—Gloria will tell

I don't know what to do . . . It's interferring with her studies and its just upsetting her too much. She has no comment. I'm just telling you what's true because I don't know anything myself, I don't know anything and I won't know anything."

Mrs. Key said that she knew Mr. Koplin, the producer who said the shows were rigged but that she never heard him pass on any hints to Miss Lockerman.

HERE IN BALTIMORE, the charges that the two TV programs in question had been labeled as "fixed" contests, did not come as a surprise to at least one observer, who had a front row seat to view some of the backstage activities.

Several years ago the observer reported that on several occasions they had noticed strange activities before the program.

The observer told of contestants being taken in a private office by themselves before the program for long conference which they could not discuss with anyone.

This same observer said that in the case of one contestant the producer would call the juvenile by phone in the middle of the week (the show was aired on Sunday).

"The contestant would receive this call and they would say 'oh how are you doing and do you know such and such a thing'.

"In many cases the same questions turned up on the show. . . That is what I understood to happen.

"Now on the day of the show they have this preliminary spell and we would go down to the studio and on the second floor where they had several offices like a lounge. Then we would sit in an office they gave us.

"Then they would spirit these kiddies off one by one. Sometimes these conferences lasted from half an hour to 45 minutes. . . . It (the conference) was regarded as a confidential thing which they never did discuss," the observer said.

These and other allegations were not made public at the time because, taken by themselves, they lacked weight.

It was not until a former contestant on "21" started talking to the DA in New York, that the story was unfolded.

BALTIMORE'S top quiz show winner, Miss Lockerman, then 12, won $16,000 when she appeared on the original "$64,000 Question" in 1955. She had just won the Maryland spelling championship and was a pupil at Booker T. Washington Junior High School.

An appealing contestant, who had the TV viewers rooting for her all the way, Miss Lockerman was invited on the "$64,000 Challenge" program in 1956 and faced another champion spelling Andy Douglass of Greenwich, Conn.

In a series of dramatic ap-

MOMENT OF TRIUMPH—1956 was the year that Baltimore's Gloria Lockerman and Andy Douglass, Greenwich, Conn., split the $64,000 top prize on the $64,000 Challenge.

ly hanging on the edge of their seats, Miss Lockerman and Andy locked their talents in a do or die match that went all the way to the $64,000 limit.

Then the sponsors of the program announced that since the contestants were shining they would lay aside the rules and give each one of them $32,000.

Miss Lockerman returned to Baltimore with praises ringing in her ears and U. S. Senator John Marshall Butler stood on the floor of the Senate and lauded Miss Lockerman and had inserted in the Congressional Record an editorial which appeared in the AFRO-AMERICAN.

It read in part:

"Win, lose or draw, Gloria, will in reality still be champ."

The secret of the success of the program lay in the tension that it was able to build up week by week.

On the original program, a contestant started with a $64 question with the prize money doubling every time he gave a right answer.

Week after week contestants returned to the program to try to reach the top plateau, and the viewing public loved it.

The "$64,000 Challenge" pitted champions from the original program against challengers, and here too, the interest was high.

THE DRAMA WAS heightened as the contestants once they reached the area of the big money, were taken into sound proof isolation booths where the questions were read to them.

To the background of well chosen music, the camera swept over the audience, showing how people reacted as they waited to see if the contestant knew the answer.

And the contestants themselves, sometimes perspiring, sometimes wringing their hands, and sometimes appearing perplexed, waited for the music to stop and the chance to give their answer.

DURING THE current hearing in Washington a parade of witnesses has told an often amazing and complex story of coaching, rigged questions, phony acting, double crosses and high level conniving all for the sake of higher ratings and more TV viewers.

In addition to the "$64,000 Question" and the "$64,000 Challenge" programs, other TV shows drawn into the hearing have been "21" and "The Dough."

Perhaps the most startling disclosure of all was made on Monday when Charles Van Doren, scion of a distinguished literary family, a professor of English at Columbia University, a TV figure in his own right and the holder of a $50,000 a year job with NBC, admitted that he had been guilty of a deception.

In a dramatic appearance before the committee, Van Doren turned in one of the most literate and graceful performances on record as he admitted that he had been coached on the answers that enabled him to win $129,000 on the "Dough" quiz shows and to catapult him into obscurity into the limelight.

