investigation police were notified that a second shooting had occurred at the nearby Lafayette Ave., address.

When they arrived they found Bullock in bed with a .45 caliber revolver lying between his right arm and body.

Four bullets were still in the gun, and an empty cartridge was on the bed. A second empty cartridge was found on a nearby mantle piece.

Mr. Bullock was taken to Mercy Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival by staff physician.

AT THE HEIGHTH of the excitement, more than 100 persons milled about outside the three story brick apartment house.

By the time the morgue wagon arrived, the crowd had dwindled to less than 15 persons.

In their investigation police said they were told by Mrs. Mary Lee Wilson, neice of the deceased woman that Bullock entered her home through the back door shortly before 5 p.m. while she was preparing dinner.

He is alleged to have handed Mrs. Wilson six dollars and a bank book with the comment, "This is for my keep," and this (meaning the bank book) is Sarah Ann's."

After handing over two pawn tickets, Bullock reportedly told his neice, "Tell Ma, I had to do it."

MRS. WILSON said she was not aware of what he was talking about at the time and continued with her cooking.

Bullock then walked to his bedroom near the front of the house and removed some clothing from his overnight bag.

Mrs. Wilson said that when she became aware of what he had said, she went to his room where she found him unconscious in the dark.

When she switched on the lights, Mrs. Wilson said she saw the gun on the mantle.

Before she could make a move, Bullock snatched up the revolver, moved quickly to the side of the room where he sat down on his bed, and sent a bullet crashing into his brain.

Police said they were told by Mrs. Wilson that Bullock had recently moved from Guilford Ave., that the suicide weapon, a Smith and Wesson revolver had been taken from a trunk in his home early Tuesday.

THE APARTMENT house at 1819 is also the home of Bullock's sister, Mrs. Cherry Wilkins.

Bullock's violent death was the second in the family within a year.

Last January 11th, Mrs. Carrie (Piney) Sheldon, daughter of Mrs. Wilkins was found shot to death in an open field in Dundalk.

Because she was dressed in a gold silver cardigan sweater at the time of her death, Mrs. Sheldon was called the "Lady in Gold."

A 38-year-old jazz musician was later convicted of the slaying.

MRS. MADELINE HARPER, mother of the wounded girl, told the AFRO her daughter "was afraid" of Bullock.

"He was jealous. He didn't want to see her out with anybody and they had been going together a long time.

"This all started after Christmas. That's when he started threatening her" Mrs. Harper declared.

"Last Monday I sat right here and talked with him about her. He said, "I'm not bothering your daughter. Who said I was?"

* * *

MRS. HARPER explained that she was at work when the shooting occurred.

"When I got home someone met me at the door and told me to "take it easy" because Sarah had been shot.

"He (Bullock) took her six dollars and her bank book. She had $45 in her account" Mrs. Harper said.

She added: "Sarah Ann was afraid to go out it got so bad. He followed her around everywhere.

"She was even afraid to go to school because she knew that he would be waiting for her outside."

MRS. HARPER said that when she visited her daughter on Wednesday she noted an improvement.

"She was talking real good. I told her not to worry. I told her to hurry up and get well and go back and finish school.

"When I first went into the room she didn't care whether she lived or died. When I told her George had killed himself and wouldn't bother her anymore, she smiled.

"With the good Lord's help, I think she will pull through" Mrs. Harper declared.

MRS. CHERRY WILKINS stated that when she saw her brother on Tuesday, "he didn't seem right. It seemed as if he hadn't been right for two or three weeks" she declared.

Myles Wilkens of the 200 block N. Spring St., Bullock's nephew said the last time he saw his uncle "he was alright. We just talked. He didn't mention Sarah Ann at all."

Despar Clayton of the 400 block E. Lafayette Ave., a friend of the deceased in a note said that when he saw Mr. Bullock, "he was laughing and talking."

RELATIVES SAID the victim'll body would be shipped to Rocky Mount for burial.

