Use your talents Tuesday

"A certain man going abroad called his household servants together and handed his property over to them to manage. Then he went away."—MATTHEW 25:14.

THE MAN who had received (5 talents) $5,000 went out and by doing business with this sum he made another $5,000.

Similarly the man with (2 talents) $2,000 made another $2,000

But the man who had received (1 talent) $1,000 went off and dug a hole in the ground and hid his master's money.

All three servants reported when the master returned.

The two servants who returned a 100 per cent gain were complimented and promoted.

The servant who had hidden his $1,000 in the ground made the excuse that he was scared.

You are a wicked and lazy servant, the master told him.

If, as you say, you knew that I reap where I never sowed and collect where I never laid out, then you ought to have put my money in the bank, where I should at any rate have received what belongs to me with interest.

Said the master:

Take this $1,000 away from him and give it to the man who now has $10,000.

For the man who uses what he has will have more given to him and will have plenty.

But as for the man who uses not what he has, his will be taken away.

And throw this useless servant into the night outside where he can weep over his stupidity.

IN THE NEW Testament in Modern English by J. B. Phillips, this parable is called "Life Is Hard For The Faint-hearted."

A total of 103,503 colored voters are registered in Baltimore City, representing talents which are entrusted to the citizens of Baltimore for use at election time and such an election time comes next Tuesday, March 3.

To be nominated are candidates for mayor, comptroller and the president and members of the city council.

Each district in Baltimore has so many talents or votes.

The First District 2,803 colored voters which represents 6.4 per cent of the voters in that district.

The Second District has 13,603 of our people which comprises 39 per cent of the voters in that district.

The Third District has 13,673 voters, which is 10.4 of all those registered in that district.

The Fourth District has 31,106 colored voters, a majority 57.4 per cent of the voters in the district.

The Fifth District* has 28,339 voters which form 25.6 per cent of the voters in that district.

The Sixth District has 13,974 colored voters in that area or 26.2 per cent of the voters there.

* * *

IN THE FIRST District with 6.4% of the total number of voters there are no colored candidates for city council.

In the Second District Tucker Dearing, the brilliant young NAACP lawyer is among the nine Democrats seeking nomination.

If the 39 per cent of the colored voters in the Second District use their ballot wisely by giving it to Mr. Dearing, his will be one of the three names on the Democratic ballot.

In the Third District, Paul J. Cockrell, another young lawyer, is among the big field of 36 candidates seeking the Democratic nomination.

If the 10.4 per cent of colored voters in this district give undivided support to Mr. Cockrell, he can be nominated.

In the Fourth District, Walter T. Dixon, Truly Hatchett, William Roberts and Ernest D. Young are bidding for Democratic nomination, while Harry A. Cole, Howard D. Dixon, Joseph Drumwright, Raleigh Jones and William L. Randall are vying for the Republican nomination.

Three of these men can place their names on the ballots of each party if the voters in this district use their majority of 57.4 intelligently.

In the Fifth District in which 25.6 per cent of the total registrants are colored, Earl Koger, a resourceful and clear thinking member of the talented Koger family is unopposed in his bid for the Republican nomination.

In the Sixth District where colored voters represent 26.2 per cent of the total registrants, only William Murphy, a hard-hitting lawyer, and a Democrat seeks nomination.

* * *

LIFE IS indeed hard for the faint-hearted even in politics. You simply don't win any elections just by registering.

Elections are won by a wise use of your ballots at the polls.

If colored registrants vote 90 per cent in the primary election next Tuesday, they can expect to get 90 per cent of what they aspire for.

If they stay home and bury their ballot in the ground such jobs and offices which should come to them will go to someone else.

Hats off to Morgan

Morgan went up to New York last week to compete in the National Amateur Athletic Union Indoor meet and came back with first places in the 60-yard dash and the mile relay by establishing a new world's record of 3:18.

