Adah K. Jenkins' MOMENTS MUSICAL

There is something about the rendition of "The Messiah" in a church sanctuary that imparts to that truly magnificent work additional dignity and majesty. Its first performance was in the great Westminster Abbey in London, before the English king, George II and his court.

Sunday, Dec. 22 marked another "first" in the line of tradition of "The Messiah," when 43 of the 53 numbers of this monumental oratorio were sung by the 90-voice joint choirs of Union Baptist Church, of Orange, N.J. and of Sharp Street Memorial Methodist Church of this city.

The visiting choristers in their black robes and white stoles and the local singers in maroon and gold gowns filled the choir loft, the chancel and one side of the front section of the gallery.

A BRILLIANT contrast was made by the clerical robes of the Rev. Vance McIver, pastor of Union Baptist, and the collegiate gowns and hoods worn by Albert A. Tillery, conductor, the Rev. Julius Carroll, at the organ console; the Rev. Edward Carroll, pastor of Sharp Street Church; and William Beverly, candle-lighter, in robe and surplice.

It was a setting admirably suited to the highly dramatic interpretation which was given this rendition of "The Messiah." It was done in bold, splendid strokes, giving the full impact of what is considered one of the truly great musical compositions ever written.

Handel had been writing operas for many years when he left his native Germany and took up his abode in England.

THE BRITISHERS were the lovers of opera as were the Continental Europeans and Handel turned his attention to the oratorio as a new avenue of composition. The English music lovers were impressed with his first oratorio "Esther" and succeeding ones increased his popularity.

Altho the oratorio is religious in concept Handel lent to it his marvellous gift of dramatic expression through music.

It was this quality that was most salient in the performance by the joint choirs, though the atmosphere of worship was preserved by the prelude of chimes played by the Rev. Julius Carroll, the invocation, scripture lesson and pastoral prayer, which preceded the oratorio.

SOLOISTS WERE Veronica Tyler, soprano and Dorothy Lofton, contralto, both young Baltimore singers and Peabody Conservatory students; Leroy Gibson, tenor, and Albert Cherry, bass, of New Jersey. The accompanists were Olida Bomst, pianist, with the visiting choir and the Rev. Mr. Carroll, organist.

It is to be hoped that this joint rendition of "The Messiah" will become another Baltimore tradition, as the Union Baptist Choir has made it in Orange, New Jersey.

AN ADVENT observance of simplicity and nostalgic charm marked the annual holiday Assembly held in the Hurt Gymnasium at Morgan State College, preceding the vacation. Led by Dr. Richard I. McKinney, orator, the Biblical text was read and the audience joined in the traditional carols, accompanied by Morgan's Symphonic Band.

The College Octet, directed by Genevieve Wisner of the music faculty, sang with full-bodied resonant quality that gave added meaning to the Advent spiritual "Rise Up Early," especially arranged for the group by Dr. R. Hayes Strider, director of the music department.

Two works by modern composers, Peter Menzen and Peter Wilhousky were sung by the College Choir, Clarence A. Henderson, of the music faculty, conducting. "Arise, Shine" and "Carol of the Bells," are in the style of the neo-classics, using modern harmonies and melodic treatment in the patterns that were popular in the heyday of the classic school of Bach and Mozart.

The choristers also did one of the most glorious of the great choruses, "Unto Us a Child is Born," from "The Messiah."

THE SYMPHONIC Band, conducted by Dr. Strider, opened the Assembly program with Bach Chorale "Sleepers Awake."

It recalled the traditional Advent custom of the Moravian Church, brought to Pennsylvania during the early days of the colony and still practised by the church in Bethlehem, Pa. Their service is begun by the playing of Christmas hymns by a brass ensemble from the church tower.

The band also provided music for the Chorus Group, Dorothy B. Phelps, choreographer. They concluded the program on a note of delightful gaiety with the popular holiday songs, "White Christmas," "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "Christmas Song" and "Sleigh Ride."

Dr. Martin Jenkins, president of Morgan, extended holiday greetings to faculty and students. The program sponsored by the Assembly Committee, J. Walter Fisher, chairman.

THE SENIOR Choir of Grace Presbyterian Church presented the Christmas portion of "The Messiah" last Sunday under the direction of the organist and choir master, Prof. Herman Schwarz.

The roster of soloists included some of our most experienced singers in the field of oratorical music. They were: Fannie Newton, soprano; Charlotte, alto; Richard Blackwell, and Donald Steppers, tenors and Moore Carson, bass.

Gladys Davis was guest organist.

The Grace Presbyterian Church Choir has a long tradition of presenting some of the great oratorios and cantatas. The Rev. Robert T. Newbold, pastor and Prof. Schwarz have continued, with the cooperation of the choir, to uphold high standards in the special holy day presentations as well as in the monthly Sunday Music Hours of Worship.

MURPHY—In sweet and loving memory of our daughter and sister, VIRGINIA, who passed away January 5, 1956:

It is as if a silver chord
Were suddenly grown quite
And life's song with its rhythm marred.

Against a silver lute
Was laid the chisel of night
— Had she a summer day
And winter, sighing at their plight
Bent low beside the way.
For she was part of all the best
That Nature loves and cherishes
And evermore on memory's breast
She lives and laughs and rests.
THE FAMILY.

PAYNE — In loving memory of our father and grandfather, WILLIAM H., who passed away January 5, 1956:
