BIGGEST BECAUSE IT'S THE BEST

Man who was 'dead' talks for the AFRO

By MARY STRATFORD

WASHINGTON

A man's heart may bleed for love or money and his continued survival is no more remarked upon than the fact that he walks upright and lives at 415 Butternut St., Takoma Park, Md.

But let that same heart bleed from knife wounds—no greater pain than love—and survive an operation after there is no discernible breath or pulse; then that becomes a matter of great consternation and the owner of such an organ is pointed to as a living monument to scientific achievement.

• • •

THE OWNER of such a heart, William L. Alonzo Jackson, is the present pride of the surgical staff at D.C. General Hospital. The 20-year-old resident of Takoma Park was seated in a wheel chair at the hospital, Wednesday.

His comments ranged from his girlfriend to his struggle for livelihood, but he had little to say about the operation.

"I want to get out of here," Jackson said, ordering a pillow to support his back.

A doctor, whose eyes brightened as he described the operation young Jackson survived, observed wistfully:

"I don't think he realizes what has happened. If only there had been some way he could have watched the operation. He has become sort of a hero overnight."

JACKSON ENTERED the hospital last Friday about 11:30 p.m. in an unconscious condition. He had been stabbed twice: one wound travelling straight down into the left shoulder—the other, the critical one, passing through a lung and into the heart chamber.

He was unconscious. There was no blood pressure. It was not apparent whether the heart had been pierced. Jackson was given two pints of blood.

An X-ray film showed he had blood inside his chest. The blood was tapped after Jackson was taken to a ward. But the patient failed to respond even after a transfusion of five pints of blood.

Taken to an operating room, Jackson appeared worse as the doctors prepared for surgery. In fact, physicians believed he was dead.

THERE WAS no pulse when an incision was made, the patient did not bleed. As doctors worked, they found a laceration of the lung and active bleeding from a hole in the heart.

One surgeon stopped the blood flow in the heart with a finger while another gave a blood transfusion. Then the three-quarter inch gash in Jackson's lower left heart chamber was stitched.

Meanwhile an estimated five pints of the five to seven quarts of a man's normal blood volume had accumulated in his chest. Jackson was sutured, and as the chest closed, his blood pressure began to rise and his heart movement weakened.

THE VICTIM of a stabbing during an argument, Jackson concedes he had a close brush with death.

"I was born in D.C. General Hospital, and I'm almost dead here," he says matter of factly.

Police said they arrested Alphonso Lee Boyd, 19, of the 1600 block Hannah Pl., NW in the stabbing. Jackson was brought to D.C. General Hospital by Miss Frances Madison, 900 block Decatur St., NW, described as his girlfriend.

• • •

A YOUTH who seems to take pride in disguising his adult status, Jackson provoked this agreement by being "boisterous with the old police."

But, Jackson says:

"Boyd told everybody I was tearing up his house. I didn't tear it up. He came at me with the knife and I held his hand.

"I don't remember getting cut. I was holding his hand, and suddenly I felt myself getting weak. I figured I'd better get out of there. I ran out the door onto the sidewalk, I fell down. I got up and started running again. Next thing I knew, I was in the hospital."

• • •

ORPHANED SINCE he was about 14, Jackson, employed at a laundry on Cedar St., NW, says he's had to "go it alone."

Father of a three-month-old son, Jackson marvels not at the operation but how the child's mother managed to get him into a taxi and bring him to the hospital.

"She only weighs 105 pounds," he said.

"I hope," he added moving restlessly, "she's got herself nobody else since I've been here at the hospital."

Mt. Winans matron found dead at home

"Lee Hardy, that's her friend, came over here and asked me to call the police because he thought she was dead.

"I had just left them around 9:45 p.m. and I couldn't believe it so I asked some neighbors to go over and sure enough she was gone."

Mrs. Ellwood Ware, Mt. Winans, was telling how she learned of the sudden death late Wednesday of her neighbor, Mrs. Edna Garrett, 56, 7632 Puget St.

She managed a confectionery business and taught Sunday School at the Star of Bethlehem school a the Star of Bethlehem

The body is now at the City the audience stand in appreciation Morgue awaiting an autopsy.

'My battery was dead'

"I didn't know anything about registration. My husband died three days after he bought the car.

"My battery was dead and a flow was pushing me."

That's what Mrs. Josephine Anderson of 1704 Dukeland St., testified to in Traffic Court Wednesday morning when charged with driving over 15 miles per hour on an expired 15-day registration permit.

Magistrate Robert Watts fined the young widow $5 and costs for speeding and suspended the registration permit charge.

JAMES JENNINGS of 433 E. 20th St., testified that he didn't know he was speeding on East Lanvale Ave., because speedometer on the car he had just bought was faulty.

