Calendar tilts with future social events

with Lula Jones Garrett

If you think the past week was fast and furious . . . just take a gander at what is on tap for the coming week.

Patricia Taylor tells me that the annual Mardi Gras of the Morgan College chapter of the Maryland Classified Employees Association is going to be bigger and better than ever; so, it had better be, what with the group planning to gather enough schools to convert a life membership in the NAACP, thereof.

They've already given a scholarship to Basil Catefonis, a sophomore from Greece, who attained the highest scholastic average at the completion of his freshman year.

For the Mardi Gras (on January 23rd) they're going to have Jimmy Smith's orchestra, and a cash prize of $25 for the best costumed group in addition to individual prizes.

President Marie D. Jenkins, Dr. A. N. Whiting and J. Percy Bond, of the college faculty, will be judges.

There'll be games under direction of Mrs. Ella Pierce and an exhibition of dancing.

THE KAPPAS have interesting plans in the making, including their Founder's Day banquet in February, with a soiree on the end for the ladies in their lives.

The Alphas will have their annual cabaret party on Feb. 20th in the Alcazar.

AND THE SOROS, bless their hearts, will fill in the time between then and now with a flock of galeties.

Zetas will honor their founder on Saturday, at a luncheon in the Harvey Johnson Center of Union Baptist Church.

And the very next day (Sunday) Lambda Kappa Mu's will observe Founder's Day in the same Center. They've engaged Mrs. Violet Chers as speaker and have a special program of music arranged.

Alpha Kappa Alphas have an extraordinary program scheduled for their annual soiree on February 5th. They will celebrate the founding of the largest and the oldest of the Greek Letter sororities at a closed party in the Elks Club, and have drawings for the Caribbean cruise on the 13th.

MEMBERS OF THE M. J. NAYLOR chapter of the Morgan State College Alumni Association plan to gather friends and have fun at bridge, pinochle, whist and canasta, on the 24th.

MISS FLORENCE KELLY surprised Alease K. Jones (her sister) with a delectable birthday party at her home, North Smallwood Street home, last Monday.

Mrs. Arlene Carter (Mrs. Jones' sister) is a decorator, and managed to get the honoree to visit her sister's home. The lights were dimmed and everyone was as quiet as a mouse. As she walked into the living room, the lights flared on and all of the guests sang "happy birthday" to her. She was completely surprised and happy.

The following merry making guests were present:

Miss Florence Kelly, Mesdames Arlene Carter; Esther Winston (sister of the honoree); Lorraine Meadows, Yvonne Thomas (niece); Kathleen Williams, Margaret Austin;

Mesdames Margaret Durham Elizabeth Ford, Margaret Hawkins, Rosalie Bryant, Rosita Uncles, Catherine Young, Willie Valentine, Messrs. George Austin, William Chew, John H. Crawford, John McCormick, Daniel Jones, and Norman R. Uncles.

MESDAMES LESTER B. WALLACE, left, and Wayman Holley were among charming matrons who attended the AKA supper dance in Baltimore, Friday evening.

Alpha Kappa Alpha sorors dine and dance 600 guests

Alpha Kappa Alpha sorors of Epsilon Omega chapter gathered at a supper given in their ultra swank quarters on Dance in the Alcazar, Friday evening.

The sorors engaged both the Ballroom and the Fiesta Room for their affair . . . in the latter posing a 40-foot buffet from which supper was served to guests throughout the evening whether they arrived at 8 o'clock or decided they'd drop in an hour or a few minutes before the closing hour, one in the morning.

The beautifully arranged buffet was flanked by two coffee tables, and punch flowed from an electric fountain in front of the buffet.

Guests were seated at 70 tables arranged in both rooms. Stan Bridges' orchestra provided music for the dancing in the big Room.

AND SUCH an array of eye-filling fashions had not been drawn to one scene in many a moon.

More than one guest blinked as they saw a flash of tiny lights flickering across the floor of the Bell Room. They were in the lucite heels of the slippers worn by Mrs. William Stanford, working on time between with them Mrs. Stanford wore an equally catching gown with black sequin sheath and a balloon skirt of black tulle banded, just below the knee with a wide strip of sequins.

Former Chapter Basileus Flossie Dedmond was as smooth as silk in all white, an elegant embroidery, fitting snugly in the torso and flaring in the skirt. Also in white, chiffon in the long and flowing manner, and highlighted with shocking pink satin slippers and bag, was Audrey Butler.

White was a favorite color and one of the prettiest of the gowns in that color was that worn by Lavada Hopson; wide tiers of white lace with deep red roses cascading down the skirt. Elizabeth White, also in white, was a striking picture.

Both Lillian Parrott and Delegate Verda Welcome chose red chiffon. Mrs. Parrott — floor length and beautifully draped; and Mrs. Welcome a short one highlighted with a magnificent white orchid at her shoulder. Incidentally, Mrs. Parrott's escort for the evening was investment Broker Carl McCray of New York.

Another of the beautiful reds was worn by Catherine Adams, who selected a floor length long sheath, with matching shoes. And another of the floor length sheaths was worn by Mrs. Glenn Tarter . . . an original of a dull green French brocade, with matching floor-length coat and a beautiful pink orchid.

ALICE PINDERHUGHES, who has joined the ranks of the honey blonds (and wisely, too) was smart in an orange frock, short, with a banded white skirt. And speaking of the honey blonds, Victorine Adams donned a wig of that shade to match her honey blond satin gown.

Ada Weaver wore a frock with a fetching bodice which ended in points and from each point there fell a delicate frill. Dr. Regina Godd was in an Eastern pink sheath of silver Rawlings in pale flesh brocade.

Lillian Maith selected gentle tulle tipped all over with tiny bouquets of orchids and Mrs. Edward Slater's gown of soft pink satin was heavily embroidered with tiny pearls and sequins.

This just a sampling . . . for these discriptions could go on for galleys.

THE DANCE was arranged by a committee co-chaired by Emma Bright (elegant in a backless frock of blue lace, the skirt with so interesting fan flare at the back) Cleo Diggs, and Ida Hawkins.

Working with them were: Edmond Towns, Flossie Dedmond, Lillian Ross, Ruby Taylor, Elsie Sessoms, Helena Hall, Mary Young, Gladyce Jones and Betty McLemore.

Basileus of the chapter is Vernice Reynolds, who chose a suave black floor-length gown, relieved with a pale chiffon scarf arrangement at the neck.

Alpha cabaret set for Feb. 20

Elaborate plans have been completed for the fourth annual Alpha cabaret party to be held Friday night, Feb. 20 at the Alcazar, Joseph Bracey, chairman, announced Monday night.

The affair is held each year by Delta Lambda chapter, Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, to raise funds for the chapter's college scholarship program.

This will be the first year that the event has been carried to the Alcazar, where, in addition to the ballroom, the adjoining collision and blue rooms have been reserved.

Tables will also be placed in the balcony, Chairman Bracey said, permitting greater participation in the affair than ever before.

Despite this additional space, a sharp limitation has been placed on the number of bids, it was explained, with the comfort of guests in mind. Bids were placed in the hands of Alphas at the January meeting Monday night.

INSTALLED FOR the fourth time in succession, Delta Lambda, Frank J. Ellis is his inaugural address, boasted with pride the fact that during his administration membership in the Baltimore chapter has been increased by 75 per cent, making it the third largest in the fraternity.

He pledged that Alphas during the coming year will step up their social action program with the aim of making Baltimore a major league city in fact as well as in name.

"An intelligent program," he said, "must grow out of the conviction that each of us has has a sense of shared and mutual responsibility, a responsibility of sharing their spiritual and financial means for the betterment of the community as a whole."

DR. CLIFTON JONES performed the installation ceremony, inducting into office, besides Mr. Ellis:

Joseph Bracey, vice president, Arthur Spencer, corresponding secretary; Frederic Jackson, financial secretary; Frank Veney, treasurer; the Rev. Edgar Ward, chaplain; Cliff M. Mackey editor to the Sphinx; and Liston George and Alexander W. Walker, board members at large.

Detailed reports of the 44th general convention held during the holidays at the Sheraton Hotel, Philadelphia were given by Dr. Charles R. Campbell and Frank Veney, Delta Lambda's delegates.

MEMBERS of the local chapter were invited to Annapolis Saturday night to help welcome a new chapter, Zeta Alpha, Lambda, into the fraternity.

The charter service will be conducted by Charles P. Howard Jr., Eastern regional director, at 8 p.m. at the residence of Dr. Jerome H. Allison, 22 Cathedral St., Annapolis.

The chapter bid farewell for the next two years to Robert Bagley, who reports to Ft. Jackson, Ga., on Jan. 25 for duty as a second lieutenant.

Ames and prayer by Soror Ida C. Newton.

The officers for 1959 were installed by Soror Florence Hilson Hill, national president of the Sorority, from Philadelphia, Pa. The installation was very impressive and to each new officer she stressed one attribute she should keep in mind and in front of her as she carries out her duties during the year.

A final report was given on the Christmas projects which included a party for underprivileged children, the giving of baskets, and a visit to the Lee Plaza Home on Druid Hill Street. Special commendation for the success of the party Grinage on Tuesday evening, December 23 at the home of Dr. Davis. Jean for the first time in several years . . . you know how it is, one attended the party but never an engagement . . . but they all made it to Ivy's.

Also attended Grand at the Kleeco Club.

This group has been organized for years. Plans are completed for the club's annual Valentine affair — it will be a dance given on Feb. 14th, to be exact—at Wilson's.

Members of the group are: Vernice Reynolds, Priscilla Lansey, Margaret Armstrong, Lillian Ross, Ida Smith, Mae Dyson;

Margaret Hythe, Anita Hawkins, Ruby Reid, Iris Mapp, Ada Weaver, Bettye Phillips, Gwendolyn Tarter, Adelle Forman, Hiawatha Snaw and Ivy. Lillian Ross.

POT-POURRI: Deltas will be celebrating their Founder's Day tomorrow (Saturday) and will make a special presentation to the new Morgan Student Council Building.

Kate Sheppard, who usually spends the winter away from her Haverstraw, Pa. home, is ensconced at the home of the Eugene Mays's domicile on Aisquith Street Terrace, this city.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin D. Jenkins of Morgan State College, have acquired a mansion on Ocala Avenue.

When Katherine Jackson and Allison Long gathered the Kegers together recently, 47 members of the clan arrived for the lavish buffet, music, and dancing.

And now it seems that the statistics on the holiday marriage of Andrew Smith of this town and Mrs. Alice Allen of Moorestown, N.J., as carried in this column, were incorrect. This was the second, but the third marriage for Mr. Brown. He was first married to the present Mrs. James Brown (nee Edna Whyte) and the father of seven children through this union, recently in the late Mrs. Alice Bright . . . and now to Mrs. Allen.
