Housewife dies in traffic accident

A 45-year - old South Baltimore housewife was struck and killed by a dump truck Tuesday while returning to her home from a Bible study class.

Mrs. Melve Bishop of 847 Reinhardt St., was pronounced dead on arrival at University Hospital at 12:17 p.m.

Following the fatal accident at Hamburg and Russell Sts., William V. Lepinaitis Jr., 29 of Pasadena, Md., was charged with manslaughter and reckless driving. • • •

PATROLMEN Bernard Baker and Francis Murphy of the Accident Investigation Division reported that the truck rolled 45 feet with Mrs. Bishop on the bumper before it came to a halt.

In addition to a head injury, the victim suffered multiple injuries of the face, arms and legs.

Mrs. Bishop was identified through a driver's license in her purse, police said.

Funeral services for the deceased, who was a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, were scheduled for (Friday) today.

Mrs. Bishop is survived by her husband, Frank Bishop; a son, Robert W. Gresham and a daughter, Mrs. Juanita Warner.

THIS IS THE location at Hamburg and Russell Sts., where Mrs. Melve Bishop of 847 Reinhardt St., died Tuesday. X marks the spot where the South Baltimore housewife was struck by a dump truck. Her body was carried 45 feet further on the truck's bumper. Her son said Mrs. Bishop was returning home from a Bible study class when the accident occurred.

Harford school case set Oct. 9

The State Board of Education has scheduled an Oct. 9 hearing date for a case involving a complaint of school segregation in Harford County.

Involved in the complaint is A. Dwight Pettit, 13, who requested a transfer from the Harve de Grace Consolidated School to Aberdeen High.

Through his attorney, Tucker R. Dearing, the youngster is contending that the refusal of school officials to effect such a transfer was based solely on his race.

Mr. Dearing labeled the refusal as "unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious."

Harford County's integration plan requires that students seeking transfer to formerly all white schools must file a formal application with the county superintendent of schools and the transfer must be approved by the Board of Education.

Time for the Oct. 9 hearing is 1:30 p.m. in the State Office Building, 310 W. Preston St.

10-year-old winning fight to walk again

A 10-year-old bright eyed boy, paralyzed from the waist down for 18 months, is learning to walk.

He is headed toward the day when he may be able to run and play as other boys do because he has will power and responds to the careful instruction kind adults are giving him.

Arthur Phillips, 423 Watty Ct., is the plucky youngster. He lives at Kernan's Hospital for Crippled Children on Windsor Mill Rd., also known as School No. 351.

With the aid of expert medical care, he is getting "back on his feet again," and according to nurses is doing "simply grand."

Learning to walk means he is strapped in braces and with the aid of crutches, is taught to swing his body in order to "walk." Other exercise helps him to strengthen his arms so he can balance himself properly.

The braces weigh 12 pounds and include laced up, high top, brass sole shoes. To get in the braces Arthur must lie flat on his back. After the waist support is fastened he sits up and buckles the leg straps himself.

Now he is able to dress himself, strap on his braces, and sit up. Along with all these accomplishments, he has kept up with school studies and is a third grade pupil.

SUMMING IT up, young Arthur himself says: "I feel fine. I am learning everything, and I like it."

But, the broad smile on the youngster's face, the hope shining in his eyes, speak much more than words can tell just how far he has come.

Back in March, 1958 (somewhere in the dim past as far as the brave little fellow is concerned), Arthur was getting ready to put his bike up on the sidewalk at Ellamont and Pressman Sts. He and his sister had come from an after-school ride. At the time, the family lived in the 2200 block Pressman St.

A speeding car struck Arthur. Neighbors found his mangled and unconscious body near the curb.

FOR SIX months, Arthur lay in Lutheran Hospital. At first physicians gave him a 50-50 chance to live, since he had sustained a broken leg, concussions and kidney injuries in addition to the paralysis.

Physicians doubted that he would ever return to the life of a normal boy, if he did survive.

However, his mother, Mrs. Goldie Phillips, a widow, and mother of five other children in addition to Arthur and his 10-year-old sister, visited him faithfully and prayerfully.

By August, 1958, Arthur was able to be moved to the Kernan's Hospital where all crippled children, regardless of race, are welcomed with loving care, understanding and are attended by a staff of physicians, specialists in the business, nurses and physical therapy experts.

He endured four operations at Kernan Hospital and was returned to Lutheran for two additional operations to straighten his leg.

