rossiter's, for the first time in its many years in food service, is open to serve all customers without discrimination.

The management will give orchids to the first 200 ladies to stop in during the three - day re-opening, and many door prizes will be given other customers.

The restaurant is open from 6 a.m. until 3 a.m., seven days a week.

* * *

ROSSITER'S WAS founded in 1912 by George Rossiter, who made the seafood haven famous throughout the Eastern seaboard.

While many colored persons have been employed there continuously, carry - out service only has been available to colored customers.

Mr. Rossiter, who was well known among the colored population as owner of the Baltimore Black Sox baseball team for many years, died 10 years ago, and his widow died three years ago.

Their death left the restaurant the property of their daughter Mrs. Anna Rossiter Lambdin who sold the property this month to Bernard Klien.

MR. KLIEN, whose father was the first president of the Harlem Theater company, immediately closed the restaurant upon acquisition and announced that after refurbishing it would be re-opened—without discrimination.

Very prominent in real estate for many years, Mr. Klien said,

Klien told the AFRO he "sold thousands and thousands of homes in Northwest Baltimore to colored people. He still is a stockholder in the Harlem Theater, he said.

He has big plans for his new restaurant and his new integration policy, he said.

He made Eugene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb his general manager of the restaurant and bar, which will serve "all of the new liquors," Mr. Klien said.

* * *

MR. LIPSCOMB is a stellar fineman of the Baltimore Colts football team.

Mr. Klien said that his place would be where all of the show people would come when they appear in Baltimore.

He said his reason for opening the doors of Rossiter's to all races was that "I think Baltimore is ready for this type of thing. This place is known for its seafood, and we think we can give the colored people of Baltimore something they don't have.

"There is not a good restaurant from Northwest Baltimore down to Annapolis where colored people can sit down and have a good meal," he said. "We think there's a dire need for it."

The restaurant is only two blocks from the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, a main route between cities of the East and the South and Southeast on Federal highway 301.

Mr. Klien said that the second floor of Rossiter's would be available to inter-racial groups who, heretofore, have not had accommodations for meetings, parties and other types of interest meetings.

The rooms available range in size from capacities of 20 to several hundred, and are available without additional charge, Mr. Klien said.

Columbian pianist appears in recital

WASHINGTON

The Pan American Union sponsored a recital by Mireya Chaloela, Columbia pianist, in the Hall of the Americas, Pan American Union, Monday.

Cole to push his hiway bill

ANNAPOLIS—"Now that the hotel bill has been declared unconstitutional—I will begin to push Senate Bill No. 113 which will prohibit discrimination along state owned highways."

With this statement—State Sen. Harry A. Cole (Rep. 4th Dist.) signaled his intention this week of adopting a new line of strategy in his fight against discrimination.

Adoption of the new strategy is the result of an opinion issued last week by C. Ferdinand Sybert, Maryland's attorney general, in which he said the senator's bill, which would have outlawed discrimination in Baltimore city hotels, violated the state constitution.

IT WAS explained that the State General Assembly could not legislate on matters which involved "police powers" that had been delegated to the city.

In view of this opinion Senator Cole withdrew his bill despite indications that the measure would receive a favorable vote from the committee of city senators to which it had been referred.

* * *

HOWEVER, WITH the hotel bill now a dead issue in Annapolis, Senator Cole has made it plain that he intends to swing his energy behind his highway measure.

This bill would prohibit the operator of any public facility, such as a hotel, motel or restaurant, located within 300 yards of a state owned highway, from discriminating against any customer.

Musician fined $200, pal gets 2 years in dope case

"I think that a minimum of two years is not too appropriate in some cases. I'd like to give a reasonable sentence and place him on probation."

Judge S. Ralph Warnken made this observation Wednesday in the case of a 21-year-old bass player who pleaded no contest to a charge of possessing a marihuana cigarette.

The jurist levied a fine of $200 and cost after returning a guilty verdict against the defendant, James Lee Jefferson, 1700 block N. Bentalou St.

"YOU ARE NOW in the category of a second offender if you are caught again," warned Judge Warnken in reminding the defendant that if convicted on a second charge of narcotics violation he could receive from five to ten years imprisonment.

Hampton Whiteside, a 26-year-old hair stylist, 2700 block Pennsylvania Ave., received two years in the House of Correction after pleading guilty to selling Jefferson a marihuana cigarette for $1 on Jan. 24.

Charges against a third defendant, Francis B. Jones, 23, 3000 block W. North Ave., were nolled by the State after Joseph Koutz, prosecutor, said he lacked evidence to prosecute the man.