Mr. Bullock is survived by his mother, Mrs. Carrie Bullock and father, Robert Bullock of Rocky Mount, and five brothers. They are:

James, David, Charlie, Ernest and Wally Bullock, and six sisters, Mrs. Wilkins, and Mesdames Clara Alkens, Lizzie Dickens, Carrie Worsley, Sidna Hussey and Miss Leanora Bullock.

band and had been acting strangely for some time.

The bodies were moved first to the J. Edwards Funeral Home at Bowling Green and later to the morgue in Richmond where autopsies will be performed by the medical examiner's office to determine the cause of the deaths.

Speaking in soft, modulated tones with a distinct Northern accent, the 33-year-old former college co-ed said: "I decided early this morning to kill them. I hadn't been thinking about it before then, but it suddenly dawned on me that if something should happen to me they would have no one to care for them. I didn't want to take that chance."

ASKED WHY her mother, Mrs. Maria Jasper, couldn't care for the children, Mrs. Browder said: "She getting up in age, she's 58."

Asked why her husband couldn't take care of the children in her absence, Mrs. Browder replied: "He's a man and he doesn't have a mother's heart."

Asked if she had considered the consequences, Mrs. Browder said:

"I know that whatever happens to me, that God will take care of me. I do care what happens because I am still of the flesh, but I have salvation as have accepted Jesus as my personal Savior. I was converted in August, 1956.

"When you are a Christian you want your children to associate with Christian people. I go to church when I can, but I don't believe in just going there to pay lip service, like some people do."

MRS. BROWDER told the AFRO that she was a native of Philadelphia and was graduated from Overbrook High School there. She then attended Hampton Institute for a semester, she said, and it was then (1941) that she met Edgar Browder Sr., whom she later married. At that time Browder was stationed at Langley Field Air Base, near Hampton, Va.

Mrs. Browder said he had been separated from her husband for about two years. She said they were "still friends."

Mrs. Browder said her husband lives at 5137 Pine St., Philadelphia and works at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

SHERIFF BROOKS said the dead children's grandmother, who lived with Mrs. Browder at Corbin, Va., left about 9:15 a.m. Tuesday morning, with a relative, Wilbur Jones, to drive to Fredericksburg.

They returned about 10:30 a.m. and were met at the door by Mrs. Browder who calmly announced: "I killed the children. I killed all of them and better off with the Lord. I love Jesus."

He said that Mrs. Browder's daughter, Joan, 5 was in one bedroom, her throat had been slashed with scissors. The other children, Edgar Jr., 3, and Sidney, 20 months, were in another bedroom. Both had been drowned in a pail of water.

Mrs. Browder was arrested at the house by the first officers to reach the scene. She readily and calmly admitted the slayings and gave reasons for her actions.

Since his family moved to Virginia last year, Mr. Browder spends the Stallworth family at 5137 Pine St.

He last saw his family the weekend of Jan. 3 when he went to Virginia in answer to a telegram that his son was seriously ill. However, he found the boy well enough to greet him at the door.

He returned to the city and his job on Tuesday, Jan. 6. He is a Navy Aviation Supply Depot, draftsman and attends night school.

Father says

off called was Mrs. Browder, who a few minutes earlier had calmly confessed strangling their daughter to death, and drowning their two sons. Mrs. Browder explained that she felt the children would be "better off with the Lord."

WHEN SHERIFF BROOKS talked with Mr. Browder, the 33-year-old mother showed her first signs of remorse.

She paced the floor nervously, and cried briefly, then resumed the calm attitude she has maintained since the triple murder was discovered.

Mr. Browder, who works for the Fourth Naval District, Department of Public Works, was studying evenings of the University of Pennsylvania.

He was taking an undergraduate course in city and regional planning.

Shocked by the tragedy, when asked for a statement, Mr. Browder said:

"I don't know what to say. There is nothing more to say. It wouldn't do any good."

THE GRIEF-STRICKEN father said brief funeral services for the children will be held at Long Branch Baptist Church, Caroline County. The Rev. W. H. Lawson, pastor, will officiate.

Since last June, Mr. Browder has been living in Philadelphia at 5137 Pine St. and driving to see his family in Virginia on weekends. His last visit was on the New Year weekend.

Mr. Browder said he had been working on the cinder block house the family occupied, finishing up the interior in his spare time.

