NOTHING BUT THE BEST — Baltimoreans have received a new taste thrill with the introduction by the Schmidt Baking Co., of a round loaf of Italian bread. The firm has acquired the first slicing and wrapping equipment on the Eastern Seaboard for the purpose of wrapping the round loaf mechanically. Left to right: E. C. Fincke, sales manager; H. A. MacMannis, executive vice-president, and and J. H. Walzog, plant manager. Will he take away an American steelworker's job?

Meet Vladimir Petrov, Russian steelworker. He earns about 56 rubles a day.

American steelworkers earn $24.00 a day... four times as much as steelworkers of Western Europe, over four times as much as Vladimir, and seven times as much as Japanese steelworkers.

So what?

So this: Many foreign countries have zoomed their output of steel—they're selling it all over the world—and in increasing amounts even in the U.S.A. For instance, more barbed wire is being imported here from abroad than American mills are producing.

Soaring costs in this country are hurting the American steelworker as he tries to compete with his counterparts all over the world... European and Japanese steel producers are even now underselling American steel right here in this country. Some American steelworkers have already lost their jobs just for this reason; foreign steelworkers have gotten their jobs.

Certainly it will not help America if the spread between U.S. and foreign wages is increased. It will only serve to export jobs.

Isn't it time to stop this inflationary rise in wage costs that is undermining the job security of American workers?

The American Iron and Steel Institute brings you this message from the steel industry because

Wife names two in divorce case

She was just behind the times. Everybody had somebody else now, Mrs. Adelle Moody said her husband, Jesse, told her.

But Mrs. Moody wouldn't condone such sophisticated dealings. She divorced him, this week.

Mrs. Moody, a beautician who gave her address as 1814 Moreland Ave. said that her husband left her on May 1, 1957.

They had been married since 1934, and are parents of two sons, one 23 and the other, six.

• • •

BUT BEFORE he left, Mrs. Moody said:

"My husband would get phone calls and stay out until two three or four o'clock in the morning."

She added that he made no effort to cover his extra-marital activities.

She told the Master of Circuit Court that upon several occasions she followed her husband, but that he stayed in the places so long that she became tired and went home.

She also identified two of her husband's alleged companions, as a Miss Dudy and a Miss Blake.

WALTER ANDERSON, of 1811 W. North Ave., who identified himself as a co-worker and a friend of Mr. Moody, testified for the wife.

Mr. Anderson said that he and Mr. Moody went around together, that they often picked up girls at various bars, that he had witnessed Mr. Moody's infidelities, and then added a third name to the list of the latter's feminine friends.

He said that he knew of the friendship of Mr. Moody and a Miss Dudy, and also of the friendship with a Miss Jackson.

Manning-Shaw charges flop, commission drops 4 cases

The State Real Estate Commission dismissed four of the seven cases against Manning - Shaw Realty Co. Wednesday as testimony rambled to an end in the twenty-second phase of the hearing.

The other three cases — one pending oral arguments, the second wanting for testimony of one witness, the third, awaiting the outcome of a People's Court decision — are scheduled to be disposed of March 24.

Manning - Shaw's license is at stake in the hearing and this phase, as during the previous phase in the first week of February, was punctuated with some sharp exchanges.

From the beginning of the hearings this week, counsel for the complainants had indicated a willingness to drop prosecution of some of the cases and actually failed to show for one case on Wednesday afternoon.

• • •

THESE ARE THE CASES now disposed of:

1. Case of Mrs. Mildred M. Farley, 3815 Littlejohn St., Wheaton, Md., charging fraudulent advertising of a home she owned at 918 Lyndhurst St.

— Dismissed for insufficient evidence.

2. Case of James R. and Emily McDonough Jr., address given as 2911 Louden Ave., charging a "Sold" sign was posted on a house in the block when it was not sold.

Dismissed when counsel said a key witness, not one of the complainants, had died and he could not go on without him.

3. Case of Aaron Weiss and 13 others who gave addresses in the 6000 block Granley Rd., on claims of a former resident, Mrs. Bettye Kellar, 3811 Oakford Ave., that she was deceived into selling her home (4019 Grantley) in the then all-white neighborhood to Manning - Shaw.

—Dismissed with prejudice when neither the lawyers nor complainants showed up and one lawyer, who had been present earlier, said he did not wish to present evidence.

4. Case of Carroll L. and Lillian E. Suman, address given as 2723 E. Federal St., charging fraudulent efforts to collect commission on the home at the given address when they failed to sell it.

