New no-cost fund to help the quads

Starting today, there's a new, easy, no-cost way to help the Graves Quads.

Without giving a single penny now help the quads get any needed merchandise sold in this country.

The new project is the Graves Quads AFRO-PALMA Fund.

It is being co - sponsored by the AFRO and the Pennsylvania Avenue Lafayette Market Association. PALMA is made up of merchants in the 1700-1800 blocks of Pennsylvania Ave.

THIS IS HOW the quads will be helped through the fund:

Shoppers in PALMA stores will send their World Green Stamps to the AFRO where they will be counted. Then PALMA merchants will match the total turned in with additional stamps.

With the PALMA World Green Stamps the quads' mother, Mrs. Lorraine Graves of Annapolis, can redeem them for whatever they need from the redemption center.

Furthermore, Herman Katkow, president of the merchan association says that when the mother needs something not available in the redemption center, PALMA will use the stamps to get it for her.

Only the PALMA World Green Stamps can be accepted for the fund.

They should be sent to: The Graves Quads AFRO-PALMA Fund, 28 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore 1, Md.

The fund will continue as long as the public indicates an interest in supporting it.

MEANWHILE, those persons who prefer to contribute in cash, may give through the AFRO Graves Quads Fund, City Desk, AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers, 628 N. Eutaw St.

Born in Baltimore at famed Johns Hopkins Hospital on Oct. 10, the quads, Kim Marie, Karen Mae, Kevin Mark and Katherine Marie, are approaching the five pound mark and will soon be going home.

Mrs. Graves, deserted by her husband, has eight other children. The family is on welfare.

Currently she is residing with her parents but physicians are hopeful she will be able to get her own apartment before long.

All the things which she will need in homemaking will be available to her through the Graves Quads AFRO-PALMA Fund.

Would-be cop delayed for job by arrest

"This man held me up for ten minutes after my papers were ready, making me late for a 10 o'clock interview for a job!"

Levi Cox Jr., 23, 1300 block W. Lexington St., made this loud complaint in Western Police Court Tuesday morning, pointing to the turnkey on duty handling the prisoners, Officer Joseph Levin.

Cox, given a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on probation on a disturbing the peace charge, had just been returned to court from the cellblock where he had been held, while the probation papers were being prepared.

"Where," Magistrate Douglas asked with concern, after explaining that an error in the papers had caused the delay, "are you to go for your job interview?"

"The police department," the young man replied. "I have an application to be a policeman."

$1,417 loss reported at Carrollton Hi

A burglar, or burglars, stole two record players, two movie sound projectors, a tape recorder and a TV set, all valued at $1,417, from the Carrollton Junior High School, Carrollton and Lafayette Aves., either Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Milton P. Bronson, the principal, told Western District police the culprits apparently climbed an adjoining fire escape then crossed to the school's first floor roof, and then broke a window and entered.

Patrolman James Custis, however, discovered that a door on the north side of the school had a broken chain guard, with the chain stuck in the door to keep it from closing, and locking.

Inside the door, police said these articles were found, as if they had been left by the intruders.

Two typewriters, an adding machine, a toaster, two sheets, a blanket and an assortment of records.

At the first floor level, two more typewriters, two record players, a movie screen and a cased musical instrument were found, police reported.

No arrests had been made at AFRO press time.

Sands, new head, starts 16th at Interracial Commission

"I do think the work with the commission will be stimulating, and my ambition is that it will be productive."

Douglas B. Sands, 25, the new executive secretary of Maryland's Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, had this to say about his new job this week.

He is to take over the new position on November 16.

Mr. Sands is currently winding up his affairs at the Department of Public Welfare, where he has been employed as a case worker since December of last year.

The appointment of a new executive secretary came through Gov. J. Millard Tawes' office this week, seven months after the resignation in March of Samuel T. Daniels.

Mr. Sands told the AFRO he learned of the vacancy through the placement officer at Morgan State College, and was given a recommendation by an acquaintance.

He is a June 4, 1956, graduate of Morgan, with an A.B. degree in Political Science. He stood 11th in a class of 221 graduates.