According to the Director of Nurses, Mrs. Mildred Kehs, Arthur has responded so well to the Kernan program because "he is a willing little boy."

ON WEDNESDAY, Mrs. Kehs told the AFRO: "He has indeed come a long way, this brave one. And because he has the will power, he is going along on his own. He will soon be able to do all right.

"He is learning to let his arms carry him along as he swings his legs which have no power of their own.

"He is doing so beautifully because he has what it takes in will power."

Rightfully so, Mrs. Kehs paused and added: "Of course, Arthur has had expert care. Our nurses have made a special of him. It took a great deal of time and attention. Now the broken leg is mended and although there is no sensation from the waist down, he is in good condition.

"Add to that, his mother's regular Sunday visits and love and I'd say Arthur has a good chance."

THE 30-BED Kernan Hospital has specially designed facilities for youngsters and adults too, who are unfortunately in the physical condition such as Arthur found himself in March, 1958.

Established in 1895, the hospital was the dream of a young practicing physician, Dr. R. Tunstall Taylor, who had become increasingly dissatisfied with hospital facilities for his young patients whose bodies had become crippled by disease and accident.

A converted residence at W. 20th St. became the hospital's first home and it was here that James Lawrence Kernan, owner of several Baltimore theatres and hotels became interested in Dr. Taylor's work.

IN 1911, Mr. Kernan made the hospital a gift of his 70-acre Radnor Park estate which overlooks the Gwynns Falls Valley at Dickeyville.

Today, the buildings and grounds remain the ideal place for children to recover, among wooded areas, natural beauty and rural surroundings easily accessible to the city of Baltimore.

During the Depression years, the Kernan estate finances were lost but the hospital continues under the aid of many friends, benefactors and Community plus the aid of the state of Maryland and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Outstanding work is done by the medical, surgical nursing staffs and administrators of the hospital, which have an excellent example, Mrs. Kehs, the director of nurses, who has served 24 years.

Fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals in 1954, the hospital is headed by Mrs. Virginia C. Pruit, superintendent and James F. Turner Sr., president of the board of trustees.

Dr. Allen F. Voshell is medical director and surgeon-in-chief.

Arthur's third grade teacher is Miss Bertha Sendelbach.

TODAY—Learning to walk by swinging his body, Arthur Phillips, shown above with crutches and braces as aids, does it with will-power. Although his 11th birthday comes Dec. 3 this year, AFRO readers need not wait so long but may send get well cards, good cheer and the encouragement of gifts to occupy long days, to him now at the Kernan Hospital for Crippled Children, Windsor Mill Rd., Baltimore.

MR. A. FRO, the man with the big money to give away is is still making the rounds on Wednesdays and Saturdays looking for people to answer simple questions and win the cash. You have to have an AFRO Lucky Sticker on your window or door to attract Mr. A. Fro.

TO OPEN IN NOVEMBER—AFRO photo of the 20 million dollar Sinai Hospital, Greenspring and Belvedere Avenues in Northwest Baltimore which will officially open in mid-November. It was formally dedicated on Sunday. Composed of nine units, the new hospital will have 483 beds, with no more than two beds to a room even in the wards. All rooms have private lavatories and are air-conditioned. The new Sinai is operated by the Associated Jewish Charities and replaces the old 312-bed Sinai on Monument St. and Rutland Ave. As in the old hospital, the new hospital will make no distinction as to race, color or creed in its admission policy. The new hospital is located on 50 acres of land, has 600,991 square feet of space, parking facilities for over 800 cars, a heliport and overnight accommodations for relatives of critically ill patients. Six of the hospital's nine units, all connected by underground corridors, are pictured here: No. 1, Hoffberger Nurses Residence; No 2, Rosenbloom Staff Residence; No. 3, Hecht School of Nursing; No. 4, Morris Schapiro and Family Research Building; No. 5, the General Hospital Building; No. 6, Louis and Henrietta Blaustein Obstetric and Gynecology Building. Not pictured are: Mt. Pleasant Building, completed in 1953; the Zamoiski Auditorium which seats 375; and the Bettie S. Fuechsl and Ferdinand and Henrietta Fuechsl Service and Utility Buildings.

New Sinai waits to serve community

The new Sinai is $20 million worth of hospital sprawled gracefully over 50 acres of land in Northwest Baltimore at Belvedere and Greenspring Aves.

Long, sweeping and beautifully modern, the new hospital was dedicated on Sunday.