Moreover, a Morgan alumnus, Josh Culbreath won the 600-yard run and another Morgan alumnus, Ken Cave placed fourth in the 60-yard dash.

Thus little Morgan, with fewer than 1000 male students, in track continues to match and beat the best colleges with enrollments 6 to 10 times that of the Baltimore institution.

Primary Day is Tuesday, March 3

MARY: I SEE WE NOW HAVE 103,503 VOTERS ON THE BOOKS.

JOHN: YES, BUT REGISTRATION MEANS NOTHING IF YOU DON'T SHOW UP AT THE POLLS ON MARCH 3.

2 speak, 1 silent

Of the three leading candidates for mayor, J. Harold Grady, a Democrat, took the most advanced position for civil rights last week.

That's saying a good deal because former Gov. Theodore McKeldin was on the same platform.

Mr. Grady's statement is all the more significant because it runs counter to and goes further than an earlier statement.

In that earlier statement, he expressed belief that progress in this field should come through the Eisenhower formula of "education" and "persuasion."

* * *

LAST WEEK appearing at the luncheon given by the Maryland League of Women Voters, he pledged himself to work for passage of an equal public accommodations ordinance and sign it when it was enacted into law.

Mr. McKeldin said he felt that hotel and restaurant discrimination ought to be voluntarily abandoned in Baltimore, but he added that if he saw the need of legislation, he would support it.

The question asked of all candidates for mayor was: "Would you be in favor of an equal public accommodations ordinance such as was proposed last year in the Dixon bill?"

As indicated above, Mr. Grady and Mr. McKeldin answered the question.

We are yet to hear from Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

A needed reminder

Normally the AFRO makes no choices in primary elections.

But on this occasion, it feels strongly that it has a duty to remind voters this is how the vote in City Council went when the Dixon equal public accommodations bill was being considered last November:

Councilmen, who now would like our votes, but who voted against us on the Dixon bill are:

William Bonnett, James J. Duffy, Joseph L. Stasazk, 1st District; Chester J. Ray and James J. Welsh Jr. 2nd District; Richard D. Byrd, J. Joseph Curran, Henry R. Hergenroeder and John J. Pica, 3rd District; Thomas P. Fallon and William M. Hudnet, 6th District.

They turned their backs on us in November. It's our turn next Tuesday.

* * *

ON THE other hand, Councilmen who voted for the bill included Council President Leon Abramson; C. Lyman Schuler, 2nd District; Maxwell Alpert, Walter T. Dixon, Maurice Soypher, 4th District; Solomon Liss, Jack Edelman, Leon Rubenstein and William D. Schaefer, 5th District.

They voted for you.

One good turn deserves another and they merit your support.

If we ever expect the civil rights bill to be passed, we must defeat those candidates who voted against it the last time.

Not old enough

We still haven't got the right kind of people in the state legislature and at the next election we must do something about it.

Last week members of the legislature killed a bill to lower the voting age in Maryland to 18.

The average boy and girl at 18 is adult enough to leave home and go to college. And getting a college education is no child's work.

Those who do not go to school start making a living for themselves, working as adults.

Uncle Sam regards boys of 17 as mature enough to enroll in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

So an 18-year-older is good enough to fight for his country, but not good enough to vote for it in Maryland.

THE AFRO'S CREDO

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself —

God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself —

Whether it has an editor, good enough to use their liberties on newsprint and high-class editorials.

Whether it is fighting to get rid of plums, to provide jobs for everybody.

Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustice, even prejudice or compromise.

About an editorial

Dear AFRO:

Your editorial of Feb. 24, 1959, attacking the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority for the use of Negro in their recent Journal is misleading and unfair.

Dr. E. Franklin Frazier wrote the article to which you refer as using "Negro" 96 times. You should attack E. Franklin Frazier for the shameless repetition. Actually the Journal reprinted a speech made by Dr. Frazier at their national convention.