He was president of his Junior Class, the Student Council, and a member of the Glee and Wesleyan Clubs.

Mr. Sands left Morgan with a second lieutenant commission and entered the army. He serving two years with a Nike Ajax unit in California. He was discharged with a first lieutenant commission.

He is a native of Cooksville, Md. and was valedictorian of his class at Tubman High School there.

He is married to the former Miss Joyce Cimmy of this city. The couple has a two - year-old daughter, and live at 341 Suter Rd. in Catonsville.

Mrs. Sands is a substitute school teacher.

* * *

THE APPOINTMENT of Mr. Sands ends a long search for a successor to Mr. Daniels, who is in the public relations department of a local brewery.

DOUGLAS SANDS

The commission, some weeks ago, recommended a blonde woman applicant, but Gov. Tawes rejected the selection.

Reports are that he took this action because it was felt in several quarters that such a person, though qualified, would not handle the job quite as effectively as a colored person who will be benefited by favorable results.

The vacancy drew few applicants, largely because an act of the General Assembly this year removed the position from under the state merit system and made it a political appointive post under the governor.

This move, sponsored by Senator J. Alvin Jones, Fourth District, also stripped the post of security and fringe benefits.

IN DIVORCE COURT

The Harold Seabornes end their marriage

Mrs. Mildred Seaborne of 2553 Madison Ave., vice principal in city schools, has been given a divorce from Harold A. Seaborne, also a vice principal, on grounds of voluntary separation.

The couple, married in 1940, separated in 1956, the wife said adding that they had agreed to end the marriage prior to that time.

"He failed in many instances to take care of his obligations at home. We argued frequently, so we agreed to separate," she said.

They agreed to separate

Mr. Seaborne's address was given as 3310 Windsor Ave. He is vice principal of Booker T Washington Junior High No. 130. Mrs. Seaborne is the former Mildred Jones. She is vice principal of Dungar High School.

TWO OTHER couples were divorced on the same grounds:

Mrs. Blancha R. Murray of 1919 Hope St., was granted a divorce from Walter A. Murray of 829 W. North Ave.

Married on April 3, 1950, separated on Nov. 30, 1953, Mrs. Murray said "We couldn't agree, so we agreed to separate". She was given custody of their son, Joe II.

* * *

PRACTICALLY THE same testimony was given by Charles Womack of 2304 Garrison Blvd., who divorced Mrs. Leola Womack of 314 N. Hilton St.

Mrs. Womack will have custody of their two sons and the father will provide $17.50 per week for the boys' support.

The Womacks were married August 10, 1937. They separated August 6, 1953, he testified.

SINCE MY WIFE separated from me she went to live at 1520 Hollins St. with a Leroy Bilbo. I went there eight times to try to talk to her but Bilbo told me to mind my own business," said James Robinson.

Mr. Robinson, who lived in Glen Burnie, Md., divorced the wife, Mrs. Alma D. Robinson. They were married on June 4, 1955 and separated on Feb. 7, 1958, he said.

His testimony as to Mrs. Robinson being at the Hollins Street address was repeated by Vernon Phillips, private investigator, who said that he was employed to follow the couple.

MRS. LUVENIA FIELDS of 1801 N. Broadway testified that she lost her husband, Townsend, to another woman.

She said that she discovered her husband with the woman.

"There was a fight. He stayed with me for a week or two and then he packed his clothes and, with the woman, went away", said she.

Hearing set on Welfare Dept. residence plan

A public hearing on a resolution requesting a study of residence requirements for Department of Public Welfare assistance is scheduled for 2 p.m. Monday before the City Council's Judiciary Committee, council chambers, third floor, City Hall.

The resolution asks the study with the objective of raising from one to two years the period of residence that would be required for receiving such assistance.

Several councilmen have long been critical of the Welfare Department's operations, and close observers feel the resolution will win council favor.

This is especially true, some councilmen have stated, in view of the administration's current economy steps toward finding new revenue for the city's 1960 budget.

Canned heat too much for roomer

Joseph Williams, 35, of 203 N. Wolfe St., will think twice in the future before starting a fire in his home.