He said he was forced to discontinue this weekly commuting in November when doctors warned that he was endangering his health.

A NATIVE OF Gary, Ind., Mr. Browder met his wife while serving at Langley Field Air Base in Virginia, in 1941. They were married in Philadelphia in 1949, and returned to Virginia to live two years ago.

Mr. Browder, a veteran of four years in the Pacific Theater, said he had no immediate plans for the future. He appeared dazed by the tragedy and reluctant to talk about it, but talked freely on other subjects.

Mr. Browder said that he worked for the Veterans Administration in Philadelphia for 10 years after leaving the Army.

FIRST PERSON to learn of the tragedy was Mrs. Browder's mother, who lives with the family in Virginia.

"I came back home from Fredericksburg that day and noticed that the house was quiet and that the children were not playing and making noise as they usually are.

"I asked Winifred where were the children and she said they were asleep. Then she handed me a note. The note said she had killed the children.

"I went next door to tell our relatives and they called the rescue squad in Fredericksburg after seeing the bodies of the children."

The boys were lying side by side on a bed, and the girl, Joan, was in another room, her head resting on a pillow.

MRS. BROWDER took a dogeared Bible with her when she was arrested.

She read it frequently during her stay in jail at Bowling Green and had it clutched under her arm when sheriff's deputies moved her to Central State Hospital for mental tests early Wednesday.

An attractive woman, Mrs. Browder stands about five feet, 11 inches and weighs approximately 150 pounds.

She expressed confidence that the Lord would forgive her for what she termed her "horrible deed."

Mrs. Jasper said Mrs. Browder had been reading the Bible almost continuously lately and had been acting strangely.

"But I didn't think there was any danger . . . that anything like this would happen," she said.

Friends and neighbors dropped in constantly to offer consolation to the family. The children's voices stilled, the partially-finished house was quiet as visitors talked in muffled tones of inconsequential things.

110th anniversary

WASHINGTON

John Wesley AME Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran Sts. NW, the Rev. E. Franklin Jackson, pastor, begins celebration of its 110th anniversary Sunday. The celebration will continue for one week, with special services nightly. (See pages 19 and 20).

Ancient art to be viewed

Edward S. King, director of the Walters Art Gallery, Baltimore, has confirmed that the gallery is to be one of six American museums privileged to show the first comprehensive collection of ancient Phrygian art ever to be shown in this country.

The exhibition, "Phrygian Art from the City of King Midas," is scheduled to open at the Walters on Monday evening, Jan. 26 and remain through Feb. 15. The material is on loan from the Turkish Government to the United States for one year.

This unique assemblage of art and artifacts recently excavated at the ancient Phrygian city of Gordion (near modern Ankara, Turkey), gives for the first time some precise knowledge of the almost legendary Phrygian Kingdom and its ruler

Jake Stewart dies suddenly

Wilbur O. (Jake) Stewart, 55, of 2402 W. Lafayette Ave., died suddenly last night (Thursday).

He was a business instructor at Carver High School where he helped organize the business department.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins Stewart, also a city teacher, said her husband had high blood pressure,—but had not been previously ill.

"He was in school on Tuesday and on Tuesday night he attended a political meeting.

"He became ill there and was taken to the hospital where he was thought to have had a heart spasm.

"THE NEXT day the doctor came and gave him an electrocardiogram but it did not show anything.

"He was ordered to stay in bed. Around 4 o'clock he was sitting on the side of the bed when he just collapsed. He was dead right away," Mrs. Stewart said.

Funeral services are set for Tuesday at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, but the family will receive friends Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Charles Law Memorial in the 200 block of Madison Ave.

A sister, Mrs. Hazel Stewart Farmer is flying in from Phoenix, Ariz., for the funeral services.

A host of nephews and nieces also survive.

Mr. Stewart was a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity and the Joseph L. H. Smith Lodge of Prince Hall Masons.

KNOWN AROUND the globe is Dr. E. Franklin Frazier, world-famed sociologist, whose book, the "Negro in Chicago" is the sociologists' handbook for students of all nations. His "Black Bourgeoisie" volume is translated in all languages.

