something proper about this occasion.

"She put so much goodness, beauty, kindness and love in her service to others."

my casket repeated on the

The $1,500 African mahogany church altar which was banked with more than 25 floral designs.

A florist present at the rites estimated their value at more than $2,000.

Baskets, sprays and floral blankets lined the rails of the altar, were placed along the entire front of the church and filled the church windows down each side of the main auditorium.

The blanket which covered the entire lid of the closed casket was enscribed, "To Aunt Helen." It was from her nieces and nephews.

It was designed with 25 orchids as a cornerpiece. The deep violet blossoms nestled in a sheet of 500 white carnations which were deeply bedded in dark green maidenhair fern.

TO THE RIGHT of the casket was a huge circle of 200 small white mums edged by two dozen white gardenias.

To the left of the bier was the FEW Harper Elks Lodge floral "Broken Circle," fashioned with a dozen white orchids surrounded by white gardenias.

The Holland Funeral Home employees' floral tribute was also a broken circle and designed entirely with white gardenias, gold magnolia leaves and a large gold satin ribbon.

A large basket of long-stemmed white snapdragons and giant white crysanthemums was from the Funeral Directors and Morticians Association of which the deceased was a member.

OF NOTE WAS THE tall basket of brilliant red and white tulips and white carnations enscribed, "A Friend," and the spray of purple asthers and white and gold crysanthemums.

Also noteworthy was the circle of debutante pink camellias and the floral cross which rose back of the casket, also designed with camellias and white and purple orchids. These tributes were from the St. Francis Florists.

Other designs were of British heather, orange, red, white and yellow gladioli, red roses, calla lillies and white lillies.

More than 500 persons passed the casket which was open at the funeral home on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. 1,250 people paid respects prior to the services.

Pinned to the pale yellow ruched chiffon velvet lining were four corsages of tiny rosebuds fashioned in the design of crosses and two orchid corsages.

Also pinned to the lining was the FEW Harper Elks Temple badge.

FOR BURIAL Mrs. Holland was dressed in a pale blue chiffon negligee with corn lace at the neck and bodice.

At her shoulder was a corsage of large white orchids white two purple orchids were pinned at her waist.

Many persons passing the casket remarked that she deceased woman appeared to be asleep and the Rev. Reginald Daniels, an assisting minister said: "Her countenance was silently pleasant."

Her soft gray hair was arranged in the coiffure so familiar to those who knew her, parted on the left side, a soft wave falling just above the right eye.

The only jewlery was pearl earrings and necklace.

As early as 8:30 a.m. mourners were present at the Bethel Church. By 10:30 a.m. the main auditorium was filled except for seats reserved for relatives and close friends, honorary and active pallbearers.

The balcony was nearly filled by 11 a.m.

At 11 a.m. the casket was closed and the Bethel Church bell began to toll. The family arrived at 11:05 and entered the church vestibule.

The procession was headed by members of the combined Trinity and Bethel Church choirs.

With the Rev. Mr. Miller who officiated, the deceased woman's pastor, and the Rev. Harrison J. Bryant leading, the 22 assisting ministers followed wearing official ecclesiastical garb.

The church bell continued to toll until the family was seated nearly 11 minutes later at 11:12 p.m.

OUTSIDE THE church many people stood in silence on all four corners of the street and lined Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St. throughout the sixhour and 20 minute services.

The combined choirs opened the services with Mrs. Holland's favorite hymn, "Lead Kindly Light."

The Rev. Robert T. Newbold Jr., made the invocation and said: "Through patience and the comfort of the Scriptures, may those who mourn find hope and consolation."

The Rev. Baxter L. Matthews read the 23rd Psalm from the Old Testament.

The Rev. Cedric Mills gave the reading from the New Testament: "Now is Christ risen from the dead . . . The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death . . . Oh, death, where is thy sting" and concluded as he changed those present to "be steadfast, unmovable."

THE REV. EDWARD G. CARROLL read resolutions of sorrowfulness and sense of kindness from friends and associates and read resolutions from the Druid YMCA Campership Committee, Dr. Louis E. Harmon, chairman.

The Rev. Mr. Catroll also read a subscription letter by the "official family" of the Trinity Church, Mrs. Estella L. Jarrett is church secretary.

WORDS OF COMFORT were given by ten ministers with whom Mrs. Holland was closely associated.