Buried in your editorial you admit that the sorority does not use the word "Negro" in any of their prepared material on the other 46 pages.

Therefore, your headline, "Delta's And Their Language" seems most unfair.

Wouldn't it have been fairer to point out that maybe the Deltas should censor their guests' contributions. You could have pointed out that the offending article was written by a man, a guest, who should know better and was not something done by our women.

And while I'm on the subject, I checked the Kappa and Alpha Phi Alpha's journals and I find that while Delta does not use the word Negro, it is standard procedure in the two men's journals.

In the recent issue of "The Sphinx," there were references to "Negro" 31 times throughout the entire journal of 64 pages. There were as high as nine "Negroes" on one page alone (a Sphinx editorial).

Why pick on the Deltas? Why not start close to home with the Alpha Phi Alphas whose officers and board is loaded with publishers of leading newspapermen. Journalists, AFRO men to boot. Plus your friend Mackay, who is Baltimore's local editor of the Sphinx.

It would be nice to see the men start a crusade for a change.

Don't swap horses

Dear AFRO: After having spent 50 of my 87 years in Baltimore City, and as one of the seven colored city councilmen who has served this city, I am inclined to take a retrospective glance over the years and attempt to evaluate them in the light of the present political situation now facing the city of Baltimore.

It seems to me that it is imperative for the welfare and development of the city, that the entire administration of the present Mayor be continued in office until the initial steps to be taken in the renewal program have become a reality.

While I do not believe that old cliche, "Never swap horses in the middle of the stream" can always be relied upon as the basis of common sense, I am of the opinion, however, that it is quite anomalous in view of the fact that the city must have true and tried public servants at the helm of such a gigantic undertaking which is going to require the expenditure of $900,000,000 during the next twenty years.

Baltimore can ill afford to risk its welfare and development on the election of any persons who have not had sufficient exposure to the practical side of its contemplated growth and expansion.

We must keep the D'Alesandro Administration in office at this critical time in our history.

Any administration which consent to the building of 65 schools in 12 years certainly does commend itself to the good judgement of the electorate.

This, of course, is just one of the many achievements to which this administration can rightfully point with justifiable pride.

Sightseeing

By JAMES D. WILLIAMS

Behind every dark cloud there is a ray of sunshine and to the long suffering public whose ears have been subjected to the verse-ridden campaign songs of recent times, there is joy with the realization that the noise will end next week.

In very few instances recorded by man has the public been subjected to so many bad lyrics and so much lousy singing as that produced by the current race to win the Democratic nomination for Mayor.

Thankfully the Republicans didn't have much of a primary fight so they were silent on the song front, but the Democrats more than made up for their absence.

One of the offerings of the Democrats is labeled simply "Tommy" and it is sung to the tune of "Billy," a fact which I highly regret because I have always liked the song but now if anybody would try to sing it, I would probably shoot them.

What is reprinted below, are the words of this ditty with my own comments in the parentheses:

"O when I cheer, I always cheer for Tommy
"Cause Tommy made our town big league."
(What about the Orioles and the Colts, didn't they have something to do with it or is Tommy managing both teams now?)
"And when I talk, I always talk for Tommy
"Cause Tommy put us on the map."
(Well where in the h-- was Baltimore before Tommy —off the map? And if that be so then how did anybody ever find their way here, what with no maps?)
"And when I vote, I always vote for Tommy
"Because Tommy gave us civic pride."
(Fellows, really. Anytime City Hall starts handing out something I start looking around to see how much it is going to cost me in taxes . . . That's the kind of evil mind I have . . . I always look a gift horse in the mouth even when it's giving away civic pride.)
"Want you to know, D'Alesandro
"Is the only man for me."
(A couple more songs like this, and people might stop voting altogether.)

* * *

ORDINARILY this would be enough, but darned if they don't have another one called the "D'Alesandro Victory Song." Here is like nothing I have ever heard before, and I knew there was some reason I woke up happy this morning.