—Dismissed for lack of evidence.

• • •

STILL PENDING ARE these cases:

A. Case of Allen and Jeannette A. Kleiman, 3801 Grantley Rd. and Bernard and Dora S. Cherry, 3802 Grantley Rd., charging fraudulent advertising in the sale of a home at 3800 Grantley Rd. to cause neighborhood panic.

— Oral arguments to be heard on March 24.

B. Case of Andrew Leak, address given as 1202 Young Ct., charging he paid $500 as a deposit on a property at 2306 Roslyn Ave. which he did not buy and that he could not get back his money.

—Case now in People's Court. Postponed until disposition is made here.

C. Case of the Allendale-Lyndhurst Improvement Association, Inc., 725 Mount Holly St., charging the company with having used, knowingly and willfully, an illegal listing form.

— Awaiting testimony of W. G. Nicholson, recently retired commission executive secretary.

• • •

MEMBERS OF THE commission are Edward J. Dyas chairman; Mac Gardiner and Ralph P. Ripley. The new executive secretary is Samuel T. Abrams. Joseph S. Kaufman, assistant attorney general and Siedman and Prescott Jr., deputy attorney general, alternated as advisors to the commission.

Warren S. Shaw and Manuel M. Bernstein, co - owners of Manning - Shaw, were represented by J. Calvin Carney.

Complainants were represented by Melvin J. Sykes, Herbert J. Arnold and David Rimmelman. Mrs. Suman was represented by her father, Elijah W. Simms.

• • •

SHARP EXCHANGES among lawyers, commissioners and witnesses punctuated the hearings.

Mr. Carney, who has often insisted "all these charges are figments of the imagination," was told by the Commission on Wednesday to apologize to Mr. Sykes for stating the latter's side clients, after bringing unprovable charges were trying to get out of going through with the hearing.

The day before, the Commission had told Mr. Sykes to apologize to Mr. Shaw for laughing in a tone suggesting disbelief at testimony given by Mr. Shaw.

Mr. Sykes' act resulted in Mr. Shaw referring, "I don't want to tolerate this abuse."

On another occasion, when Mr. Sykes insisted on repeating questions seeking information about a conversation involving the commission's former executive secretary, Mr. Nicholson, who was in New York, Mr. Gardiner ended the exchange by stating:

"I'am not hear any more about it."

• • •

THE FIRST dismissed case that of Mrs. Farley, a widow, came early Wednesday after a five minute consideration of the evidence.

Mrs. Farley had contended she only broke off a contract with Manning - Shaw on Sept. 18 when a settlement on the sale of her home failed to go through, but that the home was advertised by daily papers in the realty company's name on Sept. 19 and again on Sept. 21.

She claimed this embarrassed her with her neighbors who came to her protesting her letting Manning - Shaw handle the property.

However, Mrs. Farley said she was perfectly willing to sell to Manning - Shaw until the settlement fell through on Sept. 18. It fell through because, Mrs. Farley admitted, she had stated she was owner of the home when actually it was owned by her and her minor daughter, who could not sign without a guardianship being set up.

Her lawyer, C. Walter Cole, has since died and there were statements from the other side to the effect that steps were taken to appoint the guardianship.

But at any rate, the commission explained, advertising is placed before the day it is believe" that Sept. 18 deal would be worked out. Also, it was explained that Mrs. Farley's Sept. 18 oral declaration that the "deal was off" had no legal standing.

Mrs. Farley contended that she never knew the deed to the property included her daughter as a co - owner.

• • •

THE DISMISSED Suman case was somewhat unusual.

Mr. and Mrs. Suman charged the realty company with trying to collect a commission on their home, 2723 E. Federal when they had not sold it.

Mr. Simms, representing Mrs. Suman, stood the whole time. Lawyers representing others only stood when making arguments. He described for the commission his many connections and vast experiences.

Mr. Simms also tried to question witnesses not on the witness stand and once threatened to walk out when the commission firmly suggested he must abide by commission methods.

At one point he readily agreed the sale in question failed to go through solely because of changes he himself made in the contract which the Veterans Administration would not approve.

Reading from a letter he said was sent from Manning-Shaw's office and from a People's Court paper about a suit to collect the commission, he himself proved that the suit was brought by some party other than Manning - Shaw.

With the tolerant help of the Commissioners and Mr. Prescott, Mr. Simms after some labor agreed just what the Sumans were complaining about.

