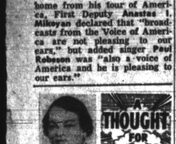
MIKOYAN PRAISES ROBESON

MOSCOW — Upon arriving home from his tour of America, First Deputy Anastas I. Mikoyan declared that "broadcasts from the Voice of America are not pleasing to our ears," but added singer Paul Robeson was "also a voice of America and he is pleasing to our ears."



THOUGHT for TODAY

By ZORAH ELICKSON

"OUR CHARACTERS ARE THE RESULT OF OUR CONDUCT . . ."

With the foregoing quotation it appears that Aristotle may have pointed the first "chicken or egg" riddle. Whether conduct is born of character or, as Aristotle pointed out, character is a by-product of conduct, the simple fact remains that the two enjoy a remarkably close kinship.

It is not to take exception to the original quotation, but it would appear at first glance that conduct, in a practical sense, should rather accurately express the qualities and the natural and acquired traits which are part and parcel of character.

In any event, character and conduct will in all but a few unusual cases follow remarkably parallel paths.

The New Chapter of the Reindeers was set aside at Centennial Methodist Church, Sat., Jan. 31. A group of 225 was made, the largest ever.

It is a most unusual case when the loss of a loved one doesn't trouble a great hardship on those left behind. At such time ELLIOTT FUNERAL HOME, 1129 N. Caroline St., stands ready to ease the load with a complete and understanding funeral service. Phone Eastern 7-6390.

ALL SET TO GO—Six of the nine children in Alexandria, Virginia, who are scheduled to be enrolled at previously all-white schools Tuesday morning. Left to right, they are: Kathryn Turner, 11; Patsy Ragland, 14; her sister, Sarah, 8, and brother, James Ragland, 13; Gerald Turner, 6, and his sister, Sandra, 7. Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan ordered their admission.

third - grader, will go to Ramsay.

Her mother, Mrs. Lenora Jones, described her as "apt and good in school" and at home, 6346 Stevenson Ave.

The father is John E. Jones, a civilian Army worker. There are four other children in the family ranging in age from 4 to 10.

THE TURNER home, 211 Lincolnia Rd., was built by Mrs. Turner's father.

William Ramsay School is about two and a half miles away as compared with about eight miles to Lyles Crouch, where the children were enrolled.

Kathryn C. Turner, 11, a sixth - grader, likes scientific projects, books, horses and dogs. She is a member of the Camp Fire Girls, library and science clubs at the Crouch school. She is treasurer of the Junior League and a junior usher at Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church, Mt. Pleasant, Va.

She hopes to enter scientific research of some sort after her schooldays are over and conduct experiments now with bugs as subjects.

SANDRA, 7, is in the second grade and likes dolls, while Gerald, 6, a first grade pupil, may grow up to be a mathematician, judging from his aptitude at figures. Right now, though, trains are his main interest.

Mrs. Turner, wife of George Turner, who operates a beauty shop supply firm at 1622 Seventh St., NW in the District, said she anticipates no hostility against the children from white students.

"I have tried to provide experience to make them adapt to an integrated situation. They are not being prepared for a segregated society," she stated.

Mrs. Turner, a former faculty member of Virginia State College, holds a master's degree and is equipped to teach both elementary and secondary education. A graduate of Virginia State College, she married in home economics and elementary education. She was born in the Alexandria home where she lives with her family.

AT THE Lomax residence, Mrs. Hazel Lomax said she had cautioned her two youngsters who will be going to the with scores of 119 and 128, far above average.

He said he would deny admission to three others with IQ tests above 100 on the basis that they were below the class median of the school to which they applied, either in reading or the placement test.

Mr. Wingo would refuse admission to a boy with an IQ of 110 on grounds that he showed a five - month lag in reading.

A TV fan, he watches it under the supervision of his mother, who usually allows him to see the children's programs, and his favorites, stories about horses. He is presently enrolled in the Charles Houston Elementary School about nine blocks from his residence.

Margaret Irene, 6, who has already decided she wants to be a nurse, "loves school" and will be in the first grade at Ficklin after her transfer from Charles Houston.