He told the investigators that he had lied when he told a New York grand jury that he had received no help in the contest and he had lied when he repeated these denials to TV viewers and his employers to NBC.

A TV idol, whose boyish charm and apparent intellectual prowess captured the imagination of the viewing public, Van Doren found his career in ruins about him.

NBC FIRED HIM, Columbia terminated his employment and critics heaped abuse on him for lying about the alleged duplicity involved in the program.

In its statement, NBC said: "While we recognize and appreciate Mr. Van Doren's many fine contributions to television in his appearances on the 'Today' program and various educational programs, we do not feel we can have two sets of standards. Those who have knowingly engaged in the fraud of quiz show rigging must be removed from the broadcast scene.

"With deep regret, we have concluded that no exception should be made with Mr. Van Doren."

Hardly had Mr. Van Doren gone through his act of public contrition when Mr. Koplin took to the stand to tell of his alleged role in the hanky panky going on at the $64,000 programs.

Mr. Koplin really took the wraps off, going into rather complete recitals of the techniques he said were used to fix the two shows.

Behind it all, said Mr. Koplin, was the desire to attract as many viewers as possible to the shows which he indicated were run with about the same precisions as an out-and-out dramatic TV presentation.

The "$64,000" Question" was the first of the big money TV quiz shows and set the pattern for the flood of similar shows that soon followed.

Mr. Koplin said the controls exercised over the programs were about 80 per cent effective.

He said that among the methods of control used was a "playback" technique in which the contestant was questioned to find out his area of greater knowledge.

QUESTIONS WERE then framed within the area so that the producers were reasonably sure the contestants would answered correctly on the air.

In many cases, Mr. Koplin said, contestants were given questions in rehearsals which they were later asked on the actual program.

The ex-producer also said that the sponsors of the program decided which contestants should remain on the two shows and which should pay fees at weekly meetings attended by the producers, the sponsors and the advertising agency.

He also said that charts were kept to show the ratings of the shows to a particular contestant.

In the case of two youngsters matched in a spelling bee — they were never identified by name — Mr. Koplin said they were not asked to spell any words on the program that they had not been able to spell in rehearsal.

As far as the gimmick of using a vault in the Manufacturers Trust Co. to contain the questions for the show and the practice of having two armed guards deliver the questions, Mr. Koplin admitted it was a pretty sight but a doubtful value.

He said it offered no security advantages since the producers had seen the questions first and kept copies.

Also joining in with an admission that the "$64,000 Challenge" program was rigged was band leader Xavier Cugat, who quite frankly admitted he went on the show as a publicity stunt and that he was coached all the way as he won $16,000.

—Quads trip delayed

"in no hurry to send them home" and are primarily interested in their remaining healthy.

They describe their condition as "simply grand" and state that they are eating well and growing according to normal standards.

The 30-year-old mother resides with her parents and her other eight children in a two-bedroom home in Annapolis.

Mrs. Graves has been unable to rent a home in Annapolis where she wished to stay since she will be near her mother and an aunt who have offered to aid in caring for the quads when they arrive home.

On Thursday, Mrs. Graves was, however, considering a Baltimore house offered her rent-free for six months by the Manning-Shaw Realty Co.

PLANS HAD BEEN made earlier for Kim Marie's journey home. (She's now over five pounds), however, those plans have been discarded.

Mrs. Graves disclosed that her two-year-old sister, Viola Simms, is confined to the Aspen (Krumdal General) Hospital with pneumonia and her other eight children have slight colds.

The young mother said: "I definitely do not want to bring the quads home now. I am afraid something will happen to them."

Agreeing with the mother, Hopkins officials say that they are prepared to keep the infants since the nursery is not overcrowded.

Mrs. Graves visited the hospital on Tuesday to consult with the social service worker and to be instructed on the feeding and handling of the four infants.

According to nurses, Mrs. Graves is an excellent mother and they are satisfied with the way she feeds and handles Kim Marie, the oldest, who served as the model for the instruction.

MRS. GRAVES told the AFRO: "I looked at the other three babies, but I held Kim Marie for two hours. They told me I could hold her as long as I wanted to.

