Work on fire safeguards progressing in schools

"In accordance with your request, I have reviewed the current corrective situation with regard to fire safeguards in the Baltimore City public schools.

"Presently, all work has been completed in approximately two schools. In many of the remainder, the remaining work is small and will be accomplished very shortly."

Robert G. Dalrich, city building inspection engineer, gave this report to Mayor J. Harold Grady on Wednesday, on the elimination of fire hazards in the city's schools.

Attention was drawn to the city schools early in the year when the building inspection office announced that a survey had shown that a majority of these buildings were without necessary fire safeguards.

Mr. Dietrich's report said further:

"During the course of re-inspections of some of these buildings, it was found in a few instances that fire doors were held in an open position which would destroy their effectiveness, and it, therefore, seems advisable to make an annual inspection of these schools beginning January 1960.

Homes damaged after automobiles collide

A collision involving two women drivers in late model cars at Gwynns Falls Pkwy., and Poplar Grove St. caused damages to two homes last Friday.

At the home of Mrs. Theresa Waters, at 2829 Gwynns Falls Pkwy., a railing and porch column were damaged.

A porch at the home of the Rev. Clarence E. Powell at 2831 was also damaged after one of the cars left the road and struck a tree.

The drivers were identified as Mrs. Rebecca Maxine Sterrett, 47, housewife of 2427 Harlem Ave. and Mrs. LaMoyne Mason Matthews, 28, welfare department worker of 2306 Harlem Ave.

Patrolman Henry Sohl of the Accident Investigation Division charged Mrs. Sterrett with failure to grant the right-of-way.

Both drivers were ordered to appear in Traffic Court on Jan. 4.

Post Office offers gifts

If you are searching for that ideal last-minute Christmas gift, the Baltimore post office has the answer—an attractive gift book containing United States Savings Stamps.

"While everyone looks to us to do his Christmas mailing, few people think of us as suppliers of gifts," Postmaster William F. Lankatis announced today. "Actually we have been in the business for some years, with Savings Stamps and Savings Bonds as an ideal gift.

"The gift books come in two sizes. The $2.50 size contains ten United Savings Stamps; the $5.00 size has 20 Stamps. These are the same Savings Stamps many veterans have been buying all year on their weekly School Stamp Days."

Mt. Winans tavern loses liquor, cash

The theft of $279 in cash and $400 worth of liquor was reported by a Mt. Winans tavern keeper Sunday.

Nathan Blaker, proprietor of "Bertie Brook's Tavern" in the 2400 block Annapolis Ave., told Southwestern District Police the establishment was broken into between 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Entrance to the tavern was gained through a rear cellar door.

The cash and whiskey were removed from inside a wire enclosure.

A 25-year-old suspect in the case was questioned by police and released.

lunch at 11 a.m. and dinner between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Ordinarily, the warden said, Cummings would be permitted to walk around in the section or play dominoes after break fast until about 9:45 a.m. as other prisoners do, but since he has volunteered to cut and style hair, he is busy at work during this recreation period.

CUMMINGS GETS cigarettes, candy, newspapers and magazines by ordering them the day before from the prison commissary. Movies, news, sports, and a variety of programs reach his section from a radio set located on the main hall.

After a busy day at the prison "barber shop," Cummings is returned to his cell and locked in for the night at 6 p.m., officials state.

Although convicted of first degree murder, he receives the same treatment as other prisoners until final decision has been made in the case.

If Cummings gets the extreme penalty, the gas chamber in Maryland, he will be taken to the Penitentiary and placed on death row the day the sentence is handed down.

However, if he is sentenced to life in prison he will go to the Penitentiary section where "lifers" reside and it is likely that his spare time will be spent barbering and styling hair.

CUMMINGS was returned to the city Jail after the Dec. 1 hearing when Judges J. Gilbert Prendergast and John T. Turk of found him guilty of the crime which they termed a "brutal death."

Cummings' wife and four of his five children and his brother were present in Baltimore for the hearing.

Testimony disclosed that Cummings and Mrs. White had been friends over a period of seven years and had taken vacations over the years in Canada, and other states as well as Maryland.

