The Dixon bill

Councilman Walter T. Dixon will introduce a new and meaningful civil rights ordinance in the City Council on Monday night. It would give the Equal Employment Opportunities Committee the power it needs to do the job for which it was intended.

There has been a loud hue and cry from within and without the City Council about the proposed legislation.

Despite the exhibition this week which clearly shows the need of such an ordinance, there are those who want to delay introduction of the bill until after the May 5 General City Election.

Vital legislation like this should be introduced in the Council and voted upon promptly whether there is an election in the offing or not.

Any administration ought to be willing to vote on an important measure like civil rights without permitting it to become a party matter (and there is not much chance of its being a party matter now because the whole City Council is Democratic and has been for a long time).

WHEN THE Equal Opportunities bill was passed it was realized that it didn't have any teeth. However, this was the strongest measure that the administrative forces under Mayor D'Alesandro would approve.

Everybody knew that the commission had no enforcement powers.

So, after two years, there is a hearing this week involving Read Drug Company, which is charged with racial discrimination.

According to the Equal Opportunities Commission the firm:

(1) Gives white employees sick and accident benefits as a matter of right while colored employees get them only at the discretion of the store manager, (2) Gives white employees life insurance after 90 days while colored employees must wait five years, (3) Pays colored fountain employees $28 to $30 a week to start while white employees get $36 to $38.

Commission chairman Richard Emory points out that the Read Drug Company does not deny the violations complained of.

These charges are serious and we deeply regret that the Read Drug Company did not see fit to answer them personally.

They ought to be answered. It now appears that the only way to determine whether there is discrimination in the company's hiring policy is legislation such as the Dixon Bill.

This legislation would give the Equal Opportunities Commission the power to summons witnesses and take testimony, and if an employer declined to change his policies, appeal to the court for such judgment as is common in civil rights acts in twenty odd cities and states.

The Jones amendments

State Senator J. Alvin Jones (D-4th) kept the Municipal Court bill from being shoved through the State Senate on Tuesday.

From the floor, he introduced five amendments which later were killed, but they had the effect of delaying action on this controversial measure, which was not passed until Wednesday.

Mr. Jones's amendments would have: allowed for the election of 15 judges instead of 11; apportioned them among the legislative districts, cut the elective terms from ten to six, and allowed any member of the General Assembly to serve as a municipal court judge whether he was a lawyer or not.

The Municipal Court bill which Mr. Jones sought to amend is no good for us and Mr. Jones exhibited courage in seeking to have it revised.

It makes no sense to have a unified court where all of the judges are elected on a city-wide basis.

We know what this will mean to qualified colored men and women because we have seen what has happened in the past.

When judges are elected by the whole city, minorities are easily overlooked. A case in point is the Supreme Bench which has never had a colored member.

There is no objection to fulltime traffic and police court magistrates, but we believe the Jones amendment which would allow the governor to nominate them subject to the approval of the voters of each of the city's six districts is the better and fairer proposal.

It is not necessary for a committee of the city bar association and the entire voting populace to approve police and traffic court magistrates.

The court bill has now moved to the House of Delegates where the city delegation will study it this week.

The best thing that could happen to the court bill is to kill it.

The virtue of Mr. Jones' amendments is that there was a delay in the House's receiving the measure.

It is hoped that the House will examine it thoroughly, and agree to kill the bill, or adopt the Jones amendments which will do away with city-wide election of magistrates.

Hawaii and D.C.

It was a natural reaction that instead of being greeted with great rejoicing the passage of the Hawaii Statehood Bill only deepened the gloom of Washington home rule supporters.

Those who believe that District affairs should be dictated by the local electorate instead of by absentee congressmen have difficulty accepting the fact that outlying territories like Alaska and Hawaii are granted the right to govern themselves while the District of Columbia remains voteless.

Comparing conditions in Washington with those in many other cities, it might well be argued that in some respects D.C. residents are better off than those who elect their own officials, particularly in cases where the voters have permitted their political machinery to fall into the hands of corrupt interests and bossism.

These conditions merely prove that voting alone is no guarantee of good government, but it at least furnishes the machinery by which the decent people can, when properly organized and aroused, take steps to correct the evils which beset them.

Because of the complications of bringing about this desired result, some have proposed that the District be ceded back to Maryland.

Since Virginia would have a similar historic claim to a portion of the District area, we can envision a hassle which would be more complicated than that now raging over East and West Berlin.

Will they keep running?

Propaganda That Failed

A few weeks ago the sociologists, psychologists, psychiatrists and others interested in the problem of combatting juvenile delinquency were knocked off of their pins when the 15-year-old son of Roy Campanella, famous Dodger star, was nabbed for hoodlumism.

The case seemed to upset all of the pet theories of the social scholars and became the object of discussion in papers and periodicals all over the country.