The Rev. J. Timothy Boddie said: "Mrs. Holland did something for a funeral which gave her a uniqueness. She changed the atmosphere from a sad, dark, melancholy occasion to a clean, dedicated, spiritual ritual.

"She gave personal attention and interest, understanding and sympathy which was charitable, benevolent, cooperative and respectful."

He added: "Instead of being there on the corner of Druid Hill Ave. she is on the corner of Grand Blvd., which goes by the throne in Heaven."

THE REV. MR. DANIELS noted persons from all walks of life were present.

He said: "There is a gathering of people who cross all differences of race, color, creed, social and denominational barriers.

"She was a good influence. She was really sharing unselfishly what she had in life."

THE REV. S. A. THOMPSON recalled that Mrs. Holland was a "great Christian, church worker, great citizen who did service to all mankind."

He said, "She was faithful, now she wears the crown."

The Rev. Lawrence Lacher offered two prayers of consolation and solace and said: "Whoever shall believe in Him shall not die. We shall not be sorry without hope."

• • •

THE REV. W. P. MITCHELL, formerly pastor of the Trinity Church and minister to Mrs. Holland, said: "She was honest in her dealings. She was a Christian at heart.

"She had a queenly disposition."

The Rev. Mr. Bryant said: "Baltimore has never seen a more faithful and loyal serv-and as she was when she went in and out of homes, helping, serving, doing good.

"We can never forget Helen Holland."

The Rev. Guy E. Kagy recalled that he knew Mrs. Holland when he became Vicar of the St. Katherine's Church and he said: "I found her to be most kind, generous and sympathetic. She always wanted to do something for others."

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom stated: "Mrs. Holland had the neatest heart that ever beat."

"The Rev. Mr. Carroll just said to me that it could be so. Honored that gift she gave to ministers alone approached $100,000.

"She belongs now to the ages. This is no time for sorrow. It is a time of triumph."

The Rev. Arthur Payne said: "She had a sweetness that was rare. Her goodness stood out.

"She never left a minister without making her appreciation known by a gift."

The Rev. Mr. Miller said, "Her earthly life released her to the limitless life beyond. Her earthly life's experience showed that she had a beautiful anticipation of eternal life."

THE BETHEL CHURCH bell also tolled during the recessional.

Trinity Church members served as flower bearers to form an aisle beside the funeral car while the assisting ministers also formed a line to the hearse.

Members of the family, honorary pallbearers and members of the Elks lodge filled nine black Cadillac limousines to form the processional to the Arlington Memorial Park burial ground.

Also in the processional were 20 additional cars bearing friends and associates.

AMONG THOSE OUTSIDE the church was James G. Blair, 1708 W. Mosher St., who remarked: "She was a dear and close friend of mine. She served us during the death of seven members of my family."

Mrs. Juanita Beyer, 701 Druid Hill Ave., said: "She was a wonderful woman, so kind to everybody. She was our friend."

Ernest Eltrell, 1606 Druid Hill Ave., said: "She was a splendid woman."

Floyd Newsome, 702 W. Lafayette Ave., said: "She was the sweetest person I have ever known in my life."

William H. Corbin, 47, 1020 Bruce St., said: "She buried my father and I'll never forget her. She was one nice lady. She was a friend to me."

MRS. HOLLAND WAS born the fourth of the seven children of the late George W. and Mary Francis Gibson.

She was married to the late George Henry Holland, who founded the Holland Funeral Home. Her brother George T. A. Gibson Sr. was helped her obtain her directors license, died in October, 1958.

It is estimated that Mrs. Holland directed the burial of 38,325 persons since the death of her husband in 1923.

In 1941 she was made a member of the AFRO Honor Roll as a funeral director who had "exhibited the type of patience and rendered the kind of understanding service which endeared her to the hearts of her fellow citizens."

She was a member of the NAACP, the Progressive Social Club, the Perdita Social Club and

MR. AND MRS. HOLLAND had no children. She is survived by her nieces and nephews:

George T. A. Gibson Jr., who manages the funeral home; William S. Gibson, Mrs. Beulah Gittings, Mrs. Olive Freeman, Mrs. Anna Monroe, Miss Cora F. Gibson.