It has all a patient, doctor, student, or employees can ask for, and more.

Located high on a hill, the nine-unit hospital dominates the area.

Contemporary in design, the buildings are of red brick, trimmed with white Vermont marble.

Its landscaping accentuates the clean, flowing lines of the building like the correct hair do can accentuate a face.

A magnolia tree, sweet gum tree, brilliant yellow and white chrysanthemums are the gems that complete the dress of the hospital's exterior.

FROM THE main General Hospital Building is a covered promenade running parallel to an inside promenade. This leads to a wing of that building.

The outer wall of the inside promenade is glass.

The main entrance of the General Hospital Building overlooks a flagstone terrace and garden of yellow chrysanthemums.

An imposing stone mosaic of the Menorah — a traditional Jewish symbol — graces the foyer.

The entire hospital shows it has been built with the patient in mind.

Gone is the "antiseptic look" identified with hospitals in general.

This new hospital is decorated in soft pastels and brilliant hues of orange, blue, and any other color a patient may desire.

One may find as many as five different colors on the walls of one corridor.

THERE ARE 483 beds, an increase of 171 over the old hospital in the 1700 block E. Monument St.

Not conspicuously absent from Baltimore's newest most modern hospital, is the multi-bed ward.

None of its rooms will hold more than two beds except in the children's section. There are also private rooms.

Each of the rooms, decorated in soft, relaxing shades of brown, blue, yellow, pink, and green are air-conditioned and have lavatories. Some have complete baths.

In each room is an instrument panel with a two-way communication system. With this, a patient can signal the nurse at her station and tell her what is wanted before she makes an unneeded trip.

On each floor are two nurses' stations, with 40 beds to each unit. Each 40-bed unit has its own solarium at the end of the hall.

OTHER BUILDINGS of the new hospital are the Blaustein obstetric and gynecology building with 101 beds and 91 bassinets;

The Mt. Pleasant Building for pulmonary and chest diseases, which was opened in 1953, has 60 beds;

The Rosenbloom Medical Staff Building with 68 single rooms;

The Hoffberger Nurses' Residence with quarters for 194 students, 14 supervisors and a matron;

The Hecht School of Nursing which includes classrooms, a demonstration room, pharmacology laboratory, library and a nurses' arts teaching room;

The Zamoiski Auditorium, which can seat 375 persons;

the Fuechsl Service and Utility Buildings;

The Morris Schapiro and Family Research Building with 55 laboratories with operating facilities for animals and special animal quarters.

THEY FORGOT nothing!

A parking lot supplies space for over 800 automobiles, a heliport provides for arrival of emergency patients by helicopter and there are overnight accommodations for relatives of very ill patients.

All of the hospital units are connected by underground passages.

FOR THE "food-conscious" patient, the hospital will operate on a "centralized food system."

All foods are prepared in a central kitchen area (with) two separate Kosher kitchens and are delivered by carts with equipment for making hot toast in the patient's room, and hot and cold compartments.

An electric dumbwaiter serves "short orders."

There are also a general cafeteria for 250 persons, a gift shop, canteen and several out-door terraces.

THE NEW HOSPITAL, owned and operated by the Associated Jewish Charities, is completely non-sectarian and makes no distinction as to race, creed or color.

In the mid-1800's, the need for a Jewish hospital in Baltimore was felt when a Jewish man was placed in a non-Jewish hospital by the Hebrew Benevolent Association, and died there unattended.

At a meeting where the incident was discussed in 1863, land and money were donated for the building of the first Jewish hospital in Baltimore City.

COMPLETED IN 1868, at a total cost of $50,440, the original hospital was called the Baltimore Asylum of Israelites.

It was located on what was then known as Monument St. and Hopkins Ave., and Madison and Regester Sts.

Later, it became the Hebrew Hospital. In 1926, it changed its name to Sinai, because it was no longer a sectarian institution.

In the first 30 years of Sinai's operation, the hospital's staff was almost entirely non-Jewish because of the scarcity of Jewish physicians.

Today, however, physicians and technicians of all races and creeds serve in the hospital.

IN FACT, Sinai was one of the first hospitals to grant privileges to colored physicians.

Dr. Marcus Moore, now an adjunct attending surgeon to the outpatient department, was the first staff member. He was granted privileges in 1952.

The following year, Dr. Talmadge Pinkney, now an assistant physician on the active pediatrics department, joined the staff.