It starts off like this:
"Vote for D'Alesandro, yes sir
"It's D'Alesandro for you and me
"D'Alesandro you must agree
"Is the man to be mayor of our city."

The word city comes out of the singer's mouth rhyming with "yes sir ree, me and agree," and you can imagine how that sounds.

Actually I've never been able to listen to it past the first verse . . . There's just so much that human flesh can take.

THE OTHER leading candidate J. Harold Grady, also has a song, rousingly entitled "Vote, Vote, Vote for Harold Grady," which puzzles me somewhat since I thought you could only vote once and if I go to the polls and vote, vote, vote for J. Harold (Grady somebody may take offense.

After hearing the Grady song I must admit that I haven't been so deeply moved in a long long time, and I hope it will be a long, long time before I feel like that again.

BUT DESPITE the songs (I'll be out there voting on Tuesday. My only regret is that they won't have a place on the ballot for the question:

"What punishment should be inflicted on the losing candidate?"

My answer would be:

"He should be tied hand and foot, placed in a soundproof room, and forced to listen for ten hours to his own campaign songs."

That will stop them.

It is said that with the passing of time a person can forgive and forget.

Yet, whenever I'm near that stone fortress over on Forrest St., known as the "Big House," I can't help but wonder how the men on the other side feel about that belief.

I think in particular about the poor soul who just may be serving time for a crime he didn't commit.

I'm not discounting the fact that probably 90 percent of the Penitentiary inmates are always complaining that they are there because of a bum rap anyway.

Still, when word leaks out that one out of a thousand continues to tell everyone who will listen that he is innocent, you get a funny feeling.

TAKE THE case of Pedro Crooms who was sent up for the murder of Irving (Top) Adams.

Word is that he is one of the brightest fellows around, and is during commendable work in psychiatry.

It is also said that he is telling friends he had nothing to do with the Adams murder. He lays all the blame at the feet of a syndicate.

To walk away the hours they say they Crooms is writing a book. Understand that only a few people will know what the book is about.

In Southwestern Police Court last week, a lawyer dropped a word of advice to a tavern keeper.

The lawyer indicated that should someone pull another holdup in the one that was pulled recently, the tavern will ask the Liquor Board to close the place down for days and days and days.

Police contend that the tavern has been having too much trouble with the patrons.

Send special congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson (Jessie) of 310 E. 23rd St.

February 27th (today) they have been married 50 years.

H. M. Frisby — Miss Emma Bright

Mrs. Edith Bryant — Dr. Ada Lee

They are both native Baltimoreans who recall they were wed by the late Mr. Valentine, father of the large Valentine family hereabouts.

Why you should send special greetings to the Jacksons: For the past two years Dr. Jackson has been confined to bed. He suffered a stroke two Januaries ago and has been unable to stand or move under his own steam since (loss of coordination.)

When the weather is good, his son lifts him up and carries him to the car for a ride about town.

The Jacksons are parents of Earl Jackson, postal employee and war vet; and Miss Dorothy Jackson, AFRO secretary.

Dr. Jackson, for over 40 years was a chiropodist with offices on Saratoga St. Remember years ago when he started out under Dr. Frazier on Howard St.?

Mrs. Jackson is famed as a seamstress.

The family attends St. Katherine P. E. Church.

More people and things...

The death of Henry Pierson W. Scott Sr., in Akron, Ohio on Feb. 20, makes two deaths in the Scott family in a week.

Mr. Scott's sister, Mrs. Daisy Scott Miller, 2112 Druid Hill Ave., died here in Baltimore on Feb. 13.

Thirty-five years ago, Mr. Scott lived in Baltimore and was known as a dance promoter and civic worker.

Cards to his family (wife and son), will reach them at 1391 Cuyahoga St., Akron, Ohio.

Notes about Howardites: Mrs. Ruth Brannum Spencer, one-time teacher and assistant principal at Bates High in Annapolis (1937-44).