However, in presenting what he said was evidence to prove his charge, he convinced the commission there was no basis for the charge. This did not take him as long as it took to state the charge.

At another point, recounting conversations with Mr. Shaw, Mr. Simms stated: "I called Mr. Shaw up and talked to him in a colored man's tone."

The Commissioner, who had tried to keep down racial rambling and repetitious testimony during the often heated hearing, succeeded in letting Mr. Simms state his case to his satisfaction and take his leave without getting into a major argument. The decision was put off until Thursday.

• • •

THE WEISS CASE, set for 1:30 p.m. was dismissed with prejudice at 1:50 p.m. when no attorneys nor complainants appeared.

In dismissing the case, Chairman Dyas said:

"The case was to be heard at 1:30. I have heard from Sykes who was associated with Mr. Kimmelman that he is willing to rest on what has gone on before and is not offering testimony."

Mr. Sykes was present in the morning and Mr. Kimmelman came into the office right after the morning session recessed. The chairman reached Mr. Sykes by telephone to learn the case would not be prosecuted.

• • •

AS FAR AS the Leach case case is concerned it involves $500 Andrew Leach says he put as deposit on a home and has been unable to get back. It will not be taken before the Commissioner until after a People's Court hearing involving the case is settled.

THE ALLENDALE - Lyndhurst Improvement Association's case, continued the realty company was willfully using a listing form with no termination date without notice in violation of the real estate code.

The only witnesses Mr. Sykes and Mr. Arnold called were Mr. Shaw, Mr. Bernstein and Mrs. Evelyn Heller, a broker formerly associated with Manning - Shaw.

Mrs. Heller testified in the first case against Manning-Shaw. She said she became dissatisfied and left the company.

But the realty owners testified Mrs. Heller gave up the association, which she agreed was the best she ever had, after an official of the commission advised Manning - Shaw to curb some of her activities.

The matter of the listing form was a complaint from a J. Thomas Younger.

• • •

IT WAS BROUGHT out though that the matter about which he complained was something contained in one of Mrs. Heller's forms rather than something in a Manning - Shaw form.

But it was at the subsequent meeting with Mr. Nicholson on the complaint against Mrs. Heller that Mrs. Heller says Manning and Shaw were advised to make a change in their contract involving expiration dates.

Mr. Shaw and Mr. Bernstein denied Mr. Nicholson advised them to make any change which they failed to make.

Mr. Carney asked Mr. Nicholson should testify for himself and Mr. Sykes first agreed then said, "I withdraw the request to call in Mr. Nicholson."

It was decided after further discussion, that Mr. Nicholson should testify. It was also explained by Commissioners that an investigator from the Commission had investigated after complaint was filed and a change in the realty firm's form had been made.

Mrs. Heller's insistence that Mr. Nicholson had advised Manning - Shaw to make the change back in 1956 at an answered the obvious question of how the firm could operate until the 1958 complaint was filed with both the realty firm and the Commission's executive secretary aware of a violation.

Proving willful and knowing violation on the part of the company would mean also that the commission's agent had not checked the matter after advising the change.

This possibly accounted for the Commission's welcoming the delay to March 24 so that Mr. Nicholson could be heard.

• • •

THE OTHER CASE, the one which has received so much publicity, involves the sale of a home at 3800 Grantley Rd. and its purchasers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Carter.

The complainants have argued that Mr. Carter was allowed to take the home when he was not a bonafide buyer so as to cause panic in the neighborhood.

During the last hearing Sgt. Violet Hill Whyte, policewoman at Northeastern District testified she found Mr. Carter's wife, Marie, and eight children in a destitute condition living in the kitchenette of the $18,000 home.

Later Mr. Carter was taken into court and received a six-month suspended sentence and placed on probation on a charge of neglecting to provide for his family.

When Mr. Carter took the stand on Tuesday, he denied that he was unable to pay for the house, that his family was suffering and photographs were produced to show the home tastefully furnished.

• • •

WHEN ONE OF the commissioners asked where the furniture was when Sgt. Whyte visited the family, Mr. Carter declared:

"Right where it is now."

Still another asked if the house was furnished the way the pictures showed it when the policewomen made her visit.

He answered, "yes," and added:

Mrs. White sat on that stove beside my wife when Mr. Sykes questioned her about these contracts."

This was the first time it had been brought out that Mr. Sykes, who represented the complainants, had questioned Mrs. Carter in the presence of Sgt. Whyte.

