Floyd Adams in organ recital

By ADAH R. JENKINS

The Patapsco Chapter, American Guild of Organists presented Floyd Adams, of the guild, and the Romara String Trio in a recent concert at Psalmist Baptist Church, Mr. Adams, who is a well known local organist, elected for his part of the program works from the classic, modern and contemporary compoeers.

They were the "Prelude and Fugue" in E minor by Bach, and "Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue" by Johann Thiele, one of the first German writers of the dramatic form that was later to become the oratorio.

The American writer, Edward MacDowell, was represented by "A Sea Song" from his collection of "Sea Pieces," originally written for the piano. "Benedictus" by the contemporary Max Reger and "Flute Solo" by Arme completed the organ numbers.

* * *

MUCH INTEREST was attached to the appearance of with Chester Rowlett, violinist, Henry Mayo, cellist, and Norman Ross, pianist.

They played a well - balanced program which included "Chanson Triste" (A Sad Song), by Tschaikowsky, the brilliant "Hungarian Dance," No. 5, from Brahms, a Waltz by Lehar and the Beethoven Trio in E flat major.

The last named was in three movements: "Allegro" (Lively), 'Andante,' (moving along) and "Scherzo" (playfully).

This new group on the musical horizon marks a welcome addition and should spark lively interest in a most rewarding form of chamber music.

The Patapsco Chapter had garnered an impressive list of patrons for the concert and the audience was highly appreciative.

* * *

THE GUILD members are: Charles Parker, dean Floyd Adams, Arthur Branch, Mrs. Iva Branch, Mrs. Mae Johns Brown, Alfred Casper, Mrs. Grace Casper, Mrs. Gladys While Davis, Mrs. Margaret Ruske Franklin, Herbert Brisby, William Glascoe, Miss Katharine, Lucke (one of the founders), Mrs. Cecelia McLeod, Luther Mitchell, the Rev. William W. Payne, Mrs. Emma Poulson, Mrs. Geraldine Bell Powell, Wardelle Richardson, Norman Ross, Mrs. Jean Sims, Mrs. Gloria Stokes, Mrs. Mary J. Turner, Mrs. Jean Fisher Turpin and Mrs. Frances Chambers Watkins.

A LARGE and warmly enthusiastic audience attended the final concert of the season presented by the Chamber more at the Baltimore Museum of Art last Monday evening.

The Beaux - Arts String Quartet, of New York, opened the evening with a quartet from the "golden age" of chamber music, Beethoven's Opus 18, No. 6 in B flat major. It consists of four movements, the third being a Scherzo (a favorite of Beethoven) and the last, "La Malinconia' (a melancholy expression), which changed into a lively conclusion. The Quartet played with a brilliance and polish befitting this early Beethoven that does not contain the tragedy and passion of his later chamber music.

The listeners then settled themselves to hear one of the main attractions of the evening, a Quartet by Irving Fine, a young contemporary composer, whose fame began with his choral setting of poems from "The New Yorker" magazine.

The "Quartet" in two movements: "Allegro Risoluto" (Lively and resolute) and "Lento" (slow) had a sense of urgency and excitement, even in the slow portions, with a decidedly explosive quality in the first movement.

The lyric passages had a plaintive atmosphere and the ending on a single harmonic gave it a haunting, questioning sort of conclusion. The Beaux Arts players seemed thoroughly at home in the modern idiom.

* * *

THE CONCLUDING quartet was Schumann's in A major, Opus 41, No. 3. The players captured the changing moods of this most romantic of the Romanticists, ending the "Vivace" (Lively) with its echoes of the German folk dance with verse.

Randolph S. Rothchild, president of the Chamber Music Society announced the program for next year, which will bring the Juilliard String Quartet in November and February and a trio of harp, lute and viola da gamma later and the world premiere of a work commissioned for the Chamber Music Society in April.

Mrs. Richard Goodman and Mrs. Harold Waxman were hostesses at an informal reception for the performing artists at the conclusion of the concert.

MAIL BOX: An exciting letter from the Baltimore soprano Bertha Wainwright Peyton, now living with her husband in Izmir, Greece. Enclosed was a copy (printed in Greek, French and English) of a program given by this gifted singer at the Elhamra Theatre, in collaboration with Roger Daumas, pianist.

The vocal numbers included arias by Handel, Scarlatti Schubert art songs, songs by Hahn and James Rogers and a spiritual arranged by Florence Price. Emily Smith, an English pianist, was the accompanist.