Now the wife of a D.C. dentist and member of the Washington School Board, will be honored by her alma mater on March 2.

The 92nd annual Charter Day exercises on that date will see alumni awards go to Mrs. Spencer (class of 1936) and to Judge Herman E. Moore (class of 1916) and Dr. William H. Sinkler (class of 1932).

Miss Fannette Hughes, R.N., since December has been nurse in charge of the Maryland State College infirmary. She succeeds Mrs. Elsie Queen who is on leave to study on her B.S. in nursing at the University of Maryland.

Miss Hughes goes to Morgan from Doctor's Hospital where she was charge nurse in male medicine in surgery. That spot, I hear, is still open. The new Morgan faculty nurse is a Provident Hospital grad and has done additional work at the University of Maryland.

Quoting ready for anything seas trip is Mrs. Florence Scott Austin, 1310 Luzerne Ave.

She hopes to leave for Paris to join her husband, Sgt. Richard Austin, who has been there seven months with a transportation company.

Their children, Richard, 18 months; and Ronald, 3, months old, will fly over with her.

About this and that...

For persons who attended the Saturday morning ordination of Father Robert Avon Bennett, first priest to be elevated at St. James P.E. Church in 30 years:

The reason some members of the congregation and some clergy genuflected at that point in the Creed where you say, "He descended into Hell..." is that to genuflect or not to genuflect is a matter of custom.

St. James members do — members of other churches do not. There is no church regulation which requires that you do.

By the way, Father Bennett is already spoken for. His bride-to-be, Miss Patricia Grole of New York was here for his ordination and took communion with his family.

They plan to be married in May in New York.

Off the beaten path

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

How illness begins.

Although the head is a physical part of the body, it is a main office of the whole corporation where orders originate to get sent out.

When things go wrong with the body, the disturbance usually originates in the mind and remote parts of the physical organism may become ill.

As disturbing thoughts race through the brain, whole families of germs start taking boat-rides through the blood stream and you're sick.

I began to feel sick a long time ago.

* * *

FOR AN example take the occasion of the AFRO's Christmas party at the Regent Theatre where 2,000 underprivileged children enjoyed a morning of movies, prizes and fun.

As each little child passed through the door to take his seat, my mind pondered their trouble — these 2,000 children who had no Santa Claus.

If I did not have a remote soul and nerves of steel, my soul would have gone screaming out my body like little rockets.

* * *

IN JANUARY I visited the home of the wife and children of a man condemned to die in the gas chamber. My very physical heart ached for them in their plight.

* * *

WITH THE AFRO on the front line to bring readers the news, I stood with a mother as she gazed upon the ruins of her home and the devastation of the fire which took the lives of three of her children.

I talked with a mother whose daughter lay dying in a hospital. The doomed seven - year-old child was covered with second and third degree burns.

* * *

I SAT with two sest of parents as they told me of their teen-aged daughters, missing for more than three months.

The lights in the home, and the gas, were turned off, the bills unpaid, but in the fading evening sunlight I could see the girls' schools books on the living room table, just as they had left them before they disappeared.

* * *

BEFORE DAWN this past summer I stood on the lawn of a home where mother and father of five children lay dead.

Despondent, the father had shot the mother before the eyes of his children and then turned the gun on himself.

* * *

IN LESS than a year's time I have stood by the coffin to write funeral stories on many an old acquaintance.

Among them were Carrington I. Davis, who was former principal of a school where I was art teacher and one of my mother's old friends.

At the services I chatted with Mrs. Elmer Burgess, in a few days time, she too answered the call.

Carl Randall, the AFRO's quiz master, died a month ago. Hired Art.

Mrs. Anna Bell Coleman the AFRO's Mrs. Santa, one of the great-hearted persons I have been privileged to know, died suddenly.

Mrs. Helen Holland whom I have known since childhood passed from the scene forever.