The Lomaxes are parents of a third child, Henry Jr., 5, who is pre - school age.

Mrs. Lomax, who said she attended an integrated school at Lawrence, Kan., is a housewife. Her husband, Henry Lomax, is a maintenance worker at Alexandria Housing Authority. They reside at 1020 N. Fairfax Street.

Mr. Williams also said he would recommend a white pupil for admission to all - colored Parker Gray High School. If he lived in that particular school zone which actually overlaps zones for whites.

"I think I would recommend his admission," he said.

At the same time he denied that racial factors influenced his standards that he recommended to the board for disposal of colored applicants.

J. BARTON PHILLIPS, lawyer for the school board, argued that the question of race wasn't involved in the board's action on the applications.

Standards were based on proximity to school, condition of enrollment in the school, attendance and mental maturity of the applicant, health, bona fide residence and psychological adaptability.

Expert witnesses on Monday were Dr. James A. Bayton of Howard University and Alfred L. Wingo, Virginia State Department of Education, who differed in recommendations to the court.

Dr Bayton recommended admission of nine of the pupils to schools to which they had applied on the bases of intelligence and achievement scores.

Mr Wingo said three were qualified beyond question and ten with reservations. He didn't recommend the latter for transfer.

DR. BAYTON told the court that intelligence tests are devised to "measure the potential ability," while the achievement test shows what a pupil has learned of a given amount of material.

"You must always remember the difference between the two," he said.

Dr. Bayton stated that tests reflect a degree of experience and environment as shown in consistent high scores by children of professionals and high income groups.

CHILDREN FROM low income groups and culturally deprived homes tend to make lower scores regardless of race, he said.

Dr. Bayton told Judge Bryan that colored children in the United States are scored on the basis of tests that were standardized in 1937.

Samples for standardization at the time excluded colored children and their deprived educational and social circumstances, he said. No sample for the purpose has been taken since that time.

"FOR THAT reason, it is the practice in some instances to add 5 or 10 points to the score of a colored child," Dr. Bayton said.

He stated that no test or survey is reliable or scientific if it fails to include representatives samples as opposed to mere numbers in a collection.

Without adding any points to the test results of plaintiffs, Dr. Bayton told the jurist that the nine "are average or above average" on the basis of records presented in court.

TWO OF the three recommended by Mr. Wingo are children showing superior ability with scores of 119 and 128, far above average.

He said he would deny admission to three others with IQ tests above 100 on the basis that they were below the class median of the school to which they applied, either in reading or the placement test.

Mr. Wingo would refuse admission to a boy with an IQ of 110 on grounds that he showed a five - month lag in reading.

An IQ of 100 is considered "medium average," which is 10 points below the score for that pupil.

MR. WINGO said colored children will lower school standards in all white student bodies if admitted to such schools without careful screening.

He said segregation is not a factor in the difference between general scores of white and colored children.

"You assume that," he said under cross - examination.

The school board said one plaintiff was absent 82 days last term and another for 53, but report cards introduced by attorneys with attendance records showed 15 and 12 days, respectively.

Mr. Williams, who was on the stand for about four hours, couldn't reconcile the different figures on the cards and the accumulative school records from which he said the large numbers were taken.

THOUGH THE discrepancies appeared to be honest mistakes an Alexandria citizen told another in the court corridor.

"See how they do? You'd believe those children hadn't been to school at all."

Attorneys for the children showed that white students in the schools to which they applied had lower scores than the plaintiffs.

In addition to Mr. Reeves, lawyers for the plaintiffs are James M. Nabrit 3rd and Oliver L. Tucker of Alexandria.

Alexandria told to admit 9 pupils

By EDWARD PEEKS

Federal District Judge Albert V. Bryan on Wednesday ordered the transfer of nine colored pupils to Alexandria public schools formerly set aside for whites.

The children were among 14 whose applications for transfer were rejected by the Alexandria school board.

Judge Bryan turned down transfers for three Parker-Gray High pupils to George Washington on grounds that Parker-Gray is closer to their homes.

The number admitted represents the highest percentage of the total in any desegregation suit.

