ROONEY IS TERRIFIC IN 'BIG OPERATOR'

A hard - hitting, uncompromising drama that might have been lifted directly from today's newspaper headlines is presented in MGM's "The Big Operator," now playing at the Harlem with Mickey Rooney giving a memorable performance in the role of a vicious racketeer who has won control of a labor union.

Also in leading roles in the CinemaScope production are Steve Cochran, Mamie Van Doren, Ray Danton, Mel Torme, Jim Backus, Jackie Coogan, Ray Anthony and Ben Gage.

While the story sweeps a search - light on a hoodlum who, through intimidation, brutality and even murder, has become the czar of a union, the film's makers point out that it is not meant to mirror the entire world of unions, the majority of which are efficiently and honestly run.

Although it is a story of an unscrupulous gangster who hides behind the Fifth Amendment, "The Big Operator" is also the story of the fight upon the part of unions against this insidious element.

Mickey Rooney is seen as Little Joe Braun, a crook who has taken over a union and who, when he comes up before a Senate Investigating Committee, hides behind the Fifth Amendment.

He has made one slip, however, by denying that he has ever met or seen one of his murderous henchmen, Oscar Wetzel (Ray Danton).

But two union members, Bill Gibson (Steve Cochran) and Fred McAfee (Mel Tomre), have seen Little Joe talking to Wetzel and unless they can be persuaded to keep thir mouths shut, Little Joe can be convicted of perjury.

CONTROVERSIAL FILM NOW PLAYING AT MET

The search of Marc Allegret director, for a virle, magnetic man to play the "lover" in "Lady Chatterley's Lover," the new Kingsley International release now playing at the Met Theatre, led him to handsome, athletic Erno Crisa.

In his role opposite co - star Danielle Darrieux, it is the first time that American audiences will see this tall, muscular actor who has attracted wide attention in French and Italian films.

Born in Bizerte of Italian parents, Erno after local schooling went to Paris, where he decided on an acting career.

With his natural athleticism, he took ballet lessons. Later he took lessons in elocution and drama that qualified him for serious acting roles.

However, for publicity he entered the "Best European Athlete" competition and the "World's Best Athlete" contest. He won top position in the first and was runner - up in the second.

Soon he will be seen in "The Gold of Naples," which he made with Sophia Loren.

NEW ALBERT OFFERS TREMENDOUS SHOW

Now at the New Albert Theatre is American International's "Sign Of The Gladiator," which stars Anita Ekberg and such internationally famous stars as Jacque Sernas, George Marshall and Chelo Alonso.

This is the true story of the loves and wars of Zenobia and her lover General Marcus Valerius of the Roman Legion who finally was responsible for the downfall of her mighty empire.

As the historical saying goes, "All is fair in love and war," this is true with the event of these two people.

Marcus Valerius, who gained the confidence of Zenobia, was still loyal to the Roman Empire and subsequently was able to furnish the Romans with enough information that led to the defeat of Zenobia's Armies.

"Sign Of The Gladiator" is in magnificent Colorscope and a magnitude of screen splendor that will amaze you when the charge of 10,000 horsemen clash with the fire - throwing catapults of a pagan empire, and the sultry slave dance will electrify you.

Each of these are just a few of the experiences that you will see in the mighty "Sign Of The Gladiator," a James H. Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff presentation.

THE BLUE ANGEL' NOW AT THE REGENT

Hollywood's prime sex symbol of the year — with all apologies to the blonde Miss May Britt who was cast in the role — is a rickety chair of the bent - wood or beer hall variety.

It is a counterpart of the chair with which Clyde Beatty and other eminent circus lion-tamers fend off angry jungle cats.

Its role with Miss Britt, however, is just the opposite; she uses it in her allurement of a man, one Curt Jurgens. No fending off here.

The picture is Jack Cummings CinemaScope, De Luxe Color production, "The Blue Angel," a Twentieth Century-Fox release now at the Regent Theatre.

The new picture finds May pronounced "My") entering into the chair business with Curt Jurgens as her foil, a bachelor, be - spectacled boy, any professor of middle years.

In the course of which May sings the provocatively first-person "Falling in Love Again" ("men cluster to me like moths around a flame") to the very susceptible Herr Jurgens, who is swooning at it all in a stage box.

Miss Britt reaches her peak in this scene of seduction when she sits astride her chair in reverse, her long, black hose - clad limbs flashing in the glare of footlights, and a come - hither gleam in her eyes.

By this performance, May alone could have done the trick; with the chair as her chief prop, she is utterly irresistible.

TOMANGO
After a two-year successful run in England, Spain and France where it [illegible] office [illegible] the [illegible] record [illegible] Rosch Distribution Corp. The suspenseful drama, starring Dorothy Dandridge, Curt Jurgen and Jean Servais, and introducing Alex Cressan, a native of Martinique, is a double-barrelled story. One theme relates the love of a slave ship captain, Reinker (Jurgen) and a dissolute physician, Dr. Corot (Servais), for a beautiful slave girl Aiche (Dandridge). The other depicts the heroic and tragic high-seas revolt of slaves, led by the lion-killer Tomango (Cressan).
Intense and provocative, Tomango evinces a variety of reactions. It has been called "a welcome ally to the Negroes' fight for civil rights . . . an excellent motion picture that should do a good job for present-day civil liberties . . . a real story, good for integration." Other previewers found the racial issue "too strong," felt the film "too vividly portrays the brutality of the white man" radiates hostility" and "would not create any goodwill."
Many regretted it could not be shown to "all the Faubuses" and in "all sections of every country." Without doubt Tomango stirs the emotions, grips the attention, and will not be among the quickly-forgotten movies.

FIRST TIME "LOVERS" — Danielle Danieax and Erno Crisa are in the main roles of "Lady Chatterly's Lover" which is the first time that D. H. Lawrence's highly controversial love story has ever reached the screen. The new film, a Kingsley International release, produced in France, is now playing at the Met Theatre.

ANDRA MARTIN and Clint Walker in a dramatic scene from The Royal Theatre's Technicolor production, "Yellowstone Kelly." Now playing a second week. Film also stars popular TV personalities Edwards ("Kookie") Byrnes and John ("Lawman") Russell.

'Yellowstone Kelly' held at Royal

For the price of a single admission, fans will be able to see three of TV's biggest stars in the same motion picture — the Royal Theatre's Technicolor production, "Yellowstone Kelly," now playing a second week.

For this epic story of a Mountain Man who tries to save the U.S. Cavalry from slaughter by Sioux Indians and falls in love with a beautiful Indian maiden, Warners has chosen its cast from among its most popular television personalities: Clint Walker, Edward Byrnes and John Russell, all of whom are stars of their own particular series.

Walker, who plays the title role in "Yellowstone Kelly," rose to fame as the star of "Cheyenne," while John Russell has a huge following on the small screens for his portrayal of the quiet, understanding town marshal in "Lawman." Edward Byrnes has won TV stardom as the live talking parking lot attendant in "77 Sunset Strip," and now gets some 3,000 fan letters a week from all over the United States.