"How Could a Boy Like This Get into Trouble?" was the topic of an article distributed by a news service, the theme of which was found in the paragraph "How did David Campanella—reared in a beautiful home, given all the attention of devoted parents, free from any physical want — get into trouble and become a delinquent?"

Violent segregationists were quick to leap upon this unfortunate incident and use it in their anti-integration propaganda to attempt to show that colored children although coming from the best homes and from the finest environments presented a menace when schools are mixed.

This was a fallacious argument which was destroyed before the ink was dry. The editions of the same week carried glaring headlines of how Sarah Churchill was jailed for being drunk, disorderly and disturbing the peace.

This proved that all such cases must be judged on individual instead of a group basis, and no generalities applied to race are valid regardless of whether the youth involved is the son of a colored baseball player or the daughter of an ex-British Prime Minister and world leader.

If a parent, having done his best, cannot be blamed for the way his children turn out, why should any stigma be attached to the race to which they belong? The Campanella case proves nothing except the fact that one kid got mixed up; and for every one who goes wrong a million go right.

This is further substantiated by the figures released by the Juvenile Bureau of the District which show that delinquency among the group has taken a sharp drop over the past four years. In spite of the rise in population the number of kids who became embroiled with the law went down.

Integration of schools may not be the whole cause, but there is no doubt that the dissimilation of groups in ghettos, lifting their sights, broadening of their horizons and releasing them from emotional repressions caused by enforced feelings of racial inferiority was a contributing factor.

THE AFRO'S CREDO

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself —
Whether it has kept the faith with the common people;
Whether it has no other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured;
Whether it is fighting to get rid of slums, to provide jobs for everybody;

—JOHN MURPHY, SR., 1920

QUOTATION OF THE WEEK

"O God, give us serenity to accept what cannot be changed, courage to change what should be changed and wisdom to distinguish the one from the other."

—DR. REINHOLD NIEBUHR

Noteworthy

By HERBERT MANGRUM

It takes all kinds of people to keep this crazy world in orbit like:

The young man who casually walked into a self service shoe store the other day, and started out with new shoes and socks on his feet.

And then, there is the guy who after buying a hot suit and a pistol, parades back and forth along the avenue in and out of night clubs.

His pals and landlady had complimented him on the perfect fit. With his government check he's riding high. That is until the law taps him on the shoulder and tells him the suit was stolen from a police sergeant.

AND THEN, there is that sizzling girlie show in the down-in town district that sends the boys out in space.

The other night when one of the strippers stepped on top of the bar, and affectionately touched the hand of a customer, the poor boy went out of his head.

He accumulated so much courage that he was overheard telling his wife, "I'm not going to wash my hands for a week."

AND THEN there are the poor by now broken down parents who took their kids out to see Capt. Kangaroo over the weekend.

So many adults were on hand for the 2:30 performance that parents had to hold kids on their shoulders for them to see.

When a neighbor later asked what I had been doing all day, I answered, "I flew a kite and went to see Capt. Kangaroo." The guy looked at me like I was crazy.

Took me a long time to understand why. I had forgotten to tell him I did those things for my kids, not for myself.

Readers Say

'More than grateful'

Dear AFRO:

Thank you very much for printing my letter. I knew that there were good people in this world, but I was surprised and more than grateful for the quick response to my appeal.

I have received help from several Neighborhood Clubs and several personal donations of both money and food. My last month's house payment has been made and from the way things look I will also be able to make the payment for this month.

Of course I am still hoping for some extra night work and some good, reliable tenants for my rooms so that I can keep my head above water.

My husband has also asked me to express to you his sincere thanks and to let you know how much the AFRO Readers' response has lifted his spirits. As for me, I cannot find words "adequate enough to express my thanks to you, the AFRO-AMERICAN Co., the various Neighborhood Clubs and the numerous personal donors who have helped me in my time of trouble.

May God ever bless the AFRO and all of you who work there for the fine work that you are doing to help those who are needy.

(MRS.) ATLANTA SCOTT
1805 Ashburton St.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The story of Mrs. Scott, her ill husband and the emergency they faced in meeting the rent and paying for food and necessities for their family of five children appeared in the AFRO on March 14 under the head, 'Maybe someone, somewhere will be able to help me and my family.' AFRO readers responded as soon as the paper was on the street.)

St. Joseph's Hospital

Dear AFRO:

On Saturday night my little two year old child was stricken and had a high temperature and had two convulsions in a very short while.

My husband and I rushed her to St. Joseph's Hospital (which was the closest hospital).

Only to be told by the lady at the desk that it would cost $3.00 before we could see the doctor.

We didn't have much money, but in the excitement we rushed out and forgot the little we did have.