In an effort to heat his second - floor room Wednesday morning, Mr. Williams started a fire in a can, placed it in a false fire place and sat back to enjoy the warmth, firemen say.

Soon excess heat from the can set fire to the floor and started burning through the roof of the apartment below.

Firemen were at the scene for almost two hours.

Susan fights second attack with courage

Susan King, 2317 Poplar Grove St., a Bare Elementary School No. 301 pupil who was stricken a second time with a brain ailment last week, is reported much improved at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Halstead Clinic.

She has been confined there since Saturday.

Once again, the courageous nine - year old girl is beginning a difficult fight to survive and according to her mother, is showing remarkable improvement.

Susan was first taken ill when the tumor appeared on the left side of her head in 1953 when she was two and a half years old.

Although physicians gave the child only five weeks to live and termed the condition incurable, Susan overcame the illness and entered school when she was six years old.

* * *

HER PROGRESS was reported as good throughout school terms from 1956 through Friday, Oct. 23, her last day at school.

She was stricken on Saturday, Oct. 24 and fell to the floor unable to walk.

The following week, her mother, Mrs. Doris King, told the AFRO that Susan remained listless and she feared she was growing weaker. She was not only inactive but also unable to attend to personal needs.

However, Mrs. King told the AFRO Thursday that Susan is now out of bed, in a wheel chair and nurses are helping her to walk around the room for brief periods.

Insurance firm robbed of $130

"I have a pistol pointed at you. Put all of your coats out fast. Act natural and no one will get hurt. Thank you."

A poor tall soft - spoken bandit walked up to the cashier's window at the N.C. Mutual Life Insurance Co. at 12:14 p.m. Thursday and shoved the above note through the window to Mrs. Connie Stokes of the 2800 block E. Federal St.

Mrs. Stokes, who later said she saw no gun, took no chances and handed over about $130, all of the money she had in her cash drawer.

The bandit, who was dressed in a grey suit and wore a grey felt hat, seized the money, and moved swiftly out of the office as Mrs. Stokes screamed an alarm.

Witnesses told police they saw the man run east on Lanvale St. and disappear as he turned north on Druid Hill Ave.

Frank Walker, manager of the office, the West Baltimore branch of the company, said it was the first time it had ever been robbed.

Veteran cop tried on 2 counts

Police Inspector Clarence O. Forrester is scheduled to hear the verdict on charge of malfeasance

Criminal Court Judge Edwin Harlan will hand down the verdict against the 55-year-old veteran of 26 years with the police department at noon today (Friday).

Troubles for the gray-haired police officer began in 1957 when the Criminal Justice Commission began an investigation of police immorality complaints.

He and his chief lieutenant, Acting Capt. Hyman Goldstein were suspended when they refused to appear at State Police headquarters.

During the five-day trial headed by Judge Harlan without a jury, a parade of witnesses linked the suspended officer with a young woman identified as a prostitute.

The woman, who admitted being intimate with the officer when she was 22 years old, said Forrester and Goldstein offered "to help her" during a trial in which she was convicted of prostitution. She drew a suspended two-year sentence.

She unblushingly told the court of being intimate with both, also a cab fleet owner also charged in the case, Albert Weinstein. Forrester said he helped the young woman bcause he wanted to see her "make good."

Forrester sought to set the woman out as an informer for police as reason for his frequent contact with her.

At one point in his testimony he claimed that at times the woman had been followed by three never - identified colored men.

'You'll be sorry you did that...'

"I'll be back, you'll be sorry you did that."

Alex Smith, 600 block of George St. told Magistrate Calvin A. Douglass he was given this warning, minutes before Wilbert Lounds returned to a bar in the vicinity of Franklin and Pine Sts., and threw a can of lye into his face.

Magistrate Douglass sentenced Mr. Lounds to 18 months in the House of Correction for assault and three months for possessing a dangerous deadly weapon.

The lye-throwing altercation occurred after the two had gotten into an argument in the tavern, police said.

Judge gives warning in knife cases

"I am not going to have this cutting in this area... this child could have been killed."