T. C. Williams, school superintendent, admitted under cross-examination that the racial factor entered into standards set up to consider the 14 applicants.

Two elementary pupils were refused admission to Patrick Henry or Ramsay School for academic deficiency."

THE ORDER admitted two to Ficklin Elementary School, five to Ramsay and two to Hammond High School, beginning on Tuesday.

Judge Bryan said that "the nine applicants should be admitted to the schools they requested, the evidence not giving a basis other than race for their rejection."

In his rejection of the school board's plea for delay, Judge Bryan strongly indicated in his order that a stay wouldn't be granted should the board make such an appeal to Alexandria Federal Court.

"THE COURT has studied the suggestion of the defendants' counsel that if any of the 14 applications were granted by the court, the admission be deferred until the commencement in September of the 1959-60 session," the jurist said.

"This delay cannot be followed, for the reason that aside from a consideration of the rights of the plaintiffs, a postponement from one session to another, as distinguished from one semester to another in the same session, would involve many problems.

"Among others, it would mean a wholly new review, administrative and possibly judicial, of the qualifications of all the applicants here, because of their completion of one grade and entrance into another in the interval."

COMMONWEALTH Attorney Earl F. Wagner said Wednesday that no decision had been made on the question of appealing the order.

The Alexandria City Council set a meeting for 7:30 p.m. Thursday to discuss school integration.

Mayor Leroy S. Bendheim said, "We will not permit any violence. The police have been alerted to handle situations of that kind, if necessary, we will call on the governor for assistance, but I do not anticipate that will be necessary."

Frank D. Reeves, attorney for the plaintiffs asked for their immediate admission to schools on Tuesday toward the close of nearly three days of testimony before Judge Bryan.

MR. REEVES and his associates in the case told the court that race was a criterion used in standards by the school board to reject all applicants.

An expert witness on the Howard University faculty recommended transfer of nine applicants during the hearing, but not all of the same nine ordered into schools by Judge Bryan.

There are a lot of advantages to being in business. For one thing, it gives us an opportunity to meet a lot of nice people. We talk a little . . . listen a little . . . and by and by we find our viewpoint broadening and our opinions less opinionated.

We hear a lot of interesting things, too. Things we'd like to pass along to all of you because we know you'd enjoy hearing about them. So from now on, we're going to appear in this newspaper every week and really start things buzzing. Don't fret . . . we're not going to be political analysts or news commentators. In fact, we're going to make a point of staying away from such topics. This is going to be a friendly little column, concerned with only pleasant happenings . . . mostly of the "Main Street" variety . . . and with personal observations running the gamut from pathos to humor.

We also plan to slip in a word now and then about MUTUAL BENEFIT SOCIETY, now in its fifty-sixth year, and now offers its public and policy holders plans of Insurance carefully tailored to your exact needs. The plans offered include plans of Insurance designed for saving and accumulating money for your tomorrows whether you live or die. Whatever your needs . . . Life, Accident or health. Hospitalization . . . call on MUTUAL BENEFIT SOCIETY, 407 W. Franklin St. MULBERRY 5-0624.

Did you know that Insurance is as old as civilization itself? Among today's ruins of the Euphrates-Tigris Valley, where the first age of civilization flourished, where flourished around the year 2200 BC the first temples and priest-rulers known to mankind, insurance had its beginning. The mighty king, Hammurabi, founder of the Babylonian empire, assessed various communities to pay the losses caused by raiding nomads who carried off or destroyed their property.

A Thumbnail Sketch of the Messenger

Mr. Elijah Muhammad, "The Messenger of Allah" and Spiritual Leader of the Moslems in the United States, for nearly 30 years, has been passionately concerned with justice and freedom for the American Negro. For He long ago learned, and learned well, the lesson taught that no one individual can rise above the condition of his race. The Messenger has been a solitary man fighting for His ideals and principles. But He has never become discouraged or embittered. For His eloquence, wisdom and inspiration are derived from the triumphant teachings of Allah.

Today he stands alone as the unacclaimed Leader of the American Negro. For, even though there are truths in His insights some people seem afraid of the brilliance of His visions and wisdom, and many are even shocked by His candor.