Dr. Frazier, now recuperating at Freedmen' Hospital, one of Freedmen's Hospital from a recent illness, is head of the sociology department, Howard University.

On Monday, his wife Marie revealed that he is "back in his own pay cell again" in enjoying the stay in the hospital.

DR. FRAZIER is a native of Baltimore, son of the late Mary and James Frazier. His father was a bank messenger.

For many years the Frazier family resided on Bloom St. Dr. Frazier's sister, the former Miss Bertha Frazier, was married to the late Clark Smith, prominent local attorney.

Their son, Avery Smith, lives in Washington with his wife and family.

SAW MRS. ALICE Cooper and Mrs. Lucy Crump at the Partners ball last Friday. Incidentally, the affair was one of the most enjoyable ever.

I've never seen so many one-of-kind ballroom gowns. The Partners can go down in history as the town's most fabulously gowned women.

Talk about wives of Major Theodore R. Owens, Ft. Lee, who is en route to Germany, and was guest of Mrs. Estelle Gardner.

Yachtsman Philip Ross and his wife Elsa are a lovely couple. He had worn white tie and tails at the dinner of Saul Allimone's Captain Marlin Hurtt, former Vietnam representative for the Treasury. Capt. Hurtt and his family are stationed at Fort Dobbins, near here. Our wife Mrs. Virgie Hurtt and they have a year-old daughter. Pat Ross can't resist a Germany.

Ball of the ball is certainly to be that Miss Alvena Smith who was a Partners club guest Friday. Never have seen more beautiful Miss Smith made the utterly fabulous satin "cocktail shaker" she wore.

THE THOMAS BALLARDS (Jamie) are expecting. They reside in the Windsor Court Apartments.

RACE NO LONGER MATTERS

Hush, now. Make no remarks that there seems to be a rash of interracial marriages. Don't say "What is this world coming to" lest you be termed old fashioned.

Lt. Sandra Williams' approaching wedding to the Parisian Airforce officer, Lt. Raoul Tavitil-Tanks, may seem to indicate a rash of interracial marriages coming up.

Not so long ago we reported the engagement and coming wedding of Miss Berniece Holoman, a local beautician, to Gerard Pommont of Paris, France.

But, it's one world today. Let's face it.

Whenever you may go, peoples of all races are gathered on social and business occasions.

State Senator J. Alvin Jones has been appointed to four Senate committees. He's on the labor, Education, and Judicial Proceedings committees and is vice chairman of the Public Utilities committee.

Delegates Verda Welcome and Irma Dixon settled down to work Monday night at 8 p.m. in the House of Delegates convened.

Delegate Welcome will serve on the Education Committee and the Joint Committee for Juvenile Delinquency.

Delegate Dixon will serve on the Education and Civilian Defense committees.

The Green Bag opening is going at a slow-leak pace. Word is that Gov. Tawes is holding back the most important announcements until he sees just how future holders of political plum jobs intend to pledge allegiance in the Primaries.

However, as of Monday, the wind was blowing this way:

JOE HENRY doesn't especially want the Northwestern magistrate's chair.

SAY CAL DRAMCKER is the one who is crying it and is the most likely lad to get it.

JOE HENRY is sure to be returned to the old job he once held in the Governor's Commission on Race Relations.

SOMETHING NEW is being created at the State Accident Commissions office. With 94,000 cases and meeting only twice a month, the jobs here are considered the "best thing."

BIG BILL DIXON may be named to the State Athletic Commission.

LOYAL RANDOLPH, due one of the biggest plums, expects to be named full-time liquor board inspector.

THE ATTORNEYS will be appointed Assistant Comptrollers by Comptroller Dave Maas in the near future.

COMPTROLLER Louis Goldstein's office will add Donald Murray, behind a desk. Mr. Murray, an attorney, is a classmate of the Comptroller, you recall.

SOUTH BALTIMORE'S Republican Gus Knox, now liquor board inspector, has friends. And, friendship also counts in the game. He'll keep his job although this is the Democrats' Day.

MOUSE DORSEY is trying to keep his job on the Liquor Board and bets are that he will do just that.