"She did not cry at all. She took all of her bottle and seemed contented."

Mrs. Graves says, she thinks the three girls and the boy look alike and adds: "I don't know how I'll ever tell them apart.

"They look like my daughter, Vivian. She's four years old and just like the other children. They look like their father."

Mrs. Graves wore a cap, gown and mask on her visit to the nursery. The hospital has identification on each of the quads cribs and their names spelled out in beads which form a bracelet around each child's ankle.

HOPKINS the AFRO learned that Dr. Janet Hardy, pediatrician, who has a study on new born babies, is now studying the Graves quads.

The spokesman said that the Meade-Johnson Co., Glen Arm, Md., will supply the quads with vitamins and a milk formula for a period of six months or more.

The milk, a new formula, the company says, seems to be the closest to a mother's milk and they will see that the quads' order is filled through Dr. Hardy.

The quads will begin to take the milk and vitamins before they leave the hospital.

They are now on the high protein formula and receive two ounces every four hours.

They receive daily baths in water and surgical soap each morning. At each feeding they are rocked by nurses seated in rocking chairs.

NURSES DESCRIBE them as "the dearest" and say they are "bright as dollars" and add "we'd love to keep them as long as they can stay."

On Thursday, the quads 26th day, they tipped the scales (listed in order of their birth) at the following weights:

Kim Marie — 5 pounds, 2 ounces
Karen May — 4 pounds, 4½ ounces
Kevin Mark — (boy) 4 pounds, 4½ ounces
Katherine Mary — 4 pounds, 5 ounces from families for whom Jim's mother worked as a maid.

When he enrolled at Syracuse, he did so without the benefit of an athletic scholarship. His entire freshman year was paid for by hometown sponsors who had more faith in his ability than did the school athletic officials.

The following season, however, coaches of the Orange's athletic teams hastened to rectify their mistakes. They took him under wing and never regretted it.

Four years later, he was senior class marshal, All American in two sports and a holder of ten varsity letters.

Six years later, he was making opposing teams in the NFL, The Colts included — wish he had followed his big love: lacrosse.

(Eddie) Mathews and (Lew) Burdette.

"These are wonderful fellows, and you can't help being surprised when you get nodded over them. I may not agree, even though I know I had a good year.

I'M LUCKY. I have to be lucky. Not only because I could put two good years together, but because I have a fine boss and so many well wishers among my teammates. "Mr. (P. K.) Wrigley has been swell to me. So was Bob Scheffing, last year's manager. Chicago's a great town and I love it here."

Does Banks regret that the Cubs have been a second division team for so long, and don't appear likely to better that status?

"You're thinking of a chance to play in the World Series. I'd like very much to play in a Series, but this team, the Cubs, is good enough for me. I can wait. Who knows but what we may make it some day?

"The (Los Angeles) Dodgers did it last year. They were seventh in 1958. Remember that."

ERNIE, on Wednesday, became the first player in National League history to win the MVP honor two years in succession.

Last year, he had been the second man in history to gain the distinction while playing with a second division club. Hank Sauer, also of the Cubs, was voted the award in 1952.

Ernie was voted into the award over Mathews and Aaron, both of the Milwaukee Braves. His total was 232½ points in the voting, conducted by the Baseball Writers committee.

Mathews drew 189½ points, while Aaron, winner in 1957, picked up 174 points.

BANKS LED both leagues in runs batted in, with a whopping 143. He had 45 home-runs and hit for a .304 average.

In addition, he wiped out a 17-year-old fielding mark for shortstops. He handled 882 chances and made only 12 errors for a .985 average.

That he had the full backing of his bosses was made clear a month ago, when Scheffing declared: "Anybody who picks someone other than Banks for the MVP, should have his head examined."

Owner Phil Wrigley gave similar testimony when he said shortly after the World Series: "There is no need for any club to try to deal with me for Ernie Banks. He has no price tag; he is not available."

Couple wins $6,000 award

Mrs. Julia Richardson and her husband were awarded a verdict of $6,000 against the G.I. Veteran's Taxicab Association and Jammie Cherry by a jury on Thursday, after being out almost two hours.