Mr. Carter, insisting he had been framed on the neglect charge, testified Sgt. Whyte and Mr. Sykes came to his home "to try to get her (his wife) to say she had not signed these papers."

Mr. Carter said this was his second family and he had in all 17 children. Eight, he said lived with him now.

He said he probably gave four as the number at the first hearing because the question may have been how many of his children were in school.

• • •

MR. CARTER SAID he worked as a porter for $54 a week and also worked as a mechanic on weekends. He said his wife also works and was at work Tuesday. About six months ago, he said, he sold a house he had been renting for $120 a month on Lafayette Ave. had been renting another for $90 on Madison Ave. and another on Ellamont for $84.50 a week.

Also that he had for 17 years operated a delicatessen in the 2500 block Francis St. He later told the AFRO he worked in the daytime while his wife ran the place and taking it over himself at night.

Mr. Sykes aimed at showing Mr. Carter's destitute condition by asking if he did not sometime walk to see about a house he wanted to buy and then walk to his job, and got this answer:

"It makes no difference about me walking. I walked down here this morning and I have about $35 in my pocket."

After Mr. Carter testified he gave a home on Lafayette Ave. to a daughter about two years ago, Mr. Sykes challenged this showing that Mr. Carter sold a home at 918 Lafayette to a Mrs. Sadie Brown.

However, it turned out this was just another of the numerous houses Mr. Carter has owned. The one he gave his daughter was at 2420 Lafayette.

• • •

MR. CARTER refused to tell where he got his money put up for down payments (it was $2,000 in the Grantley Rd. case) but testified he always operated by himself and on behalf of his family.

About the Grantley Rd. home Mr. Carter said:

"I'm perfectly satisfied with the house. I'm going to pay for it."

The 58 year - old man said he did not remember how long he had to pay for the house. Neither did the sellers.

He was able to get a mortgage for the $18,000 home after making his down payment.

While the Grantley Rd. home has been most in the limelight, there is now considerable interest in the upcoming testimony of Mr. Nicholson in the listing form case.

Mrs. Heller, who was the key witness in this case, also played a prominent role in the Grantley Rd. case on behalf of the complainants.

Woman's death blamed on 'severe' beating

James Henderson, 23, of the 1200 block St. James St., pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges that he caused the death of a young woman last December.

In Homicide Court, police testified that Henderson attributed the death of Miss Mary Rankin to the fact that she fell from a chair while reading a comic book last Dec. 8, and struck her head against the base of a stove.

Mr. Henderson was ordered held without bail for action of the grand jury.

An autopsy report indicated that as a result of a severe beating, Miss Rankin died from head and neck injuries.

Police said she was admitted to Johns Hopkins Hospital four days after she was beaten about the head and face.

WALTER BROOKS, a tenant in the apartment building where Henderson and Miss Rankin resided testified that he overheard the following conversation on Dec. 8:

"I heard a noise and Mary Rankin hollering, "murder." I went to the door and heard her say, "If you don't leave me alone I'm going to keep on hollering murder."

Lieutenant Baldwin Dorsey of the Northeastern District testified that Henderson signed a statement in which he declared that he and Miss Rankin had argued because, "She wanted to go out into the street and I wouldn't let her go."

Youth held in death of teenage sweetheart

Garland Carol (Kizzy) Childs, 18, of the 1900 block McKean Ave., pleaded not guilty Friday to charges of shooting his 18 - year - old girl friend, and was held without bail for action of the grand jury.

In Homicide Court, police testified that Childs said the shooting was accidental after Miss Sarah Lee Wise, 18, of the 900 block Franklintown rd., pulled the gun from his pocket.

At a preliminary hearing on Feb. 3, testimony was given that the shooting occurred at a house in the 1500 block Brady Ave., Fairfield, while Miss Wise was visiting friends.

The death of the teenage girl who had been attending afternoon classes at a local high school, was attributed to a gunshot wound of the mouth.

At the time, Childs testified to the following:

"We were standing beside the wall and I had my hands on her when she pulled the gun out of my pocket. I said, 'Girl, it's get bullets in it' and it went off."

• • •

THE CHILDS case was one of two heard by chief Magistrate Standley Richardson on Friday.

The death of Mr. Frazier, who was bartender at the Elks Club in the 1000 block of N. Bond St., for 15 years, was attributed to a stab wound of the left shoulder.