Also, Sister M. Benigna, Oblate Sisters of Providence, St. Francis Academy; Mr. and Mrs. George Holland and Mrs. Irma Wise, Philadelphia;

Leonardo, OSF; Miss Carrie Chew, Howard Gittings, Mrs. Addie Hill, Mrs. Anna Bond, Mrs. Jane Brown, Bertha Foote Williams, Hazel Myers, Elizabeth Gordon, Dr. Bruce Alleyne, Mrs. Adele Carr, Mrs. Willie May Kelly, Mrs. Louise Wilson, Mrs. Pauline Harris, Mrs. Olivia Banks, Mrs. Mary Howard, William Talbot, Mrs. Narcissus Pinkney, Mrs. Frances Dennis, E. Victor Wright and the Holland Funeral Home employees.

IN ADDITION to the Thursday morning funeral services, special rites were conducted at the funeral home on Wednesday evening by the F.E.W. Harper Temple of Elks to which Mrs. Holland belonged.

Father Lasher of St. Mary PB Church conducted a rosary on Wednesday evening; and on Wednesday morning, Father Cedric Mills of St. James PB Church, had a special mass for Mrs. Holland.

Meanline, ministers of the city have been asked to make a living tribute to Mrs. Holland by sending a contribution in her name to the Madison Ave. YWCA.

Mrs. Holland was known as a friend to ministers. The Rev. Harrison J. Bryant, pastor of Bethel, recalled that she never forgot the ministers, always had an envelope for them on every funeral.

THE REV. J. Timothy Boddie, pastor of New Shiloh Baptist Church, originated the idea of sending contributions in Mrs. Holland's name to the YWCA.

In his letter, he said in part: "Mrs. Helen Holland of the Holland funeral home was called from labor to reward on Saturday.

"I am sure you will join with me in saying she was a credit to her profession, kind in disposition, warm and congenial in spirit, sympathetic and understanding in attitude, charitable and liberal in her remembrances, cooperative and respected for all her dealings.

"She was a friend to the ministry and church, and she exemplified a queenly Christian approach at all times.

"She had many of many interests in the community, but one which was closest to her heart was the Madison Ave. YWCA.

"In appreciation of her work and work with and for me in a living tribute to her by mailing either a personal or church contribution to the YWCA in her memory. She was worthy and deserving of such signal recognition."

went to sleep and froze to death.

HOWEVER, a hospital spokesman advanced the theory that Mr. Brown had started to walk from the hospital to Baltimore City and had headed cross - country.

When he reached the river, the spokesman theorized, he found it frozen and started across. At some point he stepped on a spot of thin ice and fell into the water and drowned.

Later, the same source said, his body was probably washed up on the bank.

THE DISCOVERY of the body was made by Amos Carr of Crownsville, Md., who reportedly told police he was on his way to his duck blind when he came across the body.

[illegible] about ten feet from the edge of a small cove that runs off the Severn River near Sherwood Forest.

Police said Mr. Brown was dressed in warm clothes above his waist and had on a pair of khaki pants.

THE SEARCH for the former entertainer started on Jan. 2 when it was discovered at Crownsville that he had gone out on the grounds with another patient and had not returned.

Attendants at the hospital searched the grounds but to no avail.

The search extended to Baltimore where a few years ago Mr. Brown was one of the most popular master of ceremonies on the night club circuit.

However, this search also proved useless.

In commenting on Mr. Brown's disappearance, hospital spokesmen said had been allowed a considerable amount of freedom because he was not considered a threat to himself or anyone else and he was in "good contact" with reality. His date of confinement was listed as May 27, 1955.

NEWS OF THE discovery of the popular emcee's body was relayed to his mother Wednesday night by her pastor, the Rev. Frank Frye of Amos Methodist Church, and her sister, Mrs. Bertha Williams.

On Monday, Brown's mother, Mrs. Martha Clark, 2405 Druid Ave., told the AFRO:

"They said he wanted to come home because he knew I was sick. They gave him privileges to walk around. I know he wanted to come home.

"I think he's afraid I'll send him back. I'd be glad to have him home."

Mrs. Clark said she recently recovered her sight after an operation on her eyes.

On Monday, she also told the AFRO she was still convalescing from the operation and would be glad to have her son at home because "he would be so much help to me."

The day after the discovery, the entertainer's mother, was too distressed to talk at length.