ACCORDING to Lt. Joseph Carroll, head of the narcotics unit, the men were arrested Jan. 24 by Officers Bishop Robinson and Allen Burke, who had been staked out near a barber shop in the 2600 block Pennsylvania.

The lieutenant testified that his men found a single reefer in a car occupied by the defendant.

Later, according to Lt. Carroll, Whiteside turned over to narcotics officers 11 marihuana cigarettes he had secreted in the shop where he is employed as a hair stylist.

Mr. Whiteside, sentenced to a year for drug addiction in New Brunswick, N.J., in 1955, told the court, "I first got a charge (from reefers) when I was 13 years old." He said he later graduated to deadlier drugs.

"I found out heroin was a body destroyer so I quit using it," declared Mr. Whiteside.

Mr. Whiteside, who also has worked as a horse groomer, said he was given the marihuana by "a race track companion" who stopped in Baltimore en route to Florida.

AT ONE point in the cross examination of Jefferson, Judge Warnken warned him that if he continued to "evade questions, I'll put you where you'll have a long time to think."

When the jurist wanted to know when Jefferson started using marihuana, the defendant said, "I'd heard different people speak of it before and I was just curious."

"Do you get any kind of thrill or exhileration from smoking them . . . How does it affect you?" queried Judge Warnken.

"It made me feel the same way alcohol does," replied the Dunbar High School graduate.

"What kind of mood does it put you in?" continued the judge.

"A playing mood or a listening mood," said Jefferson.

"I'm a musician by profession."

JEFFERSON, wearing a gray Ivy League suit and hog glasses, said besides playing in a local combo five nights a week he also is a member of U.S. Army reserve band.

"Would you say Jefferson is a casual user?" Bernard Feilchenfeld, attorney for the musician, asked Lt. Carroll.

"Marihuana, in my opinion is not addiction-forming," answered the lieutenant.

At this point, Judge Warnken queried the Lieutenant, "Do you think that cigarettes are habit-forming?"

"Yes, sir," replied Lt. Carroll, "but I wouldn't say addiction forming."

'Freedom left out of our independence': Dr. Franklin

"Only in the U.S. has there been a marked distinction between the struggle for independence and the struggle for human freedom.

"Almost every country in the world that fought for its independence carried on a simultaneous struggle for human equality."

Dr. John Hope Franklin, noted historian and head of the Brooklyn College, New York City, history department, was speaking to Coppin State Teachers College students Wednesday when he made the above statements.

Dr. Franklin recently returned from India where he spent a three-week period, representing the American Council of Learned Societies at the Centennial Celebrations of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay Universities.

CONTINUING HIS address at Coppin, Dr. Franklin said: "The United States made a distinction. Therefore freedom was not a part of our American heritage.

"General Washington did not want us in the War for Independence.

"It has been necessary to rehabilitate the struggle for freedom and force it into the total picture of our history.

"Here we are 75 years later, fighting for freedom while in other countries like Haiti, Mexico, Peru, and Argentina they incorporated freedom with independence.

* * *

"THE TASK of those who would now carry on our fight for freedom is two-fold Dr. Franklin stated.

"We must fight and destroy the myths that have obscured the birthright of all Americans.

"We must engage in legal, political and educational programs which will bring freedom into the full picture of American life," Dr. Franklin said.

'Scarface' tip wins AFRO top weekly award

An AFRO reader was walking along the street the other night when he found out about the body of a dead man in the block between Franklin and Pine Sts.

This alert NEWStipster called the city Desk and AFRO reporters did the rest.

The results? A streamer story and a $5 top award for the wide awake tipster.

There were other tipsters who called in leads that developed into news stories this week.

Information on the death of the sexton of Macedonia Church was worth $2, and the first person who called in the tip about the automobile accident at Eutaw and Roberts won an award of $2 also.

Tip on the shooting in Turner Station which involved an ex-police officer Wednesday night won the tipster an award of $2.50 and the paid another $1 for additional data which a mysterious caller phoned to the City Desk.

* * *

TIPS WHICH receive checks for $1 apiece are: Auto crash at Sess Restaurant; Vincent Tubbs not guilty of rape in Chicago; robbery of teacher's home; and the tip on the minister who spent a day of prayer and fasting to reach a major decision.

Also the Beautyrama robbery; and additional information of Ricky's girl friend.

This week and every week, a total of $25 is set aside for AFRO NEWStipsters who telephone their news to the City Desk.

And another $25 is available for News Photos.

Alert tipsters and photographers can cash in on these awards every week. Just get out the camera and keep your eyes peeled for a newsworthy picture.

And listen for newstips. You may be the lucky Tipsters next week.

Newstips numbers to call are: MU 5-0015, 6016, 1812 and 1813. If there is no answer, call LA. 3-2811.
