Death ends marriage of 4 days

WASHINGTON

"Charles got the shotgun out of the closet. He told me to stay inside. He went out of the room. A minute later, I heard one shot."

This is what Mrs. Juanita Moore, 1200 block Constitution Ave., NE, testified, Wednesday, in a tear-strained voice at the first-degree murder trial of Ellsworth Cook, 32-year-old car washer and father of Mrs. Moore's son.

Mrs. Cook is on trial for fatally shooting Charles L. Moore, 27-year-old bridegroom of Mrs. Moore, as police rushed to the scene—too late last July 15. Mr. and Mrs. Moore had only been married four days when the bride's ex-suitor allegedly invaded their home.

MRS. MOORE further testified as follows:

"I ran into the closet. Cook came in the room and walked over and grabbed me by the arm. I didn't resist because he had a gun.

"He pulled me in the hall. I could see Charles still gasping for breath. Cook told me... 'Well, I got him, I might as well get you.' Then he jumped up the steps."

DURING THE first few hours of the proceeding the widow appeared to be on trial for her alleged relationship with the defendant. Cook, up until the date of her second marriage last July 11.

Defense counsel attorneys, James Laughlin and Wesley Williams, attempted to show that the bride continued relations with Mr. Cook long after her engagement to Mr. Moore.

He was backed by Prentice Five police station on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. Witness said they found a five-inch blade on the defendant.

Miss Myers is the daughter of the late Mrs. Sue Myers of Washington, who formerly was employed at the Library of Congress for approximately four years.

Members of her late husband's family.

Cook, a smooth-faced, straight-haired man, sat with his face cocked to one side during the proceedings. He was well-groomed in a brown gabardine suit and print tie.

THE DEFENDANT has been in confinement since he was ordered held by a coroner's jury July 16, except for a brief period during which he was released on $2,000 bond. He was ordered recommitted without bond when Mrs. Moore reported receiving more threats.

The widow was suddenly called after Dr. Christopher A. Murphy, deputy coroner, arrived late for the afternoon proceedings. Wednesday, John W. Green, step-father of the victim, and Eugene Campion, morgue attendant, were the first two witnesses.

at the questions and answers as the trial began. Proceedings are scheduled to resume Monday following a scheduled lay-off today (Friday).

COOK IS accused of breaking into the newly wedded couple's home in the 1200 block Constitution Ave., NE, and fatally shooting Mr. Moore as the latter tried to protect himself and his bride with a shotgun while awaiting police.

He is charged with first-degree murder. If convicted as charged, the penalty is automatically death in the electric chair.

Thomas Flannery, assistant U.S. Attorney, said he intended to prove Mr. Cook was angry because Mrs. Moore married Mr. Moore after ending a common-law marriage with the defendant.

The prosecutor told the six-man, six-woman jury that the defendant called Mrs. Moore at her home about 6 a.m., the day of the shooting, warned her he was coming over and then broke into the front door with a gun.

MRS. MOORE quietly told the last few minutes of the tragedy when she found her husband dying in the hall of their home, a bullet wound in his neck. The bride said only after her husband had died, Cyril Police saved her life. She testified:

"The phone rang about 6 a.m. My husband answered it gaily. I knew it was Cook. He asked why I hadn't answered the door bell. I told him I was afraid of him. He asked me 'I'm coming around there,' and hung up.

"I asked Charles if I should call police. He said yes. I called Ninth Precinct. A few minutes later I heard a big glass in the door breaking and the sound of footsteps in the hall.

"I started out of the bedroom to the door, but my husband pushed me back."

Mrs. Moore maintained her composure throughout most of the testimony, until shown pictures of her slain husband in pajama tops and shorts.

The widow wiped away tears as the jury examined the photographs of the death scene.

Mrs. Moore wore a gray suit and fur-trimmed coat during the first day of the trial. She was accompanied by

Dead veteran's insurance policy brings $10,000 suit

WASHINGTON

A suit was filed in U.S. District Court, Monday, to determine if Heywood Z. Pulley, former post office clerk, paid the premium on his $10,000 GI life insurance policy before committing suicide last Feb. 9.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Fannie S. Pulley, widow of the victim, Mr. Pulley, 39, died at his home, 3915 W. Windham Rd. in Brentwood, Md., after slashing his throat with a razor, according to Prince Georges County police record.

Lt. Earl J. Huber said Mr. Pulley was found about 9 p.m. last February 9 in the bedroom, his neck cut from ear to ear. He left a note saying he was dependent because his wife had left him.

THE VICTIM was survived by his wife and two children of the 1200 block Penn St., NE. He had been estranged from his family for several weeks. He was a veteran of World War II.

Mrs. Dovey Roundtree, attorney for Mrs. Pulley, says the Veterans Administration is contending that Mr. Pulley was already dead when the premium payment on the National Service Life Insurance policy was mailed the day of his death.

Mrs. Pulley says her husband mailed a $10.20 money order in payment of the premium before committing the fatal act.

She says the payment was received and held by the VA. Her claim as beneficiary has not been recognized, however, the petition states.

"There is genuine disagreement as to the validity of the claim," the petition states.

The NSLI policy does not waive benefits in the case of death by suicide. The petition for judgment also provides a 10 per cent payment for counsel

Wounded library clerk recovering

BULLETIN

A preliminary hearing for Thomas Blackwell was held Thursday and the case continued until Feb. 21. Bail was set at $1,000.

WASHINGTON

Miss Lillie Myers, 28, is in good condition at Freedmen Hospital after being stabbed in the back and chest while on her job as a clerk typist with the Library of Congress.

Miss Myers resides at the Phyllis Wheatley YWCA, 901 Rhode Island Ave., NW.

The Howard University graduate was attacked in the second floor corridor of the building during the noon hour. Police officials held Thomas Blackwell, 28, 3600 block 10th St., as the assailant. He is an employee of the Mount Alto Veterans Hospital.

LIBRARY officials said Mrs. Myers was cut in the back and chest as she was walking in the public hall back to her section following lunch. Mr. Blackwell was described as an acquaintance who was visiting her in the building at the time. He was booked on charges of

Bishop says some folks 'raise hell'

WASHINGTON

"All that some people do in the church is raise hell."

Such was the comment, Monday, by Bishop Alexander P. Shaw before the Methodist Ministers Union at the regular weekly meeting at Asbury Methodist Church, 11th and K Sts., NW.

Bishop Shaw, now retired, was guest speaker. He talked on "American Race Relations," the subject of a pamphlet recently written by him.

A NATIVE of Mississippi, the former presiding bishop over the Baltimore area was here this week to promote the distribution of his 28-page booklet on race relations.

Bishop Shaw described the pamphlet as "a plea to the white race to use its strength and give America a race relations program equal to its wealth."

He add: "Racial segregation is destroying the real fitness of America and the white race.

"The world has become very small. New inventions have made it a neighborhood," he said.

"I'm glad that in a large measure our progress is being led by the church."

Bishop Shaw scored what he called "exclusiveness" in the church. He compared it with the practice of racial segregation, in and out church activities.

"LET US keep before us the great idea against any kind of exclusiveness," he urged ministers. "Close the gaps in our churches.

"All that some people do in the church is raise hell. That is the thing that has destroyed a good many of our churches."