The Richardsons (she's a public school teacher and he a Center Director for the Department of Recreation) had filed suit as the result of an accident which occurred on October 20, 1957 in the 1400 block of Edmondson Ave., when a taxicab sideswiped another parked car and ran into the rear of their car which was also parked.

Mrs. Richardson was awarded $5,415.00 for loss of time from work in hospital and doctor's expenses as well as medicine.

Her husband was awarded $585.00 for loss of services of his wife and damage to his automobile.

They were represented by Arthur G. Murphy of the law firm of Williams and Murphy.

Husband asks 100 G's in death of his wife

WASHINGTON

Luther Creighton, unit block K St., NE, filed a $100,000 damages suit in District Court Tuesday, alleging the wrongful death of his wife, Mrs. Lula Mae Creighton.

Mrs. Creighton, mother of five children, died of injuries suffered when a falling but stop sign struck her in the head as she stood waiting for a streetcar on October 14.

ACCORDING TO the petition filed by Franklyn Yasmer and Stanely First, attorneys, the sign broke after a car crashed into it driven by Jack W. Harville, white, of Kensington, Md. Mr. Harveille was named defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Creighton sustained a fractured skull as the result of the incident which occurred while she was on a sidewalk on North Capitol St.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain
New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.
In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.
Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.
And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!
In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 30 years' standing.
All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.
This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form, called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

accused of having dragged a pregnant white matron from a stalled car on a deserted country road last February and having raped her as her five-year-old daughter watched.

Parker, 25, denied the crime, but was picked out of a lineup by the attack victim.

TWO DAYS before he was slated to have faced trial before Circuit Judge Sobe Dale a screaming and praying Parker was beaten in his cell at the Poplarville Jail, then dragged by the heels down a flight of iron steps and forced into a car which drove off into the night.

Five other colored prisoners said that his abductors were members of a mob of 25 hooded and white-gloved men whose leaders appeared to know just where the jail keys were kept and which cell was Parker's.

The FBI was called into the case, and nine days later Parker's body, with two bullet holes in it, was dragged from the Pearl River at the Louisiana border.

FOR A month, more than 60 FBI agents conducted an investigation of the case, then withdrew when it appeared that there had been no violation of Federal law.

Behind them they left a 378 page report which listed more than a score of men whom the FBI agents had considered as suspects.

This report was available to the grand jury when it was convened on Monday.

In his charge to the jury Judge Dale declared:

"We of this county and state face the duty of maintaining our precious rights and liberties. . . and we should have the backbone to stand against any tyranny, whether of so-called individual willing to sell our birthright for a mess of political pottage on the national level or the reformers that would make us over."

He said the "tyranny" included the United States Supreme Court, which he described as a "board of sociology sitting in Washington, clothed in judicial robes."

He concluded: "The welfare of the people of our county and state demand that we have no part in the efforts to destroy our individual rights and sovereignty.

"We must never forget that we are a free people of a sovereign state, and that the welfare of our people is the supreme law."

The grand jury met in secret. None of the 60-odd Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who took part in the long and intensive investigation of the case were called.

There was no statement of whether the FBI report was considered.

NAACP to present noted artist at African art show

Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, president of the Baltimore NAACP, announced Wednesday that the Sunday, Nov. 15, monthly membership meeting of the NAACP branch is scheduled to be the most unusual program presented in recent years.

The meeting is set for 3 p.m. at the Sharp Street Methodist Church, Dolphin and Eutaw Sts. The public is invited to attend.

The goal of 15,000 new members is expected to be reached by the Nov. 15 meeting.

Main speaker for the occasion is the noted young dramatist and orator, James Ira De Leche, New York, who will give a musical lecture on highlights of the history of his race.

Mr. DeLoche is an artist of note whose paintings of historical figures are well known on the East Coast.

A recent exhibition in New York won acclaim from art critics and his oils were highly commended by Dr. Eich Bernard Wolf of the Free University of Berlin, Germany.

Mr. DeLoch also has paintings in the Duke Ellington collection, Sierra Leone, Africa, and the Hope Stevens collection in New York.

His most recent portrait is of His Grace, Abuna Theopolis, Arch-Bishop of the Ethiopian Orthodox Church, the Diocese of Harar, Ethiopia, done when the churchman was on official visit to the United States.