When in Baltimore they visited with her relatives here, it was testified.

"Not parried questions about who paid for it.

MEANWHILE Hulan's attorney and former campaign manager for Jack, flatly denied passing for the job Hulan said he recommended the contractor to Jack and visited the apartment several times to check on the work.

The married Borough President said he would not comment on the matter because it was under investigation.

Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, who is reported by Albany, the Governor's office called for a full report on the matter.

W. A. C. Hughes named by lawyers

In taking office for the 1960 year, Mr. Hughes called upon all members of the association to affiliate themselves with all bar associations in which membership to them is available.

Other officers of the association, which has 50 members are:

Tucker R. Deaver, vice president, James L. Bundy, secretary, and W. Emerson Brown, Jr., treasurer.

he was 15, and in the seventh grade.

A divorced sister, with four children, lives with him, his mother and his 19 year old brother, Donald.

He did not attend church, nor was he an active member of any clubs.

His brother said that until recently, Vernon had few friends.

There, also, are passing requirements for a potential juvenile delinquent.

MRS. ELOISE RICH, mother of the third youth, Ernest, has hopes that her boy's story may be a lesson to others.

"Ernest is a good-natured and smart boy who enjoys dancing and sports, but the boy's father never gave enough of his time.

"Only once can I remember him (the father) taking the boy to a baseball game.

"A boy needs a man."

Ernest, who is the second oldest children, left school last year, when he was 15, and in the ninth grade.

His parents have been separated for 2 years.

He did not belong to any clubs, or the church.

THUS, three boys, plus three broken homes equal a serious crime for which they must serve a total of 60 years behind bars, unless the Board paroles.

What awaits the victim, Ben Krieger? He is an immigrant who has lived two years in this country, a person whom neighbors call a friendly grocer.

Mr. Krieger lost his first wife and only child in a concentration camp, and had to flee from Germany into Russia to escape the terror of Hitler.

He knows what it is to be attacked and beaten. Living in a war camp, he expected such abuse.

But—the robbery attempt was unexpected and he had suffered with a heart ailment and so has his present wife, who helps him run the store.

Says Mr. Krieger: When someone kills because of hate, that's one thing.

"But when someone says give me your money or I'll kill you, that is something different.

* * *

MR. KRIEGER explained that, unless all this country has the best country for all people—you can get a new house or a new car or mostly anything you want, but when people can't do business work for what they want, that is not good.

"Twelve years is what they deserved; it will teach them a lesson.

His wife Nesly nodded her head in agreement and commented:

"The boys will be around us when they get out. They will still be young. Maybe they'll learn that they should never try this again."

SO, WHO knows but three years, four years, and he will spend their next 2336 days behind bars?

The boys—Not completely some of the responsibility rests with the parents.

Patrolman Hudgins, the arresting officer, said:

Sometimes it's the parents. Other times it's bad company.

I have a son who is a first tenant on the Air Force in Oklahoma.

"He's really in service but I wouldn't trade him for all the money in the world. I love him.

AND, PERHAPS Patrolman Hudgins had the correct explanation when he said:

"Massive laws have crept into people because of lessening of respect.

"If people would be honest with themselves and if they would tell the truth, they'd have to admit that they don't give a boy who gets into trouble enough love.

"And, mind you, I'm not nothing to say this is just the lack of love."

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads

By R. DELACY PETERS

We read not so long ago that the armed forces have developed a new tablet form of that old stimulant up to a distance of three miles a person who is walking is a man in normal. And he's the accomplished. Well, it seems that a woman's movements produce more emotions than the high-strung man and that's the need radar.

I don't think that men and time can need radar to pick up such of the fact that these aren't days when you can afford to be underpaid.

I'll agree with you also that there is no point in being "insurance poor." What's the solution? I would think that the solution would be to call me or one of my colleagues at Mutual of Baltimore and have your insurance program tailored to the extent that it fits your needs with emphasis on what is in your pocketbook. We're at 16 W. Fayette St. or 1600 W. North Ave. Phone: MU. 5-0001.