Dr. Donald W. Stewart, a 1955 University of Md. Medical School graduate, was employed as a lab technician while in medical school, later interned at Sinai. He is now in his second year as assistant resident in medicine.

Other colored physicians who serve the staff are Dr. Percival Smith, assistant in medicine, outpatient department; and Dr. Henry Welcome, adjunct attending surgeon, outpatient department.

THERE ARE A total of 500 persons on the hospital staff at present. A spokesman told the AFRO this week that a number of colored persons serve in all categories, lab technicians, nurses, nurse's aides and others.

There are several research assistants. One of them is Tyson Tildon, employed in the division of pediatrics, presently on a year's leave to do study under a fellowship grant.

Executive director of the hospital is Harvey H. Weiss. As his assistant director and secretary is Morris N. Throne.

OFFICERS and directors of the Associated Jewish Charities planning committee for the hospital are:

J. Benjamin Katzner, chairman; Albert D. Hutzler Sr., honorary chairman; Harry Greenstein, executive director; Isaac Hamburger, Abraham Krieger, Lester E. Levy, Joseph Meyerhoff, Elkan R. Myers, Alvin Thalheimer.

Leaders hail the new Sinai

Governor J. Millard Tawes, Mayor J. Harold Grady, Dr. Furman L. Templeton, executive director of the Urban League, and Robert H. Levi, president of Sinai Hospital, issued statements recently in observance of the dedication of the new building at Belvedere and Greenspring Aves.

Governor Tawes said in part:

"In the new Sinai Hospital in Baltimore, I see not only an institution to provide better health and better medical care for the people of Baltimore, but a monument to the charity and public spirited generosity of the men and women whose contributions made its construction possible.

"We are all deeply indebted to the Associated Jewish Charities, and to every person who supported it in this project, for making our community healthier and better place in which to live."

A PORTION of Mayor Grady's statement was:

"On behalf of the citizens of Baltimore and the city's government, I express the thanks of this community to the Associated Jewish Charities, to the directors and staff of Sinai Hospital and to all those whose contributions and labors made this magnificent new facility a reality.

"Under a non-sectarian admissions policy, the medical care, the nursing education and the research facilities of the new Sinai will benefit all the people of Baltimore, of all creeds and races.

DR. TEMPLETON'S statement said: — "All of Baltimore, along with the Jewish community, has every right to rejoice in the dedication of the new Sinai Hospital.

"It is a truly significant event in many respects. In addition to increasing the medical facilities in this city, it sets a pattern of non-racial policy, as to admissions and professional employment that the majority of other hospitals would do well to emulate.

"Then, too, it is an outstanding example of minority group self-help.

"My sincere congratulations and gratitude to Sinai."

MR. LEVI, president of the Sinai board said: "My feelings about the new Sinai Hospital are difficult to compress into a few phrases. The new hospital represents so much in terms of individual and community effort and thinking.

"We think we have practiced good medicine at the old Sinai.

"The new building will enable us to do an even better job. We think we have made major efforts in the old buildings towards making Sinai an outstanding teaching and research institution — so important if we are to provide the best possible care for our patients.

"The new buildings will enable us to make further strides in the same direction."

WHAT THE RETIRED DO

Allen Pratt, typical American, loves the TV western shows

By BILL SLATER

Seventy - four - year - old Allen Pratt is a typical American male. He loves TV westerns.

To keep him happy, just give him a television, any size, year, or make, and a few trick and true western programs.

This retired postal worker has no particular favorite western, just any good old "shoot-em-up" will suffice.

Retired as a mail handler after 31 years of service the handsome man said:

"The first thing I do when I get the morning paper is mark off the TV programs I want to watch that day, and I usually stick to my schedule."

SITTING COMFORTABLY in the living room of his home at 1708 W. Franklin St., he added:

"I love 'em all, Wyatt Earp, The Texan, Wells Fargo — I watch TV most nights until 11 p.m. or after.

"It's a means of relaxation for me."

But by no means is Mr. Pratt's taste limited to just westerns, he enjoys other TV programs as well — well, maybe almost as well.

"I like the daytime quiz shows — you know, Big Payoff and those, and I also like Art Linkletter."

He also reads novels during his spare time. What kind of novels?

Why westerns of course.

"I read newspapers and magazines quite a bit also, especially the AFRO. One of my favorite features there is the Retirement Column," Mr. Pratt added.