Charges against Mr. Jennings were dismissed, and he was ordered to pay $15 costs only.

Marce Harrison, a cab driver of the 1600 block Ashland Ave., was also ordered to pay courts costs after he pleaded guilty to obstructing traffic on Afterson Park Ave.

Mr. Harrison told Magistrate Watts: "I might've gunned it, I don't know. A passenger in my cab held me up while she talked to a friend."

1950 AFRO Mother's funeral set

RICHMOND

Mrs. Elizabeth Coles Bouey, 63, the AFRO Mother of the Year for 1950, died early Tuesday morning at her home, 1827 Maplewood Ave. Her death came just six months after that of her husband, the Rev. Edward H. Bouey, who died last Aug. 4.

Funeral services have been scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday, at Ebenezer Baptist Church.

• • •

BORN IN Africa to Missionary parents, she was brought to this country in her infancy. She was educated at Virginia Union University and later, in 1941, won her masters degree at Columbia.

Shortly after she began her teaching career in the Richmond public schools, she met and married the Rev. Mr. Bouey. Together they returned to the same spot in West Africa where her parents had worked years before.

They re-established the Bendoo Industrial Mission where they served as independent missionaries for nearly five years. Two of the children, Edward and Melicent, were born during this time. A third child, Elizabeth, was born soon after their return to this country.

• • •

AFTER A TRIP to Belgium, the Boueys returned to Africa as supervisors of schools under the Foreign Mission Board, of the National Baptist Convention. During this time, they built the Capper Dyer Hospital in Monrovia, Liberia.

Returning again to the United States, Mrs. Bouey resumed her teaching in the Richmond school system. When she retired last November, she had taught a total of 31 years—most of this service was at Capper High School.

Mrs. Bouey was founder and for 17 years president of the National Association of Ministers Wives which now has branches in 32 states and three foreign countries.

• • •

SHE WAS A MEMBER of Ebenezer Baptist Church where she served as teacher of the young women's Bible class. She also taught the Bible Class of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church for 12 years and also taught the Baptist Fellowship's Bible class here.

She went one fearly to speak to the women at the state prison farm at Goochland as part of the institution's religious education program.

Among the many local and national groups she belonged to were the Richmond College Women's Club and the Delver Woman's Club.

• • •

MRS. BOUEY traveled extensively throughout the United States, Africa, Europe and Asia. Last summer, just before her husband's death, they visited the Holy Land where she was baptized by her late husband in the River Jordan.

This is what Roy Wilkins said at hearing on civil rights

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — The Eisenhower Administration's civil rights proposals are the minimum that 22 fraternal, union, veterans, civil liberties, welfare and religious groups will accept as "meaningful" legislation.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, made this testimony Tuesday before the House Judiciary subcommittee which was holding hearings on 45 civil rights bills.

He appeared in behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union, American Council on Human Rights, American Ethical Union of the National Committee of Public Affairs, American Jewish Congress, Americans for Democratic Action, American Veterans Committee, Friends Committee on National Legislation, the Elks.

Also the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (AFL-CIO), Japanese-American Citizens League, Jewish Labor Committee, Jewish War Veterans, National Alliance of Postal Employees, the NAACP, National Community Relations Advisory Committee, National Council of Negro Women.

• • •

Also the Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice, United Automobile Workers of America (AFL - CIO), United Hebrew Trades, United Steelworkers of America, Workers Defense League, and the Workmen's Circle.

• • •

THE ORGANIZATIONS, Mr. Wilkins, have endorsed the recommendations of President Truman's Civil Rights Committee and regard those recommendations as representing "real needs" that are long overdue.

That committee made 35 recommendations calling for a permanent commission on civil right, a joint congressional committee on civil rights, and a civil rights division in the Justice Department.

Among other things, it also called for legislation to strengthen existing Federal civil rights statutes, a Federal anti-lynching law, more adequate protection of the right to vote, establishment of a fair employment practice commission, and the banning of racial discrimination in interstate travel.

It also called for home rule and suffrage in Presidential elections for the District of Columbia, statehood for Hawaii and Alaska and a greater measure of self-government for insular possessions, equal opportunities for residents of the United States to become naturalized citizens, and settlement of evacuation claims of Japanese-Americans.

• • •

MR. WILKINS said the groups he represented recognize that all of these recommendations cannot be carried out at one time.

He said they were interested "in taking a first step toward breaking the congressional stalemate through the enactment of a minimum meaningful bill."

The Administration bill which passed the House last year and is again being sponsored in the House this year by Rep. Kenneth B. Keating, Rep., N.Y., is "a compromise bill."

He said it is meaningful because it would be "a step forward in the safeguarding of the two most basic rights — the right to vote and the right to security of the person."