A graduate of Howard University and a fellow at the Peter Cooper Union for the Advancement of Arts and Sciences, Mr. DeLoche studied under a grant through the Library of Congress.

Mr. DeLoche will exhibit objects from an African art collection as well as many of his portraits at the NAACP meeting.

ALSO SCHEDULED to appear are the 18 - year - old Tubman twins, Misses Ardena and Arsenth Tubman, formerly of Cambridge, Md., who are now student nurses in New York and reside with their aunt.

The Tubman girls are direct descendants of the famed Harriett Tubman, "Moses of her people," who was a leader in the Underground Railroad involving slave escapees.

Invited to sing are the A Capella choir of Douglass High School under the direction of Mrs. Marian Smith and the C F. Harper Choir of the St. Paul Methodist Church.

The Booker T. Washington High School Band is also scheduled for the program and is under the direction of Prentis Nolan.

Dr. Jackson announces that the 3 p.m. meeting will include brief membership reports from each of the Legal Redress Committee's progress will be given by attorneys Tucker Deanna, Archie Williams and Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell.

Mrs. Dorothea Merchant, campaign director, will preside. Captains of the various membership groups will assist.

DR. JACKSON also announces that Baltimore Branch NAACP now has 63 fully paid $500 life memberships, two of them having been completed this year.

There are also 71 partially paid life memberships with 13 partially paid new subscribers this year.

The campaign now in progress has been extended through Nov. 30 and has a goal of 100 life memberships. All partially paid life members are encouraged to pay in full so that the goal may be reached.

The NAACP office, located at 1234 Druid Hill Ave., is open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Campaign workers, Mrs. Jackson announces, are urged to get in their reports during the month of November. Award night is Friday, Nov. 6, when gifts from merchants will be given to those workers making the highest reports for the Oct. 1 to Oct. 31 period.

A full report will be given at the mass meeting on Nov. 15.

Miss Nettie S. White, not guilty of murder

In a brief trial Wednesday, a woman charged with slaying Mrs. Pearl Simms, 33, 1600 block Argyle Ave. on Aug. 29, was dismissed in Criminal Court.

Charged in connection with the death, Miss Nettie Sally White, 35, 1300 block N. Strickler St., sat in court, clutching her gray coat over a bright green dress.

The heavy - set woman listened intently — with her eyes either on Judge Joseph Allen or her attorney, Carl A. Durkee as they discussed the aspects of the case for the court.

Her attorney agreed to a statement of facts submitted to the court by assistant State's attorney Russell J. White, who handled the case.

IT WAS agreed by the State and the defense that at about 7:30 p.m. Aug. 29, lying in her first floor flat in the rear of the 1600 block Argyle Ave., apparently dead.

That she was pronounced dead at Provident Hospital; and that the defendant called Western District police under the assumption that they were looking for her.

According to a statement Miss White gave police soon afterwards she surrendered herself to them, she was visiting in a home in the 1600 block Argyle Ave., when Mrs. Simms entered.

The defendant claimed the dead woman cursed her, pushed her into the street, and threatened her with a baseball bat also (Mrs. Simms) carried.

Dr. Werner Fitz, a medical investigator of the Medical Examiner's office, testified before the court that Mrs. Simms' death had been caused by a blunt force.

HE ALSO said the woman suffered several hemorrhages about the left side of her face and skull, but refused to say these could have been caused by the force.

One witness, Hamilton Carter, who at the time of the alleged slaying, lived two blocks away from the scene in the 1300 block Stockton St., said he saw Mrs. Simms come into a bar carrying the bat.

He said he left Mrs. Simms and went into Lafayette Market.

"As he left the market, he testified, "I saw this crowd of people standing over near Pearl's house. . . I saw Nettie walking on Pearl."

"Pearl was lying on the ground and Nettie just walked on her, and another fellow pulled her (Mrs. White) down the street," the witness said.

The case was thrown out because there was no testimony to indicate the defendant had walked on the woman's head, and Dr. Fitz had testified that she died of blows that had been inflicted to her head and skull and these may have resulted from her fall to the ground.

