INAUGURAL FEVER HITS CAPITAL SOCIAL FRONT AS THOUSANDS OF VISITORS CROWD FETES

PARADE DIGNITARIES—Leaders of units of the 1957 Presidential inaugural parade included Gov. and Mrs. Walter A. Gordon of the Virgin Islands (left) and E. Frederic Morrow (wearing Homburg). Mr. Morrow, a Presidential aide, is director of the special projects group at the White House. He was marshal of the sixth division of the three-and-a-half-hour parade. In center is musical float from the Virgin Islands, including steel band which played lifting melodies to delight of 750,000 spectators.

MIX COCKTAILS AND POLITICS — A series of social affairs were attended by visiting dignitaries and local federal officials Sunday afternoon. Seen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Williams (left) expressing surprise at a bit of repartee is Miss Lois Lippmam, White House secretary, as Sterling Tucker of the Washington Urban League, makes notes and Mrs. India Wallace Scurlock, Freedmen's Hospital, just looks pretty. Seen exchanging pleasantries (center) also at the Williams home are Mrs. Jacqueline Watts of Baltimore; Mrs. Doris Freeland and Mrs. George Butler. Engrossed in chitchat at the home of Mrs. Higginson Rogers in Georgetown are Mrs. Estelle Hankins, Mrs. Rachel Lawrence and Mrs. Willie L. Churchill.

WHEN GOOD REPUBLICANS GET TOGETHER — There seems to be a huge joke being bantered about from the broad smile on the face of Mrs. Margaret Hawthorne Chesney (center left) as she chats with Daniel Shields and Mark Brown at the reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Burke who were hosts at one of six inaugural receptions. In the center Mrs. Wesley Williams is the attraction surrounded by Grand Civil Rights Director of the Elk Hobson Reynolds, Philadelphia, and State Senator Harry Cole of Maryland as Capt. Louis Mehlinger, Dr. Henry Robinson and Judge Robert Watts of Baltimore fill out the background. Pennsylvania was well represented at the home of the Spurgeon Burkes in the persons of Mrs. Robert L. Vann of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Hobson Reynolds. At extreme right is their hostess, Mrs. Burke, while F. E. De Frantz and Spurgeon Burke try to peek over the ladies spring hats.

Visitors flock to inaugural fetes

WASHINGTON

Visitors at Sunday's social functions following the President's closed inaugural oath-taking came from points throughout the Eastern Seaboard and as far west as Missouri.

Homes decked in patriotic patriotic colors and the pink, gray and blue combination officially approved by the Inauguration Committee, opened up to welcome chief at 51 receptions in honor of the President.

The emphasis was on personalities. As one observer put it, "the guest lists read like pages from Who's Who". And Hostesses provided a fitting background for the political chatter with accoutrements such as flags and reproductions of the national eagle.

MRS. EPHONZO FREEMAN, 1106 Lamont St., NW, hung huge pictures of President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon over the mantle in her dining room.

Primarily entertaining representatives of the Republican State Committee of the District, which included George L. Harris, national committeeman for the District and his wife, Mrs. Freeman followed the red, white and blue color scheme throughout.

From a chandelier in her living room swung a mammoth ball in the patriotic colors. The theme was also carried out in floral arrangements throughout the home, and by the napkins and plates.

THE GEORGE FLEMINGS, whose guests included Senators and Ambassador and Mrs. George Padmore of Liberia, held hall in their home at 942 Quincy St., NW, with the American flag and pictures of the president-vice president team.

They chose the inaugural pink candles, pink roses and carnations for the reception lamp, and white tablecloth.

* * *

AT THE home of the Wesley Williamses, 1810 Randolph St., NE, the hostess was one of the few who filled the political air with music. Louis Finley, music instructor at Cardozo High School, played continuously at the piano throughout a two-hour period.

Mrs. Williams, despite the distraction of "guests without number," noted that the music played only once for a taste of the refreshments.

* * *

OTHERS WHO entertained, Sunday, included Mrs. Higginson Rogers, 1522 3rd St., NW, Mr. and Mrs. W. Spurgeon Burke, 3658 Park Pl., NW, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carter, 1127 Buchanan St., NW.

Except for the Flemings', all the receptions, given from 5 to 7 p.m., were under the auspices of the Virginia White Speel Club cooperating with the Official Hostesses and Hospitality Committee for the Inaugural Committee for 1957. Mrs. Ida Smith Taylor is president of the Virginia White Speel group.