Magistrate Calvin A. Douglass was speaking in Western Police Court Tuesday morning to John D. Mays, 49, 1100 block Brewer St., prior to sentencing him to 60 days in jail for cutting his matron friend and her 17-month-old grandchild.

The matron, Mrs. Thelma Mack, 42, same address, and Mr. Mays entered the house 9:30 p.m. Sunday, and started arguing with her, cutting her hand.

Her daughter, Mrs. Alma Sykes, 17, with the child in her arms, tried to quell the disturbance.

The man slashed at her with the knife, cutting the child, instead, slightly on a shoulder, according to testimony.

"Your Honor," Mr. Mays said in his defense, "I just don't know what happened."

Twins born to eastside mother

Mrs. Margaret White, 34, 2115 E. Eager St., lost a race with the stork Wednesday morning.

Before an ambulance could be summoned she gave birth to twins, a boy and a girl.

The new additions increased the White family to eight.

From St. Joseph's Hospital, it was reported that both mother and twins were resting well.

Mrs. White's call for assistance was answered by Patrolmen James B. Grassin and Richard Newman of the Eastern District at 1:04 a.m.

Which goes to prove things are not always what they seem to be Worried about the strange smell in her third floor apartment at 1226 Druid Hill Ave., Mrs. Mary Perry, a housewife, called the Gas and Electric Co. Wednesday to report what she thought was escaping gas.

A fire engine and a police car were dispatched to the scene.

Firemen entered the house, where they found no fire but two burning suphur candles, in the first floor apartment of Robert Bonda.

MYSTERY SOLVED!

Nancy Was Slain

Abandon suicide theory; husband arrested at funeral home

One phase of the mystery death Saturday of a pretty, 21 year - old matron has been cleared.

The young mother, Mrs. Nancy Rawlings, did not take her own life.

Police said this fact was established in the early stages of their investigation, by the absence of particles of powder on either of her hands.

It had been believed at first that she took her own life.

Phase Two of the mystery—who, then, killed her?— still remains to be cleared.

However, police investigating the case have arrested the young matron's husband, Lawrence E. Rawlings, 21, and charged him with her murder.

Mr. Rawlings, an employee of an auto agency, was formally charged and arraigned Tuesday afternoon before Chief Magistrate Joseph Kolodny in Central Police Court.

Date of a Homicide Court hearing is still unscheduled.

* * *

MR. RAWLINGS first told investigating police and the AFRO he found his wife lying on the kitchen floor of their first floor apartment at 1025 Kennedy Ave. shortly after 5 p.m. Saturday.

He said at the time that Mrs. Rawlings had a revolver in her right hand and was bleeding from a bullet wound in her head.

He told the AFRO that he had hurried home from work, in response to a telephone call from his wife who said she wanted to go to the market early, and found their 18-month - son, Lawrence Jr., seated on the floor beside his dying mother.

The young husband said he had just talked with his wife by phone about 15 minutes prior to the discovery of her body.

Colt dissension tales unfounded

By SAM LACY
AFRO Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Complete harmony exists on the Baltimore Colts.

Claude (Buddy) Young, scout and chief troubleshooter for the defending world champions gave this assurance to the AFRO here Wednesday night.

Young was here to participate in a panel discussion on the overall progress of colored athletes in the world of sports. He was one of several sports figures invited to the conference held Wednesday at the Hotel Biltmore.

The former star halfback of the Colts admitted, however, that he came to New York a day earlier, flying here from Baltimore with Colts owner, Carroll Rosenbloom.

"Rumors of dissension have been flying thick and fast," Young agreed when questioned by the AFRO. "But as far as we can determine, they have no basis in fact.

* * *

"WE HAVE been asked about reports of resentment on the part of some individuals—even fights among certain players—caused by racial friction.

"They simply are not true. Complete harmony exists in the club—as far as colored and white is concerned.

"Any team of athletes will show signs of chafing when it loses two such games as we lost to the (Cleveland) Browns twice (Washington) Redskins. And there always is somebody to pop off about a reason behind it.

"A team like the Colts is naturally vulnerable because we frowned upon by members of his race.