Mr. Brown was her only surviving son. Another son died at 15 and a daughter in infancy.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Brown attended public schools in St. Mary's County. He began singing while a public school pupil. He appeared locally and in Philadelphia, Washington and New York.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Amos Methodist Church, Carey and Baker Sts.

A Thumbnail Sketch of the Messenger

Mr. Elijah Muhammad, "The Messenger of Allah" said Spiritual Leader of the Moslems in the United States for nearly 30 years, has been passionately concerned with justice and freedom for the American Negro. For He long ago learned, and learned well, the lesson taught that no one individual can rise above the condition of his race. The Messenger has been a solitary man fighting for His ideals and principles. But He has never become discouraged or embittered. For His eloquence, wisdom and inspiration are derived from the triumphant teachings of Allah.

Today he stands alone as the unacclaimed Leader of the American Negro. For, even though there are truths in His teachings some people seem afraid of the brilliance of His visions and wisdom, and many are even shocked by His candor.

Yet in those who know Him intimately He has inspired loyalty, given meaning to their lives, and articulated their aspirations for "The Betterment of His People." To them, as a consequence, He has become the Anointed Leader. The Messenger is a remarkable person and the most model of public men. He has lived and suffered in the midst of the Negro's complicated problems.

MR. ELIJAH MUHAMMAD
The Messenger of Allah

The Messenger loves His People! To show His love and admiration He proposes to build a Medical Center. Not for His people only. This will be a non-racial hospital whose purpose shall be to help cure those millions of people who are now overflowing other well-known health institutions. The site has secured. He also proposes to build an educational center on the Chicago South Side. Whose help? Your help! Your dollars contributed to the Messenger to help accept a medical and educational center are not your only contributions but investments in your future and in the future of your children. Rev. Kearse to explain resignation

"All I could say, to be to the point, is that Dr. (J. Logan) Kearse resigned and I was elected president.

"I wouldn't care to elaborate further."

With those remarks, the Rev. William H. Thompson, pastor of the Whitestone Baptist Church, declined this week to discuss the unprecedented election which saw him replace the Rev. Mr. Kearse as president of the Baptist Ministers Conference just two weeks after the Rev. Mr. Kearse was elected.

However, the Rev. Mr. Kearse, who is pastor of the Cornerstone Baptist Church, indicated he would soon offer an explanation of his resignation from the highly regarded post when reached by the AFRO.

"I can only advise you to be present on Monday at Enon Baptist Church at noon when I will read a resolution," he said.

FOLLOWING THE unusual election on Monday the AFRO learned that the Rev. Mr. Kearse had resigned his new office after a motion had been made from the floor in favor of all the 1958 officers being reinstated.

Also, that in making his resignation, the Rev. Mr. Kearse suggested that all the newly elected officials be maintained except himself.

This suggested action was approved and the Rev. R. M. Williams, pastor of Zion Baptist Church, was elected to succeed the Rev. Mr. Thompson as first vice president.

The Rev. R. A. Laws, moderator of the New Jersey Baptist Association, presided over the hour and a half special session.

RECEIVES CERTIFICATE — Mrs. Vicie H. Hunt, of Boys Village of Maryland, receives her certificate as a graduate of a special course for housepartents from Dr. F. Reid Isaac, right, executive director, board of child care of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Church and chairman of the committee of institutional administrators. Looking on is the Rev. Arthur J. Payne, president of the Council of Churches and Christian Education of Maryland-Delaware. Twenty-four houseparents received certificates at the ceremony held Tuesday morning in the auditorium of the Enoch Pratt Free Library. Speaker for the event was Dr. John H. Fischer, superintendent of Baltimore schools, and guests included former Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

Ala. judge cited for contempt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —Circuit Judge George C. Wallace, who twice defied Federal court orders to produce vote registration records of two counties, was cited for criminal contempt Thursday.

The citation, which he must answer by Jan. 26, was issued by the Justice Department.

U. S. Distriet Judge Frank M. Johnson followed up the citation by ordering Judge Wallace to appear in Court Jan. 26 to "show cause" why he should not be punished for disobeying court orders. The two judges were classmates at law school and long-time friends.

THE CITATION came out of the investigation by the Civil Rights Commission into vote registration practices in Alabama. The investigation grew out of complaints by colored citizens that they were being denied the right to register ing denied the right to register and vote.