THE NEW AREA Democratic Federation is the group getting ready for the Primary elections in May, Oct. 21 they meet to man the Precincts in the 4th and 6th Districts.

Frances Wells is Charlie Law with Ray Haysbert, executive president of the board of directors.

Also holding membership are John Stewart, Leila Blackwell, Carolyn Wattles and Walter Brown.

DELEGATE Welcome wore a smart brilliant red frock set off by a large gold scatter pin to the Wednesday session of the House.

Delegate Dixon sported a new bob, very chic, and dared to one side was a deep wave.

The Affiliated Democratic Clubs met at the Ancient City Elks Lodge Hall in Annapolis.

With Democratic leaders present from all parts of the state, the group adopted a course of action which they will follow in presenting a program of patronage.

They announced that they will ask for representation on all boards and institutions in counties and cities throughout the state.

Elks District Deputy Charles (Mouse) Dorsey and the Ancient City Lodge Exalted Ruler, Joseph Smith, were hosts to the group at dinner.

BOX HARRIS, commander of the 231 Transportation Bn. of the Maryland State Guard, was host to members of the group who were in the inaugural parade.

Crisfield, Md., the home of new Gov. Tawes, had a large group which included the Elks Pride of Crisfield Lodge.

Charles, Prince Georges, Dorchester, Somerset, Ann Arundel and Baltimore Counties were well represented by Democratic leaders.

SPRING HATS blossomed forth at the inaugural ceremonies. Wearing a red broad-brim was Mrs. Barefoot Sanders.

Mrs. Edgar A. Love wore a nifty black velvet crown hat, black frock and cashmere coat.

Gov. Tawes placed his hand on a stack of open Bibles as he took the oath.

The holy volumes lay one on top the other, each enclosed in the pages of the Bible below. Hence the "swearing on a stack of Bibles" expression.

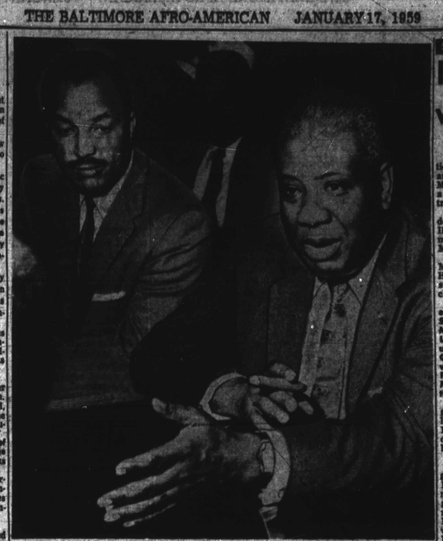
The Douglass High School, Upper Marlboro, Md. marching band received the loudest applause of all groups in the parade.

Dr. J. T. Williams, president of Maryland State College, escorted the school's band and drill team to Annapolis.

Accompanying him were Dr. G. D. White, Salisbury, Md. physician and Lewis H. Martin, Princess Anne, Md.

Mrs. Martin was named AFRO Mother of the year in 1958.

First persons to arrive at the State House doors shortly after 8 a.m. were J. Oliver Hill and Benjamin F. Sears, both attorneys from Prince Georges County.



SHRINE HEAD HERE — Booker T. Alexander, right, of Detroit imperial potentate of the Shriners, is shown as he made an unannounced visit to the regular monthly meeting of Jerusalem Temple No. 4 of Shriners on Wednesday evening at the Masonic Temple in Baltimore. Mr. Alexander congratulated James E. Denkins, left, newly elected potentate of Jerusalem Temple for his 1959 program which includes a memorial service for Past Imperial Potentate John H. Murphy Sr., who died in 1922, and a first annual youth night and an annual award night.

8 Yrs. Of Progress Under McKeldin

In the recent report of the eight years (1951-1959) in Maryland under the administration of Gov. Theodore McKeldin, one section was devoted to a report from the Maryland Commission on Interracial Commission and Problems.

That portion of the report is reprinted below:

In the interpretation of the activities of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, it is necessary to consider the responsibilities of the Commission.