Mr. Carter and Dr. Fitz were the only two witnesses called.

defendant assaulted them during a questioning session.

A writ of habeas corpus was refused by the defendant, who asked the court for release on grounds that he had been beaten.

The officers who charged he assaulted them said the defendant became unruly during questioning and had to be subdued.

Hubby held in wounding of 23-year-old man

A 20-year-old U.S. Marine stood before Magistrate Gerald Siegel in Northwestern Police Court Monday afternoon, charged with stabbing a man.

The military man, William Eugene Thomas, 1800 block Ashburton St., was released under $500 bail for a hearing at 4 p.m. November 16.

The postponement came because the victim, Herman Harris, 23, 2100 block Cliftwood Ave., was hospitalized, and unable to appear in court, Magistrate Siegel was told.

Events in the case, occurred in this fashion, according to investigating police reports:

Mr. Harris was stabbed in the back by an assailant unknown to him, as he was walking in the 2300 block W. North Ave. shortly after 1 a.m. on October 11.

HE MADE his way to a Fire Department station at North Ave. and Ellamont St., where an ambulance carried him to Latheran Hospital for treatment of threestab wounds in his back and one in his left arm.

Later, the Marine was surrendered to police by Sgt. Earl Schmidt, another Marine at a recruiting station, Chesley and Hamlet Aves.

The Marine, according to Sgt. Waldemar S. Bradshaw and Patrolman Ronald Eberly, said he had come home on leave October 2, and that on October 7 his wife, Mrs. Patricia Thomas, passed on certain information to him and the stabbing followed.

Hounshell to enter his plea

Harold Lee Hounshell, 22, 1600 block E. Oliver St., is scheduled to appear in Criminal Court today (Friday) to plead guilty or not guilty to a murder charges and three charges of assault.

The murder involved the Sept. 27 slaying of Mrs. Delores Mosby Chambers, 23, 1400 block N. Eden St., who was found dead on an East Baltimore parking lot.

The assault charges involve three police officers, George Schnabel, Anthony Glover and Clarence Ray, who claimed the Health Department halts free vaccines to medics, hospitals

Because of a shortage of funds the City Health Department is no longer supplying physicians and hospitals with free biologicals — except for smallpox vaccine.

DR. Huntington Williams, commissioner of health, notified the hospitals and physicians in early August of the change. It became effective Sept. 1.

Of the biologicals no longer made available on a free basis, the most used is triple antigen, used to protect babies against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

OTHERS ARE diphtheria toxoid, diphtheria and tetanus toxoids, tetanus antitoxin, tetanus toxoid and typhoid - paratyphoid vaccine.

Two others, normal horse serum and normal rabbit serum, are used as test solutions.

Another, poliomyelitis vaccine, was previously made available free to hospitals but not to physicians.

DR. ROBERT E. FARSER, director of the department's bureau of communicable diseases, estimates that "approximately $3,000" will be saved during the four months the program is definitely discontinued.

Whether it will be resumed to any extent next year, depends upon the amount of money the department gets, Dr. Farber said.

He said the dropping of the free services is not considered an unusual step, and that even if money is available next year the department may not resume free biologicals to physicians.

It would be continued with the hospitals, Dr. Farber said. He estimated the cost of a single dose of either of the biologicals at from 3 to 5 cents.

JUST WHAT effect the cut-off of service will have on the community the department will not be able toteli until later surveys are made.

From the outset the program was developed to encourage people to see that their babies received the shots, especially against diphtheria, Dr. Farber pointed out.

He said the counties are still providing the free biologicals, however, he noted that some areas have never had such a program.

Dr. Farber also pointed out that anyone can still get free shots in the six district health centers in Baltimore and the numerous well - baby clinics.

BECAUSE THE biologicals are purchased in certain bulk amounts and have a limited use period once opened, it will probably result in some physicians not having some of the biologicals in stock at certain times.

Previously they could just pick it up from the health department when their supply ran low or was exhausted.

In announcing the cut back, Dr. Williams said that he had been forced "for the first time on record" to go to the Board of Estimates for supplemental appropriations to carry on the department's work until Dec. 31.

He called the free biological cut-off "part of a large series of retrenchments in Health Department work and expenses."