When we told the lady to send us a bill she refused to do so, and even left her desk, putting out the light and locking the door as she did so.

Her parting words to us was, "You go out to Cher-- (I guess she meant City Hospitals).

What I would like to know is where are the Christian principles? St. Joseph's Hospital (named for the earthly father of Jesus) displays a large statue of Jesus in the hospital, the man who never turned anyone away.

Rights hearing

Dear AFRO:

On March 25th, I attended the Judiciary Committee's public hearing on the Civil Rights measures introduced by Senator J. Alvin Jones of the 4th Legislative District.

Many statements were made in support of the bills and some against portions of certain bills, which in an isolated sense, were constructive criticisms.

Other comments were merely emotional outcries intended to instill apprehension into the people — statements without foundation and based on no apparent logic.

One speaker in particular, made statements, the basis for which there was no sound reasoning whatsoever. These remarks, when they could be understood, were based on excerpts taken out of context from a writing by Huxley on Social Rights.

This Baltimore attorney evidently was attempting to brainwash the Committee and those present into the belief that the colored man was fighting, not for civil rights, but was attempting to get the State to legislate social rights.

His name was John B. Fox. In his dramatic talk, he forgot the difference between "civil" and "social" rights, so his speech did more harm than good to the opponents of civil rights.

There might be some question about why I singled him out in particular. I have been informed by my colleagues that this attorney has a fair percentage of colored clientele and the writer feels strongly that those who make use of his services should know his attitude toward them and his stand on civil rights.

If a man feels this way about the colored man, then of necessity, he certainly cannot change that feeling merely because a colored man happens to be one of his clients.

I hope that those colored clients who sit in his office or who have sat there in the past will take note of these facts and if the shoe fits, let their better judgment and pride be their guide in the future.

ARTHUR G. MURPHY

Thanks, thanks

Dear AFRO:

I just had to write you again to thank you for all you have done for my children and me. As you know we did not have much of anything for Christmas. Then I wrote to you and you published my letter.

Then the good things started happening to us. First, the 21 Charity Saving Club and Elka daughters of Great Southern Temple brought food, clothes and everything nice for us. And we had a wonderful Christmas on January 11th. And they are still bringing us good things.

Last Sunday the 21 Charity Saving Club brought us nice warm coats, pants, suits and dresses for me.

Thanks to you for printing my letter. This has been a wonderful happy new year for us.

I know the AFRO is a friend to all people.

Thanks again for everything.

MRS. E. C.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. E. C. is the mother of the Chessell Ct. youngster who wrote the AFRO to report that this newspaper's Mrs. Santa Claus failed to visit their home and she needed help in restoring his faith in Christmas as he had looked forward to a good Christmas dinner. Her letter brought aid from several readers and clubs which took Christmas to the family last month and this month.

Thanks for trophy

Dear AFRO:

The success last Saturday of the Tenth Annual Press Convention for Junior High School journalists was due in part to the AFRO-AMERICAN contribution.

We are greatly indebted to the AFRO - AMERICAN for giving us the prize that was presented to Woodbourne Junior High School. This award was one of the highlights of the convention program.

On behalf of the Convention Committee, I wish to thank you for your help and assistance in this worthwhile cause.

If You Ask Me

By B. M. PHILLIPS

People, places and things...

Get-well cards and plenty of cheer to Mrs. Elsie Richardson. Since Tuesday, she has been confined to Anne Arundel General Hospital, Room 205, Annapolis, Md.

Her doctor says she will have to rest in the hospital for at least a week, which means she'll be confined for the holidays.

And, they did just that on Tuesday evening when the Oberlin College Choir appeared in concert at Bethel AME Church.

Two members of the choir are Baltimoreans — Hazel Bryant, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Harrison J. Bryant (He's Bethel pastor and her mother chaired the affair), and Charlene Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Moore, members of Sharp St. Methodist Church.

As early as 7:30 p.m., an hour before the concert was to begin, people were standing in line, waiting to be admitted.

When the 59-voice choir walked into the church auditorium, there was not a vacant seat (save two or three in the front right corner, where it would be difficult to see or hear.

When the first number began, there were two dozen standees in the balcony and about a dozen on the first floor.

The Rev. Mr. Bryant himself assisted a church member in carting extra chairs in from an anteroom.

Their voices blended so beautifully ... and his daughter's (Hazel) lovely voice could be heard above the others on several occasions.

Robert Fountain, the brilliant Oberlin Choir director, astonished some concert - goers, including this reporter, when he requested after the third number that listeners hold their applause until the end of the concert!

Our seat companions — Mr. Meredith Birchett, recently named teacher of secondary school music (he was formerly in elementary schools); and he has two other new titles — he's new director of the Cornerstone Temple Choir (the church which will be located in the old Har Sinai building on Madison Ave.); and he is a new homeowner — 300 N. Hilton St.