Yet in those who know Him intimately He has inspired loyalty, given meaning to their lives, and articulated their aspirations for "The Betterment of His People." To them, as a consequence, He has become the Anointed Leader. The Messenger is a remarkable person and the most modest of public men. He has lived and suffered in the midst of the Negro's complicated problems.

The Messenger loves His People! To show His love and admiration He proposes to build a Medical Center, Not for His people only. This will be a non-racial hospital whose purpose shall be to help cure those millions of people who are now overflowing other well-known health institutions. The site has been secured. He also proposes to build an educational center on the Chicago South Side. However, the Messenger needs help to make this most beneficial idea a reality. Whose help? Your help! Your dollars contributed to the Messenger to help secure a medical and educational center are not only contributions but investments in your future! and in the future of your children. Join us in this colossal venture. Contribute today. Put your donations in an envelope now.

Rites for Mr. Morris, attorney for 30 years

WASHINGTON

Russell Morris, 64, attorney, died in his sleep, Jan. 31, at Washington Hospital Center.

Funeral services were held Monday, Feb. 2 at 1 p.m. at the Jarvis Funeral Home.

Mr. Morris lived at 414 Luray Pl., NW, with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reed. He had been ill for three years, having been a patient at Freedmen's and Washington Hospital Center.

A native of the District, he was the son of the late Andrew Morris and Fannie Taylor Morris. He is a descendant of the Morris - Taylor - Clark - Stewart clans, who are among the first families in the District. Builders by trade, some of the elder Morrises in the Northeast section of the city were built by these families.

Following his graduation from the public schools, Mr. Morris was a bricklayer. He was employed by the late Barry Wardman. While working as a bricklayer, he entered evening classes at Fringhuysen University in 1923, and was graduated with a bachelor of laws degree in 1928. He was admitted to the Bar in the District, Nov. 3, 1928.

THE VIRGINIA Supreme Court of Appeals, Richmond, Va., admitted Attorney Morris to practice in the Superior Courts of the Commonwealth of Virginia, November 14, 1929.

He was admitted to practice before the bar in Maryland, March 13, 1935 and to the Supreme Court of Baltimore City, June 24, 1935.

He was admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court, March 11, 1935; to the Arlington County, Virginia Bar, Oct. 21, 1936 and to practice before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia July 7, 1943.

Mr. Morris specialized in property, taxes and divorces.

FOR SEVERAL years, he was a member of the board of trustees at Rehoboth Baptist Church. Later, he joined the United House of Prayer, and at the time of his death, he was also an elder and assistant pastor of the H Street Mission of the United House of Prayer at Third and H Sts., NE.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Charlotte F. Morris; ten children, Mrs. Grace M. Stone, Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Evelyn Whitlock, Brooklyn, N.Y., who are daughters by his first wife.

Also by his widow are Mildred, Grace, Russell Jr., Charlotte, George, Evelyn, Lawrence and Edward.

There are four sisters. Mrs. Evelyn M. Hamborough, 230 Division Ave., NE; Miss Grace Morris, 421 Fifth St., NE; Mrs. Fannie J. M. Reed, 414 Luray Pl. NW, and Mrs. Helena M. Galloway, 3450 12th St., NE.

Also, two brothers, Andrew Morris Jr., New York City, N.Y.; and Edward H. Morris, Philadelphia, Pa.; grandchildren, cousins, and many other relatives.

MAIN SPEAKER at the funeral services was the Rev. A. H. S. Johnson, pastor of Rehoboth Baptist Church. Other speakers were: Elder McCullough, head of the Mother Church of the United House of Prayer and Elder Johnson, pastor of the H Street Mission of the United House of Prayer.

Several elders of the United House of Prayer were also present. Thirty-seven floral tributes were built. Among the prominent citizens paying tribute to Mr. Morris were: Leonard Walsh, Chief Judge of the Municipal Court; Judge Andrew Howard; Joel T. Blackwell, assistant United States attorney; the Rev. C. T. Murray, pastor of Vermont Avenue Baptist Church; Bernard Cole, administrative principal of Merritt Elementary School; Col. West A. Hamilton, member of the Board of Education for the District.
