County voters will pick new council

Wednesday January 23 is election day for the 194,428 registered voters who live in sprawling Baltimore County.

Voters in such towns as Towson, Catonsville, Dundalk, Edgemere, Back River, Norris Lane, Sykesville, and Pikesville, will go to the polls on that date to select a County Council.

This will be the first such council for Baltimore County which has a total population now that exceeds 300,000.

For the election, the county has been divided into seven councilmanic districts which cover 610 square miles.

PRIOR TO THE home rule bill which passed at the last general election last November, Baltimore County was governed by a board of three commissioners, with headquarters in Towson.

Under the new council system, the far-flung country will have authority vested in a council made up of representatives from each of the seven major sections of the county. Some of the candidates have been invited to appear at a public meeting on Monday at 8 p.m. School

'Knew where I was,' says missing minister

"Sure. I knew where I was all the time, but I would rather not say."

Safe in his home at 1708 Riggs Ave., that was the comment on Wednesday of the Rev. Jarry Jackson, pastor of the Friendship Baptist Church at 1320 Carroll St.

His wife, Mrs. Martha Jackson had reported to police Dec. 23 that he had not been seen since Christmas Eve when he left home to visit friends in Philadelphia. The minister returned to his home here late Monday.

On Sunday, the deacons of his church were notified by phone that the Rev. Mr. Jackson had been found safe in Delaware.

ASKED BY an AFRO reporter where he had been in Delaware the minister stated: 'In some little town. I don't know.

Why wife knew where I was going and I sent letters and telegrams back home but I never got an answer.

"I'm not feeling well right now, but my being away had nothing to do with that," the Rev. Mr. Jackson commented.

'Ace' Thomas gets 5 years for daylight burglaries

"I knew that I had done wrong, so I told Sgt. (J. Hiram) Butler about the burglaries. I know that I have caused trouble and have caused heartaches to my family."

William (Ace) Thomas, 21, 200 block E. 20th St., who pleaded guilty to 12 daylight burglaries, directed these remarks Wednesday to Judge John J. Tucker in asking the court for mercy.

He was sentenced to a total of five years in the Reformatory.

John Weiss, assistant State's attorney said Mr. Thomas' mode of operation was to enter jimmy a rear or cellar door to enter the homes of his victims.

"He states that the reason he's done all these things is because he's married and has one child, and has been out of work for a year," Mr. Wiess told the court.

THE DEFENDANT was arrested on Dec. 28 by Sgt. Butler and Officers Lloyd Johnson and James Watkins.

Sgt. Butler said when he first entered the case the only lead he had was a nickname, which he supplied him by one of the victims, Mrs. Margaret Young, 2903 Gwynns Falls Pkwy.

According to the sergeant, Thomas and another man were hired by Mrs. Young to do some painting at her home. When she discovered some household appliances missing, she gave this information to officers along with the nickname.

Sgt. Butler said on the day of his arrest, Thomas had burglarized the home of Mrs. Pauline Carter, 2312 Braddish Ave.; and made off with some of the man from's Christmas gifts.

ANOTHER VICTIM. — Mrs. Obelia Myers, 2800 Walbrook Ave., was ill and had just gone to the hospital when the convicted burglar entered her home, the officer related.

She recovered most of the stolen goods by working day and night," explained Sgt. Butler, adding that the defendants pawned most of the household appliances and jewelry taken in the daylight thefts.

"In 1951 I became an enemy of society and I was very successful," Thomas told the Court.

He said early last year his wife told him she didn't want him out of town so much, "so I tried to get a job here."

The arresting officer, however, refuted Thomas's story about being an entertainer.

According to Sgt. Butler also one time he was a handy man for a singing group known as the Swallows.

'I was kidnapped,' policeman reports

"Here's a blanket. Maybe you won't freeze so fast."

According to a Southwestern District patrolman, that's what three men told him Wednesday as they left him tied to a tree in freezing weather on a farm in Howard County.

Patrolman Charles W. Zeller stated that he was kidnapped by a heavy set' brownskinned man and two blond companions when he found them acting suspicious at the rear of a refrigeration plant in the 2300 block Frederick Rd.

The officer said that while talking with two of the men in a parked car, the third hid behind a tree and as he approached them pulled a revolver and declared, 'Don't move, I'm kill you!'

OFFICER ZELLER said that he was stripped of his coat, gun, and Blackjack. He was then forced to accompany the men on an hour-long ride.

At a farm off Washington Blvd., they tied him to a tree with a clothesline and a pair of his trousers tied a noose in his across his face and threw a blanket around his shoulders.

Within an hour, the officer said that he freed himself, went to the farmhouse and telephoned the state police at Waterloo Barracks.

'Memorial Day figure 'guilty'

WASHINGTON

Mrs. Lottie J. Crittenden, who first insisted on her innocence, changed her plea to guilty this week for the fatal burning of her common-law husband, Harry Johnson.

Accused of soaking him in kerosene and burning him alive, last June 30, Mrs. Crittenden reportedly said at the time of the incident: "Now I'll know where to find him every Memorial Day."

In changing her plea to guilty of manslaughter, she escaped the mandatory death penalty in the District. She now faces from five to 15 years for the slaughter.

No mention of her alleged "Memorial Day" quote was made at the trial.

'Mr, McPhail, you should never drink'

"Mr. McPhail: you should never drink. You will have to pay the penalty. There is too much cutting going on here."

With those words, Magistrate Linwood G. Soper Sr., Wednesday in Northwestern District Police Court, fined John McPhail, 46, 500 block N. Monroe St. $100 for cutting Henry Pittman, 1100 block Harlem Ave. on December 22.

Officer Anthony Bizzarri testified that the two men cutted at the Mount St. address.

Mr. Pittman, the prosecuting witness said: "He came in drinking and started an argument. He threw a bottle at me and cut me."

In another case Wednesday, Northwestern District Police station, Theodore Outen, 23, 500 block Oxford St. was fined $25 for disorderly conduct. Mr. Pennsylvania Ave. and Hoffman St.

Paul Marsh, 35, 100 block Pennsylvania Ave., received a $10 suspended sentence on the same charge.

'It cracked but who knows why

Ever had a television set go "boom" when it wasn't turned on?

That's what happened last week to Mrs. Ozella Sullivan, 1317 Madison Ave., when her set went "boom" and the glass over the picture tube shattered into thousands of tiny pieces.

"It was about 3 a.m. when it happened," said Mrs. Sullivan, and it went off like an explosion. I'm not sure what caused it to go off 7:30 p.m. and I don't know what made it do that."

THE SET, according to Mrs. Sullivan, has been in use for about four months and had given no trouble, that is until it blew up.

The TV repairmen who 'answered Mrs. Sullivan's call were unable to explain what had caused the set to act as it did.

The manner in which the glass shattered was reminiscent of the manner in which automobile windows have been known to crack.