In moving, he and his mother, Mrs. Eula Birche, left the family home at 1107 W. Lanvale St. which they had occupied for 30 years.

On the same row: Miss A. Dukeye Woode, music supervisor; and Miss Dorothy Glenn, and Miss Myrna Addison, both seniors majoring in music at Morgan.

Mrs. Lucy Holt Jones, singer and pianist who was also seated in the balcony, wore an attractive teal blue dress with matching hat, decorated with sequin pins.

Across from them — Mrs. Jessie Fitzgerald Lemon a skilled musician and former music teacher, and Miss E. Estelle Thomas, YWCA executive.

Mrs. Georgia Chester, also a city music teacher... and her hubby, Paul. He had to sit on the steps ... all seats were taken when he arrived and he came in before the concert began.

And Emile H. Serpos, director of music education in the schools; Donald Reigler, supervisor of vocal music in secondary schools.

And, many others too numerous to mention here. Suffice to say it was a standing room only crowd and the concert - goers were treated to a delightful two hours.

PS — In mentioning the concert in this space last week, we committed a boo boo in saying that Gloria Stokes, the city teacher who started Hazel Bryant on her way, also gave Theresa Green a start. What we should have said is that Mrs. Stokes said she thinks Hazel Bryant is greatest local singer since Theresa.

More people and things...

Mrs. Daisy Monk Thompson Mason, second wife of Dr. Joseph B. Mason, the chiropodist, was buried on Monday following funeral services at Tickner's.

The family attends Sharp St. Methodist Church.

Kind hellos to Mrs. Elizabeth McPhatter, 1213 Myrtle Ave., Baltimore.

She was in Morfon, N.C. earlier this month to bury her father, Jim McPhatter who died there at the age of 90.

Orchids of the week to Cedric Scott, 1618 Mulberry St., a 52-year-old grandfather, who has been paralyzed for sometime, after a leg amputation.

He gets around with the use of a wheel chair. The other day he was able to get a new model chair, so he called this newspaper to advise he would give his old one away.

Thanks to his generosity another paralyzed lady will be able to move around.

See, people, are nice, nice, nice...

Speaking of leg amputations, Ernest White, owner of Walbrook Inn, and former proprietor of Sugar Hill tavern, now has his leg amputated.

Cards will reach him at Halstead 2, Hopkins Hospital.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Morris (Mrs. Susie) Church Lane, Randallstown are improving nicly. She has been ill for two weeks. He has been in all year—he had his left leg amputated.

Miss Elsie Collins, Owings Mills, Md is still confined to home—her leg was amputated too.

Cheer to him in Fruitland, Md.

Get well cards to Kendell Cooper, 2408 W. Lexington St., who entered Provident Hospital on Monday for surgery. Will be there over the Easter holiday.

Also, Mrs. Daisy Flood, 501 Bloom St., who entered two weeks ago — will spend Easter in Provident.

Daniel Gundy, 2403 W. North Ave., who has been confined to Provident since last Tuesday.

People are talking about that southwest Baltimore Catholic Church which announced bingo open to the public and then when colored neighbors showed up they advised the game was open only for parishioners!

About this and that...

Birthday hellos also on March 28 to a lovely Baltimore lady—Miss Mary Jane Brown, well known dining room owner. Her address: 1804 W. North Ave.

Tenth wedding anniversary greetings to: Mr. and Mrs. Morris Peterson (in public, she is Dr. Ada Lee, the foot doctor). Their address, 2140 W. North Ave.

Ralph Chambers, social security worker, should get your birthday greetings by March 30. His address: 307 Dolphin St.

Hellos wherever they are to Retired Methodist Bishop and Mrs. A. P. Shaw. They mark their 47th wedding anniversary on Easter Sunday, March 29.

April 1st birthday cards to Harry A. Carpenter Jr., the city teacher. His address: 3106 Gwynns Falls Parkway.

Two birthdays in the Jackson family this coming week: 91-year-old Mrs. Annie Franklin, 310 E. 23rd St. celebrates on April 1.

Her son-in-law, Dr. Charles Jackson, the retired chiropodist, who has been confined to bed for two years, celebrates on April 3rd.

Cards will reach him at the same E. 23rd St. address.

Visitor this week: Major Jesse Lipscomb stopped over in Baltimore enroute to New York to visit his family.

Major Lipscomb, who took an interracial team of athletes overseas last year, heads the sports program at Ft. Lee, Va. His title is sports officer.

Easter greetings to Robert and Marion White, formerly of Baltimore, now of 149 W St., NW, Washington.

His father is ill in the hospital—had a leg amputated. Her mother died on Monday.

Their daughter, who was ill, is much improved.