Apparently, Mr. Wilkins used the term "security of person" in the belief that provisions of the Keating bill would extend to cases of violence directed against colored people in school desegregation cases and in riding buses on an unsegregated basis.

• • •

"THE RIGHT to vote has been flagrantly and systematically denied colored citizens in many parts of the South," Wilkins charged.

He filed with the committee a sample of the Alabama Democratic ballot which carries the symbol of a rooster and a declaration of white supremacy.

"Not only administrative devices but economic repriseals and outright violence have been used to prevent colored people from voting," Wilkins said.

To show how fear works, he referred to Humphreys County, Mississippi, which, he said, had 900 colored voters in May 8, 1955, the number had been reduced to 92.

On that day the Rev. George W. Lee, who had been active in getting colored people to register, was shot to death in Belzoni, Miss.

• • •

WHITHIN A FEW weeks, he added, there was only one colored person eligible to vote in Belzoni.

Wilkins identified the lone voter as Gus Courts, who ran a grocery store in Belzoni. He added that Courts was shot and seriously wounded in his store on Nov. 25, 1955, and has since left the state.

Statewide, he said, some 22,000 of the 400,000 colored persons eligible were registered to vote in 1954. By primary day in August 1955, he said, the number had been "forced down to about 8,000."

Wilkins told the subcommittee that any legislation providing only for a civil rights division in the Justice Department and a civil rights commission without Federal civil rights statutes "would be civil rights legislation in name only."

THE SUBCOMMITTEE Tuesday heard its first witness in opposition to civil rights legislation. He was Edward Gobelist, an FBI agent, now commissioner of motor vehicles of North Carolina. He has charge of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol.

"There may be persons in the northern, eastern or western parts of our country who feel that they need not be concerned over this bill under the campaign in Louisiana "to purge as many colored voters from the books as possible."

He quoted Assistant Attorney General Warren Olney 3rd as having testified before the Senate Rules Elections and Privileges subcommittee that over 3,000 colored voters had been illegally removed from the rolls of Ouachita Parish (County).

"Not only administrative devices but economic repriseals and outright violence have been used to prevent colored people from voting," Wilkins said.

VANILLA SOUR CREAM CHOCOLATE CAKE—Pure vanilla and chocolate, favorite favorites since Spanish conquistador Cortez was served a beverage made of vanilla beans and pulverized cocoa beans by Aztec emperor Montezuma in 1519, combine deliciously in this vanilla sour cream chocolate cake.

Vanilla-chocolate desserts to highlight February menus

Vanilla-chocolate desserts February, "the month of sweethearts," because the sweet rapport of vanilla and chocolate makes one of the oldest, and most romantic stories in flavor history.

Back in 1519, Cortez, swaggering conquistador, fell for the flavor duo when Montezuma, ruling emperor of the Aztecs, served him "xocolatl," a cold frothy drink made from vanilla and cocoa beans. The Spaniard took bags of the beans home with him along with gold, silver and gems looted from Montezuma's treasury.

When Anne of Austria, daughter of Philip III of Spain, crossed the Pyrenees to become the bride of Louis XIII, in 1615, she brought the secret of vanilla-flavored chocolate to Paris. The popularity of vanilla-flavored sweets of all kinds spread rapidly to other continental capitals—London, Amsterdam and Rome. Such chocolate Bonnes as London's "Cocoa Tree" opened in 1657, developed into club for the rich and fashionable.

Meanwhile, Hugh Morgan, British apothecary, discovered that vanilla, separated from chocolate was a delectable independent. It soon became a star in its own right as well as a flavorsome ally of chocolate, and for more than two centuries his held overwhelming lead as the most popular individual flavoring in the world for confections, cakes and ice cream.

The following three recipes exemply the imaginative ways in which "the favorite flavor pair—vanilla and chocolate—can be combined to brighten winter menus.

• • •

SOUR CREAM Chocolate Cake is made with one-half cup shortening, two eggs, one and three-fourths cups sugar, two cups sifted cake flour, one teaspoon baking soda, one-half cup sour cream, one-fourth teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup strong cold coffee, two teaspoons pure vanilla extract, three-fourths cups stiang cold coffee, mock caramel frosting four squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.

Blend shortening and one cup sugar together until fluffy. Sir in soda, salt and pure vanilla extract. Blend in melted chocolate. Gradually add remaining sugar, mixing well. Beat in eggs one at a time. Sir in flour alternately with sour cream and coffee. Beat batter one-half minute. Turn into two 8 by 8 by 2-inch square pans that have been well-greased and lightly floured.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 40 minutes or until done. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Turn out onto wire racks to finish cooling.

Spread Mock Caramel Frosting between layers and over top and sides of cake.

Mock Caramel Frosting is made with one-third cup butter or margarine, two and one-half cups sifted confectioner's sugar, one cup dark brown sugar, two teaspoons pure vanilla extract and one-fourth cup cold water.