The said Commission shall have authority and power to make such surveys and studies concerning interracial problems, conditions and problems as it may determine or as may from time to time be assigned to it by resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland.

• Segregation of races in Fort's Theater was ended by agreement of the management of Ford's Theater and the Commission, effective Friday, February 1, 1952.

• The consideration of executives of various department stores to eliminate gradually racial discrimination in their respective departments, have been begun during the year 1952.

• Following the issuance of the report of the Baltimore Transit Commission recommending that the Transit Company amend its personnel policies to permit the employment of colored but not trolley operators, the Commission urged the Transit Company to put the recommendation into effect at the earliest possible date. Between May and November, 1952, the Transit Company employed 190 colored persons.

• WITH THE FULL support of the Governor, this Commission presented a resolution to the Baltimore Board of School Commissioners on September 2, 1952 advocating the admission of colored applicants to the "A" course at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

• Fifteen colored applicants subsequently were admitted, and the policy of integration continued, well in advance of the Supreme Court anti-segregation decision.

• Through the efforts of a subcommittee of the Maryland Interracial Commission, by agreement with the board of the Lyric Theater, on November 17, 1952, the Lyric ended racial patrons which were considered deleterious to good race relations.

• August 1, 1953 marked the start of the Community Self-Survey project. This survey was a comprehensive study of intergroup relations in the City of Baltimore directing its major attention toward conditions affecting the minority population, with particular emphasis upon the colored citizens.

This study was co-sponsored by the Baltimore Commission on Human Relations and 40 civic, fraternal, religious and private agencies. The Community Self-Survey was completed early in 1955 and represented the first such study undertaken and completed by a southern city.

• Another important advance in 1953 was the opening of lunch counter service to colored persons by two large chain variety stores as a result of negotiations carried on mainly by the Congress of Racial Equality in cooperation with the efforts of the Maryland Commission.

• During the year 1954, largely through the efforts of this Commission, integration was begun in the Baltimore City Fire Department.

• IN 1955 the following achievements were effected: a large drugstore chain adopted a policy ending racial discrimination in hiring personnel; the State of Maryland began employing colored toll-takers on the Susquehanna and Chesapeake Bay Bridges and the banning of racial segregation of State-owned beaches and parks.

• A study entitled "Desegregation in the Baltimore City Schools" was completed in 1956.

This study provided a definite analysis of the process of desegregation in the Baltimore City Schools.

It has been used as a pattern by many communities throughout the country in the integration of school systems.

It has had international circulation and is one of the three best studies in this area of desegregation in the nation. The Commission's activities through its survey helped pave the way for desegregation in the Baltimore schools.

The Commission is able to conclude this report in saying that most of the major hotels in Baltimore City now provide accommodations for all peoples.

Robeson in Moscow hospital: scheduled appearance canceled

MOSCOW, Russia — Singer Paul Robeson was admitted to a Moscow hospital here last week for what his friends described as overtiredness and a cold.

The 50-year-old baritone, who is in England, canceled a concert in the Albert Hall Theatre here and postponed a scheduled trip to India to rest in the hospital.

WE FORD DEALERS INVITE YOU TO Come in and take a picture of your family in a 59 FORD...
You can win:
1 A Fabulous California Vacation FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY AT PACIFIC OCEAN PARK VIA AMERICAN AIRLINES!
2 $10,000 in Cash!
3 This Brand New 59 Ford!
PLUS 834 OTHER GREAT PRIZES
30 Sylvania Radios · 3 Family Vacations at 100 Sylvania Radios · 3 Pacific Ocean Park 200 Argus Cameras · 3 sets of Spode
We're proud to offer the use of our cars and facilities so you can enter this Sylvania Photobath Contest
Here's all you have to do: Come in to your Ford Dealer's showroom and actually take a picture of yourself or anyone in your family in a beautifully proportioned 59 Ford. Then send a print of the picture and the triangular trademark from any package of Sylvania flashbulbs to contest officials. The pictures with the best story-telling value, originality, and quality will win the prizes. And the Grand Prize winner gets all three. See your Ford Dealer for complete details today.
