They call me a book, but I'm really your friend.

I can tell you many things, if you'll let me come in.

FLORENCE E. LONG

This is National Book Week. How wonderful when young and old alike discover the pleasures and satisfactions to be gained from reading good literature.

This discovery is always a personal one, made by the reader himself in terms of his own needs and interests.

Through the varied experiences provided in books, comes to understand his needs more clearly and learns to satisfy them more wisely.

New interests are developed as one journeys into other lands and meets people who have explored the world around them or dedicated their lives to making it a better place.

Have you noticed what books have been read in your home lately? Where's your library card? When's the last time you read a good book?

DID YOU KNOW that Bannker School library has been enlarged?

You should see how many students take advantage of its facilities! It's amazing to see how even the little tots know their way around the library!

A tea, in honor of Book Week, was held Thursday, in the library. Guests were class librarians, grades one through nine.

Bannneker librarian is Miss Florence E. Long. Assisting Miss Long are Warena Davis and Carla Glover, seventh and ninth grade pupils respectively.

Bannneker School Student Council has culminated its one big project of the school year. The council members sold four types of candy in beautiful canisters, gifts, novelties and Christmas Cards. The funds raised will support Student's Day.

On Student's Day awards are presented to deserving students. Children who have made the Honor Roll every marking period are honored at a special luncheon. The Student Council sponsors the program and the luncheon.

The members of the Student Council and their sponsor, Mrs. Cwendolyn T. Faggett, want to thank the entire community of Catonsville for their support.

Officers of the Council are, Joan Hall, president, Lenora Henson, vice president; Cheryl Dorsey, secretary, and Linda Brooks, treasurer.

IF THE neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. William Dorsey heard strange noises filling the air Halloween night, it was only the mirthful chatter and laughter of guests attending their daughter's Cheryl, barn dance party.

The Dorseys entertained over 30 kids garbed in dungarees and bright colored shirts. My three little reporters described the party as follows:

"There was something for everybody. Games . . . dance contests — prizes — and the food!!! Hot dogs, and hamburgers, all sorts of relishes, etc. to go on them, potato salad, punch, candy — everything even bubble gum.

"Cheryl Riley and Phyllis Randall won first prize in the dance contest. Sonia Hardy and Charles Crawford won first prize in the Freeze contest. Second and third prizes for each contest were also given."

Guests were: Patricia Dorsey, Dorothy Cooper, Beverly Henson, Helen Taylor, April Richardson, Perrycetta Williams, Aslean Cole, Jeanette Brown, Virginia, Jennifer Burton, Leah Allen, Sonia Hardy, Beverly Henson, Vanessa Westcott, Sandra Brown and Margret Cooper.

Also, Henry Temple, Larry Smith, Charles Crawford, Charles Smith, Charles Greene, Charles Riley Jr. Perry Williams, Anthony Bacon, Theodore Beacote James Ragler, Alvin Williams, Waynes Randall, Ralph Carter, Samuel Gaines, Ira Williams, William Rideout, Nathaniel Parham.

Judges for the contests were Mrs. Beulah Westcott and Cheryl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey. Mrs. Dorsey is a Baltimore City speech teacher. Mr. Riley is a postal employee.

TOWSON SINCE WRITING this column, I have met so many lovely people. And believe it or not, many of these new friends have been met by phone. Many I wouldn't know if I saw them. But the sound of their voice would enable me to call them by name.

One such newly made acquaintance is Mrs. Mary Wilson, 604 E. Pennsylvania Ave. Towson.

Mrs. Wilson is a member of St. James AUMP Church and very active in all its activities.

I want to thank Mrs. Wilson and all who have invited me to attend the many things that are being presented. It is impossible for me to attend them all but I will whenever possible.

St. James AUMP Church in Towson celebrated its 50th Church Anniversary recently. To commemorate the close of their anniversary activities, the Church was host at an elaborate program and reception held, Monday, Oct. 26. General chairman for the reception was Mrs. Virginia Augins.

A very moving spiritual program was given in the main auditorium by some of the most outstanding talent in the locality. Presented were Mrs. Sylvia Foote, Mrs. Hattie Hawkins and the Gospel Choir of St. James Church. Chairman of the program committee was Mrs. Hattie Gross.

Immediately following the program, the guests were ushered into the dining room by John Romans. The committee in charge of the dinning room could well be proud of their beautiful tables and unique arrangement of colorful fall flowers.

Receiving compliments for their handiwork were Mrs. Bessie Young, Virginia Frazier, Zelma Garner, also Benjamin Wilson, James Hall, Mr. Hall was chairman of the group.

Hearts and minds were rejuvenated as various ministers extended greetings, then recalled great chapters in the church's history, past and present.

The leadership of the church's dynamic pastor, the Rev. Edward H. McNair was extolled continuously. And rightfully so. St. James has made much progress during his tenure there.

While dignitaries were praising the church's progress and reviewing its history, a fabulous dinner was being served.

The menu consisted of roast turkey, dressing, giblet gravey, mashed potatoes, peas, sourkrast, ice cream and cake.

Culinary honors go to Frank K. Auging. The kitchen was under the supervision of Mrs. Virginia Augins who was assisted by a very fine staff of young people including several of her lovely daughters, and Frank Augins, her son.

Guests of honor were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Edward McNair.

Other honored guests were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. White, E. C. Pryor, the Rev. Mrs. Anita Diggs, M. B. Robinson, Emma J. Swan, Marietta Stewart and Rose Ann Braxton, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Also, the Rev. Vernon Sewell, H. R. Smith, J. S. Brown, Wilbert Watson and W. D. Leighton.

The choir No. 2 of St. James AUMP Church, Towson, will celebrate its fifth anniversary, Tuesday, Nov. 10 at 8 p.m.

Forty choirs are expected. James W. Hall is president of Choir No. 2.

AS WE circled the county, so did little Geneva Baker, 3rd grade student at St. Edward School, PopularGrove and Lafayette Ave.

When her father Barnard, and grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Harden, came up from Staunton, Va. to help her celebrate her eighth birthday, they asked her what was one of the things she'd like to do.

"I want to go round it Baltimore County sure is big.

And that dear friends is what the chamber of commerce emphasizes. We're big, and growing bigger. One reason is the many things that are being presented. It is impossible for me to attend them all but I will whenever possible.