* * *

BUT THERE in Provident Hospital where I was confined for a week, I learned that AFRO readers can dispell such a damp, gray cloud that folds over one's heart.

Morning, noon and night they came brimming sunshine, words of cheer, flowers and fruit.

* * *

MOST UNUSUAL of the dish gardens and floral designs was one from Stuart Tutman, Simmons Florist designer.

Called a health bar, the huge design held a fifth of beer, a pineapple, assorted fruits, wine glasses and coasters (for a toast to health) and exotic tropical flowers which smell like oranges.

* * *

MOST EXQUISITE basket of fruit was from someone I have never seen.

An AFRO reader, she is Miss Kitty Dean, a dancer. I wrote the story on the tragic death of her mother, have talked with her on the phone since then.

Her life story is most interesting, filled with hope and will be an inspiration to AFRO readers when she gets down to writing it.

The basket of fruit contained preserves, rare fruits, candy, cheese, nuts and numberless goodies besides grapefruit, oranges, apples, cumquat and bananas.

* * *

WITH Theodore Perkins as superintendent, I say the President staff is worthy of every compliment.

Mrs. Mary Chase, night charge nurse is the exact picture all people hold of a strong, quiet, efficient nurse.

I saw her working long hours, spick and span in her uniform, attending to the critically ill, the dying, with loving care.

Her smiling face, her pleasing manner, her devotion to each patient is amazing.

* * *

VICACIOUS Mrs. Dorothy Allen, a licensed practical nurse, is a most unforgettable person who never seemed to mind any task no matter how difficult. Her smile makes patients smile no matter how ill.

Mrs. Estarbies Boyle, evening supervisor, was always a delightful one to see on her nightly visits.

MRS. MABLE COLEMAN, history department worker, wears pretty blouses on her job, visits friends when they are confined to Provident, asks how the hospital is treating them.

DR. MARCUS MOORE has what one might call patience and fortitude above and beyond the call of duty.

He also possesses the gift of assuring his patients that faith is what paves the road to recovery.

MRS. IDA TOWNSEND, a licensed practical nurse, is efficient, extremely helpful and

Mrs. Beatrice Pratt, a student nurse, in her sky blue starched uniform with the wide pure white full apron, is a picture of the ideal hospital aide.

* * *

DAYTIME NURSE in charge was Mrs. Loretta Cumbo, a pleasant person, while Miss Edna Davis is daytime licensed practical nurse.

Interesting personality is Mrs. Blanche Johnson, secretary to Mr. Perkins. Likable is Mrs. Juanita Conway, night supervisor.

MRS. BEATRICE BURNS, day supervisor, also returns vividly to me as I recall my stay at Provident.

X-ray is headed by Dr. Bruce Benjamin and his assistant, Miss Mayme Brown, who appear to really know their business.

Dr. Lingao Gonzalles, a native of the Philippines and Dr. Clarence Beverly, are also staffers met.

Dietician, Mrs. Timmie Sellers makes rounds asking patients if the food pleases them, sees that fruit juice is available for them between meals.

Mrs. Flossie Walker, charge nurse, sweetly smiles through the most difficult shift, the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. watch.

* * *

MRS. AGNES CARRINGTON wife of the Union Memorial Methodist Church pastor, the Rev N. B. Carrington, arrived

ALL SMILES — The faces of these little Brownies show there joy and enthusiasm at their first birthday party. They are troop 1199 from Cherry Hill Elementary School. Above is Mrs. Viola Wright, principal of the school cutting the birthday cake. The adult leader to the left is Mrs. Beatrice Avery.

PINOCHLE NINE — The club met Friday evening with Mrs. Sadie Barnes of Calhoun St.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Esther Cochran, Mrs. Esther Thomas, Miss Jeannette Springs and Mrs. Susie Clark.

The next meeting will be with Miss Ida Carrington of 704 Payson St.