* * *

MR. KOGER, who has two youngsters of his family of five children at home and attending public schools, reports that they and neighborhood children, enjoy the game and are anxious to know more about the heroes who are great sciepists, ministers, statesmen, lawyers and physicians.

The insurance man who has been in the business for 19 years, is prepared to put his new game on the market and has the copyright under the Earl Koger Co.

He and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Koger, are not only hopeful it will sell and be enjoyed as entertainment but also wish it will fulfill the need to "know the history of your race."

Mr. Koger, who possesses a rare sense of humor, says: "There's the moral to the game—don't be an Uncle Tom."

The Koger children are Dorothy, 13, a Pimlico Junior High 9-B pupil; Margaret, 10, a 5th grade pupil at School No.

See KOGER GAME, Page 12

Earl Koger's new card game interests both old, young

Earl Koger, insurance broker, civic worker and known about town as one who exhibits great pride in the heritage and history of his race, became somewhat peeved about a year ago to note that children are not aware of the treasures of their background.

After pondering methods to encourage study of the history of his people, Mr. Koger came up with a card game certain to attract the attention of young and old and arouse great interest to learn more.

Called "Colored Heroes," the game is played with a deck of 47 cards on which life - like portraits of colored heroes are sketched.

Twenty - three heroes are on duplicate cards so that players in the game may match the cards in pairs by drawing from other players hands in rotation.

The "joker" in the deck, the odd card, is Uncle Tom, the fictitious "handkerchief - head man," who is

Mordecai Johnson to leave Howard

WASHINGTON

Official announcement that Howard University trustees are searching for a successor to Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president for the past 32 years, was made this week by the University public relations department.

Dr. Johnson, now in Russia on the first leg of a month-long tour of educational institutions in Europe, asked the trustees last April that he desired to retire at the end of the current college year, June 30, 1960.

However, there had been no official confirmation of this by Dr. Johnson or the trustees until this week.

UNIVERSITY officials said a Special Committee of the board of trustees had been appointed to canvass the field and to recommend a highly qualified person to be Dr. Johnson's successor. Dr. Johnson will end thirty - three years as president of the Hilltop institution come June 30.

He will celebrate his 70th birthday in January. In 1955 when Dr. Johnson reached the mandatory retirement age of 65, the board of trustees reappointed him to a new five year term.

Last April when Dr. Johnson advised the executive committee of the board of trustees of his determination to retire at the end of the present college year, the veteran educator indicated that he felt he could not continue at the strenuous pace necessary for the university post any longer.

He urged the trustee chairman and his associates of the executive committee to take all needed steps to provide for his successor.

THE BOARD chairman, Lorimer D. Milton, president of the Citizens Trust Company, Atlanta, Ga., was named as head of the committee to find a new president.

Doctors 'resurrect' man by massaging heart with water

PHILADELPHIA

Six - foot, two- inch William Flanagan, the partially disabled war veteran who was "resurrected" from the dead was sufficiently recovered Thurzday to talk for the AFRO but his memory is poor.

Physicians at Hahnemann Hospital, where the "medical miracle" was performed, reported Flanagan's condition as good, adding that he is "well on the road to complete recovery."

Flanagan said he could not recall any of the circumstances leading up to near-tragedy, last Saturday, when he was found almost dead on a street in mid-city.

* * *

HE ALSO is vague about where he has resided for the past six months, maintaining that he lived at 121 N. 11th St.

Walter Barkley, operator of the rooming house at the 11th St. address, says Flanagan has not resided there for six months.

Barkley described the "miracle man" as a disabled war veteran who did odd jobs.

Flanagan said he thinks his wife and two children reside somewhere in Philadelphia or Jacksonville, Fla.

His mother is believed to be in Atlanta, Ga., but to date authorities have been unable to locate any member of his family.

Mr. Flanagan, a laborer, was found semi - conscious on the street after having been exposed to 12 hours of cold weather. He was rushed to Hahnemann Hospital.

While an intern was examining him, his heart stopped. The now - standard method of heart massage failed to bring permanent results.