While in Izmir, Mrs. Payton has been coaching with Mme. Itala Patrini, a distinguished Italian singer. Following the concert French, Italian, British and German consuls attended a reception for the artists.

Before leaving for the States in 1960 Mrs. Peyton is planning to give a concert in Athens.

Enclosed in our letter were reviews from the Greek newspapers congratulating the two artists upon their excellent performances. Fortunately, Mrs. Peyton obliged with an English translation!

Mrs. Morselle, leading Anne Arundel educator

BY ELOISE RICHARDSON

Significant of the quiet way in which she lived, were the beautiful funeral serbices held on Sunday for one of Annapolis' finest citizens, Mrs. Josephia Randall Morsell, leading Anne Arundel County educator.

The funeral rites, which were held at the Mt. Olive AME Church in the Parole community where she was a resident, were conducted by the Rev. James E. Johnson, pastor of the Cecil Methodist Church. The Rev. Mr. Johnson also gave the eulogy.

Mrs. Temperance Simms a member of the Cecil Memorial Methodist choir, rendered a solo. The Rev. Joseph S. Grant, pastor of Mt. Olive Church, offered prayer. Mrs. Katherine I. Pindell acknowledge resolutions and cards and read the obituary.

Mrs. Morselle was loved by all who knew her, and the type of life she made for herself left a lasting impression on all whom she touched.

This is what the family had to say about her:

Hers was the selflessness for which we all strive

Hers was the reason for our trying to be alive.

Hers was the spirit in life a perfect blend

She was daughter, sister, teacher, mother, counselor and friend.

Born at Chaney, Md. on June 1, 1905, Mrs. Morselle was the daughter of the late William A. Randall and Mrs. Bessie Randall and was the second child of four who preceded her.

After attending the public schools of Calvert County, she went to Bowie Normal School at Bowie, Md., where she completed her normal training and began her teaching career in the demonstration school.

Later, after completing the requirements for the Bachelor of Science degree in 1936 at Hampton Institute, she returned to teach at Bowie, where she remained until 1942, when she began her career in Anne Arundel County at the Magothy School.

In his message to the bereaved family, Mr. Leandas S. James, former president of the Maryland State Teachers College at Bowie during the time she served there, referred to her as a "dedicated servant."

During her last years up until recently, she served at the Parole School, the time of her death, was a teacher of special education at the Bates Junior High School.

In these later years she also earned her Master of Education degree from the University of Maryland.

* * *

IN A RESOLUTION from the faculty of the Bates Junior High School of which she was a member read this statement:

"Firm in her belief that diligence, conscientiousness, unselfishness and ambition were the necessary ingredients for success, Josephia Morsell applied these qualities in her daily routine, and thus enriched the lives of everyone she touched.

Mrs. Morselle, who had a very warm and friendly personality, was active in educational circles. In whatever community she lived, she made herself felt through her selfless devotion to any assigned task.

She was a member of the Service, a member of the Board of Stewards, and a counselor of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

* * *

SURVIVORS ARE: her mother, Mrs. Bessie Randall, a husband, Mr. Lowndes Morsell and a daughter, Miss Wynona who will graduate from Coppin State College at—Wilberforce, Ohio in June;

Long arm of the law no match for angry woman

'Don't go fooling around while I'm gone' were the parting words of advice a 25-year-old woman gave to her boyfriend as she left Northern Police Court room to begin serving a six-month term in city jail.

Miss Audrey Stewart, 2400 block Druid Hill Ave., was given the jail term on Monday by Magistrate James Fannon.

He found her guilty of four charges, and meted out the following sentences:

Four months for biting an officer on the hand; 30 days for disorderly conduct; a $25 suspended fine for disturbing the peace at her Druid Hill Ave. home; and 30 days for scratching James Coates, 32, with her fingernails.

ALTHOUGH Mr. Coates was given a $25 suspended fine after pleading not guilty to charges of disturbing the peace he offered to put $25 in the station house poor box.

Patrolman Lawrence Campeggi testified police had gone to the Stewart home earlier in the day to settle a dispute between the couple.

The second time, the officer said he found Mr. Coates cut and bleeding about the face.

When she heard her jail sentence, Miss Stewart, looked at Magistrate Fannon in surprise and proclaimed, "I don't want to serve any time. I want to get out of here."