Judge Wallace refused to hand over records from Barbour and Bullock Counties saying that he had impounded them and they were in his custody.

After two Federal court orders to release the records to investigators, Judge Wallace turned them over instead to grand juries he hastily called in the two counties.

The grand juries, in turn, gave the records to the examiners.

JUDGE JOHNSON ruled that when the records were turned over by the grand juries, the purpose of the original order was served. However, he said, Judge Wallace was defiant of his order in failing to turn them over himself, as ordered.

Attorneys represented Judge Wallace when the contempt citation was ruled upon. Absent were the judge and also governor - elect John Patterson who, as state attorney general, advised local officials not to hand over the records.

Conviction on a contempt of court citation can lead to varying penalties. John Kasper, segregationist rabble - rouser, was sentenced to a year in federal prison when he was convicted of contempt.

Judge knocks out race bar in Alexandria (Va.) schools

By EDWARD PEEKS

WASHINGTON

Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan ruled Wednesday in favor of 14 Alexandria pupils seeking transfers to schools set aside for whites.

The outcome, however, rests on several factors, including the pending ruling of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals set for Monday on the validity of the state's so-called massive resistance laws

Judge Bryan granted a summary judgment in favor of the pupils, and ordered the Alexandria school board to report to the court by Jan. 24 on action taken on requests for transfers to four all-white schools.

He said the court will issue an injunction to restrain the school board from denying admission to public schools on the basis of race.

"The court will make the injunction effective Feb. 2," Judge Bryan said.

THAT'S THE date on which Alexandria schools begin the second semester and when the colored children expect to enroll in schools nearest their homes.

The action came in Alexandria Federal Court on a motion by lawyers for the children. Attorneys are Frank D. Reeves, Otto L. Tucker and James M. Nabrit 3rd.

Judge Bryan dismissed a counter motion by the school board calling for a three-judge Federal court to rule on the state pupil placement law on grounds that the board is without authority to assign pupils.

Action was taken without argument on either motion. The hearing was completed within 15 minutes once it was underway.

Attorneys on both sides held separate and joint conferences to cut through time consuming procedure in court.

The hearing was set for 11 a.m., but didn't get started until 12:30.

SCHOOL BOARD and state lawyers agreed to action without argument, but briefs were sent to judgment in the case.

Their motion was made by Lewis S. Pendleton Jr., special assistant to Attorney General Albertis S. Harrison, who was present. In court for the board were Commonwealth Attorney Earl Wagner and John B. Phillips.

A few parents of the children were present for the hearing, but all the pupils were in school. The courtroom wasn't crowded as it was on previous occasions in desegregation cases.

THE OUTCOME of the ruling will depend on action of the school board.

Judge Bryan said the board should decide on applications for transfer by "fair and just standards."

The children are to come back to court through their attorneys if they disagree with the board's action.

He indicated that he will make room on his crowded calendar to hear the merits of the case if controversy arises over the action of the board on transfer requests.

JUDGE BRYAN told both group of lawyers to "collaborate and prepare a decree in accord with views I have expressed."

He suggested that they consider his ruling in the 1956 Arlington school suit for language and form prohibiting pupil assignment or admission on the basis of race.

The final order will be signed and issued by Judge Bryan.

Four children in the Arlington case are to attend an all-white school beginning in February after legal delays and roadblocks in the suit since 1956.

ALEXANDRIA CHILDREN seeking transfers are as follows:

Theodosia Hundley, 14, from Parker-Gray High School to George Washington; Pearl Hundley, 12, same; Timothy C. Taylor, 13, same.

Patsy Ragland, 14, from Parker Gray to Francis Hammond High; James Ragland, 13, same.

N. C. Indians segregate themselves

RALEIGH, N.C. — Reversing the trend toward public school desegregation, Haliwa Indians of Warren and Halifax Counties last week, won the right to "dis-integrate" from their colored fellow-citizens.

Before 1887, Indians were required to attend schools attended only by colored pupils. They were forbidden to attend schools set up for white pupils.

In 1887, the Indians set up a private school near Hollister and operated it with their own funds. They appealed for state and county support but were turned down because their school did not measure up to standards for private schools.

There is a lucky picture in this issue every edition of the AFRO. Look for it. It may be you. If you spot it and identify you can win $5 cash. All you have to do to collect is to come to the AFRO City Desk before the next edition is out.