Brown butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add brown sugar and water. Bring to boil and boil 1 minute. Cool. Add confectioner's sugar and pure vanilla extract. Mix well.

YIELD: Sufficient frosting for tops and sides of two 8-inch square or round layers.

• • •

FOR CHOCOLATE-Vanilla Bread Pudding use one-third cup sugar, two tablespoons butter or margarine, one-fourth cup cocoa, two cups milk, scalded, two egg yolks, beaten, two cups soft bread crumbs, one to one-half teaspoon pure vanilla extract, vanilla meringue and one-fourth teaspoon salt.

Combine all ingredients except vanilla extract, butter or margarine to scalded milk and add to the first mixture. Stir in bread crumbs.

Pour into a buttered one-quart baking dish. Bake on a preheated slow oven (325 degrees F.) one hour or until almost firm over the top. Cover with vanilla meringue and bake 15 minutes longer in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) or until browned.

Vanilla Meringue is made with two egg whites, one-half teaspoon pure vanilla extract, two teaspoons cold water, one-fourth cup sugar, and one-eighth teaspoon salt, and one-fourth cup sugar.

Combine first four ingredients in a mixing bowl. Beat until soft peaks are formed. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until stiff. Pile lightly over top of pudding. Bake in a preheated slow oven (325 degrees F.) until brown about 15 minutes.

Sunday supper

Sunday suppers often need "quick fixing" and yet in cold weather they call for stick-to-the ribs food.

"Peachy Dinner Dish" is successful on both counts. It's a supper dish featuring canned peaches, canned pork luncheon meat and sweet potatoes. No fussy foods, these, so you won't find the men folks shying away.

Fluffy mashed sweet potatoes and spicy chunks of the luncheon meat go into a baking dish along with a little butter, peach syrup, onion and a sprinkling of salt and pepper.

After a brief baking, canned golden cling peach slices are arranged over the top; sprinkled with brown sugar, dotted with butter and broiled until lightly browned. Real good? Never better!

• • •

PEACHY DINNER Dish requires one (No. 2½) can cling peach slices, four or five medium cooked sweet potatoes, one (12-ounce) can pork luncheon meat (three tablespoons butter or margarine, one-fourth cup finely chopped onion, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one-fourths cup brown sugar (packed); and butter or margarine.

Drain peaches, saving one-third cup syrup. Peel and mash sweet potatoes. Cut pork luncheon meat into cubes. Combine with sweet potatoes, butter, onions, seasonings, and the peach syrup. Mix lightly.

Bake in greased 8-inch square baking dish in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Remove from oven; top with peach slices; sprinkle with brown sugar; dot with butter and broil until peaches are lightly browned—about 7 minutes.

Coconut ring

JIFFY COCONUT ring is made with two cups sifted enriched flour, one tablespoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth cup shortening, one egg beaten, one-half cup milk, and melted butter or margarine.

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar, cut or rub in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Combine egg and milk and add to flour mixture, stirring only enough to moisten dry ingredients.

Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out to rectangle one-fourth inch thick. Brush with melted butter or margarine and sprinkle with Coconut Filling.

Roll up like jelly roll, sealing edge. Form into ring on lightly greased baking sheet. With scissors cut through ring almost to center, in slices about one inch thick.

Turn adjoining slices of dough on opposite direction and bake in oven. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 25 minutes.

My Coconut Filling uses one-half cup chopped shredded coconut, one-fourth cup brown sugar, one-fourth cup chopped nuts, two tablespoons enriched bread crumbs, two tablespoons melted butter or margarine. Combine ingredients and mix until well blended. Makes 1 coffee cake.

Olive stuffing for meats

For people who love stuffing as much as turkey, there's no need to wait until Thanksgiving to enjoy this savory treat. "Olive Stuffing for Meat" goes as well with pork chops as it does with turkey.

Juices from the meat penetrate the bread mixture during baking, adding their bit of flavor to that supplied by the onion, sage and ripe olives.

Brown the chops first; then line them up in a 5 by 11-inch loaf pan, fat side up, with stuffing between each chop. Be sure to bake at least 1½ hours in a moderate oven so the chops get done clear through.

• • •

OLIVE STUFFING for meat is made with six cups stale bread cubes, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon sage, few grains garlic salt, two-thirds cup chopped onion, three-fourths cup chopped celery, one-fourth cup melted butter or margarine, and two-thirds cup ripe olives.

Sprinkle bread with salt, pepper, sage and garlic salt. Saute onion and celery in butter. Combine with seasoned bread cubes. Chop olives coarsely, add to bread and mix lightly. Moisten with hot water or stock if bread is very dry.

Makes about one and one-half quarts stuffing.
