FIRST RUN FILMS

MEXICAN FILM STAR IN MET'S NEW FILM

Maria Felix, star of "Heroes and Sinners" now playing at the Met Theatre, was born Maria de los Angeles Felix Guerena in Sonora Mexico.

One of twelve children born to an Indian chief, she was married at 14, divorced at 17, and has been remarried three times.

Her career began one day when she was about to step into a taxi. Fernando Palacios, Mexico's most famous producer, tapped her on the shoulder and asked her, if she would like to act in motion pictures.

She subsequently made her debut in "Peson de las Animas," won international recognition some years later for her portrayal in "Enamorado," and has played in hundreds of films since.

Today she is Mexico's most popular, biggest draw star, and has additionally a tremendous personal following throughout the United States.

'THEY CAME TO CORDURA' NOW AT THE ROYAL

One of the year's most important pictures, starring Gary Cooper, Rita Hayworth, Van Heflin and Tab Hunter, "They Came to Cordura" is currently at the Royal.

In CinemaScope and Eastman Color, the new Columbia drama is set in the time before World War I, when a U.S. expeditionary force had swept into Mexico in pursuit of Pancho Villa and his men.

Cooper plays a U.S. Army officer who, because he believes himself a coward, is obsessed with the need to learn what makes a man or woman brave.

He himself had escaped court - martial for cowardice only because his father had been a famous general.

Relieved of his combat command, Cooper in further punishment is given the assignment of selecting, and bringing to the rear base at Cordura, five potential Congressional Medal of Honor winners.

With his five heroes, Cooper must also escort to Cordura the lovely Miss Hayworth, who has been accused of treason. The desperate trek bares the real nature of all seven.

MUSICAL MOMENTS

Berea Temple Youth Choir presents its second concert

By ADAH K. JENKINS

With their motto "Help Youth that are trying to help themselves"— the Youth Choir of Berea Temple Seventh Day Adventist Church, presented their second recital last Saturday evening.

With over 50 voices the choir, which was begun in August of this year, gave a highly creditable performance under the direction of 17 - year - old Kenneth Dean.

The young conductor, who is a music major at City College and a Parkway student, displayed marked ability in marshalling his forces. They were well disciplined, making orderly and planned exits and entrances and gave their young leader rapt attention.

There was also skilled adult participation with Herbert Davis, of the Local Berea Temple Academy faculty and Elder Thompson, the pastor.

Adult members of the Temple also lent support, including the indefatitable and genial Clarence Powell (incidentally grandfather of Kenneth), who did yeoman duty in publicity.

The voices are young and fresh and there were very few deviations from pitch. With continued study the male section, which has a good numerical balance, will improve to tone quality.

Even with less than a year together, the choir responded well in contrasting the loud and soft phrases.

The Youth Choir is planning to do "Messiah" in the spring and already has several engagements planned, including an appearance in Chicago.

The personnel of the choir includes some excellent solo material, three of whom were heard Saturday— Brenda Edwards, Eutopia Hall and Clara Hardy. The audience enjoyed also the dramatic readings by Thelma Hall.

The accompanists for the concert were Sister Marjorie Brown, Alexinia Johnson and Madalin Powell.

A-ROVING: In Bermuda — It seemed amazing to discover a 14 - year - old violin prodigy over 800 miles from her native Connecticut heath concertizing on the jewel - islands of Bermuda!

This astounding young lady, Penny Ambrose, was presented in concert at the Queen Elizabeth Hall of Bermuda High School for Girls, under the auspices of the Bermuda Musical and Dramatic Society.

She performs on a full-sized Amati instrument made by an Italian family famed in the 17th century for its superb string instruments.

Under the tutelage of William Krolk, of the Peabody faculty, she is building a solid foundation for a brilliant career.

Sharing honors with the violinist was Albertine Baumgartner, whose accompaniments displayed a high degree of musicianship.

The minstrel and bard who travelled from castle to Hamlet in medieval Europe is being revived in the 20th century folk singer with his guitar. He is becoming a respected figure in concert halls as well as at more informal gatherings.

During last month, the local scene was visited by the noted Pete Seegar, who was presented in concert at the Maryland Lyceum Auditorium.

The Jewish Community Center sponsored Bill Johnson, one of our own folk singers, in an evening concert at Pimlico Junior High School.

THE ROLE of a folk bard also attracts amateurs as well as professionals. On a recent Sunday, Hank Schwarz of New York and now a science major at the Hopkins University, entertained at the weekly "Open House" at Baltimore Fellowship.

Alternating his accompaniments from guitar to banjo, he encouraged his audience to join in the more familiar labor union and community songs.

As the evening progressed, Miss Ruth Fegley, director of the Fellowship House, joined in with her auto - harp. Mr. Schwarz became interested in folk singing while on a tour of Europe with a group of students.
