'Mainspring Of My Happiness'

Mrs. Bragg's death at 95 recalls tribute by husband

By B. M. PHILLIPS

One of the finest tributes paid a wife is that written in Sept. 1937 by Father George Freeman Bragg on the occasion of his 50th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Bragg, the former Nellie Grant Hill, died last Friday at the age of 95.

She was the eldest active communicant of St. James Episcopal Church where Father Bragg was pastor for 49 years until his death in 1940 at the age of 77.

Listen to Father Bragg in his 1937 tribute: "For fifty years... she has been the chief mainspring of my happiness and my ability to minister to the needs of others ... she has been the embodiment of all those rich qualities and virtues which adorn the charcter of the noblest women of the land.

"... A woman, loyal and true, yet no rubber stamp, having an individuality of her own, thoughtful, energetic, sustaining always, and on any occasion the courage of her own conviction ...

* * *

And, he adds: "... What ever success or honors that have come to me during these years, pertain to her equally as well as myself. Yes, I gladly yield her the major palm ...

"... Had she not been the type of woman that she is, it would have been scarcely possible for me to have completed almost 46 years of pastoral labors among you in the city of Baltimore.

"... Many of you would call it a great sacrifice on her part, but she esteemed it a joyful service of her God, and the man she loved ... she knew it had no ambition for wealth, prominence or power, but simply to prove and demonstrate that the group could support and govern themselves ...

The tribute continues:—"... she knew of the countless opportunites presented me for a ministry attended with less personal inconveniences and deprivations which fall most heavily upon the woman of the house.

"Certainly, if she had reasoned with me that I ought, for her benefit, and that of the children, to avail myself of some of the magnificent offers that had come to me, I would have gladly hearkened to her voice.

"But the brave woman I had selected, or that God had sent to be my wife, was willing to aquiesce in what seemed to be the agony of my soul, and, in the hard conditions which it necessarily imposed, with a cheerful heart and the use of every possible economy to stand steadily by my side.

"It was this inexpressible faith and loyalty, on her part, that nerved me and quickened my own faith to accomplish the vision before me, or die in the attempt.

"No one can ... have the least idea of what St. James was when I took charge ... and although many have been helped by me in sundry ways, yet during the long period of 50 years the largest stipend that I received has never exceeded $35 a week.

* * *

Father Bragg's tribute added:—

"And, although it is an unwritten law in the Episcopal Church that neither the minister nor member of his household, should contribute to their own support, as an example to others, such tradition was set aside, and during the entire 50 years, I have been a regular contributor towards my own support.

"Instead of any complaint, my partner, the only one who could have influenced me to make a change so as to ease the many burdens placed upon her, resolutely encouraged me not to give up the ship...

"... I do not believe that you will find in any other calling a more noble, more efficient, capable and self - sacrificing set of women than the wives of clergymen who know by experience, economy to the bone.

"And God does bless them, in giving them a finer, deeper and richer faith, love and patience ...

"... my wife has been the one gracious, dominating power for good in our family life."

Isn't that a fine tribute?

Mrs. Bragg continued her regular church attendance after her husband's death, and was rarely absent from the third row right front seat she occupied.

She outlived her husband by 19 years. Her death on Dec. 4, came a week after she suffered a stroke and lapsed into a coma, and a week after she marked her 95th birthday.

By the way — did you know that Father Bragg was one of the founders of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers? That's right. He edited a church paper, the Ledger which merged with the AFRO-AMERICAN shortly after John H. Murphy Sr. purchased it from the Rev. William Alexander.

If you're old enough, you'll remember the AFRO was at one time called the AFRO-AMERICAN Ledger, and that Mr. Murphy was publisher and Father Bragg was the editorial writer. Remember?

In attendance at the funeral: The Rt. Rev. Noble C. Powell, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland.

The Bragg grandson, Arthur Jr., who won fame as Morgan State College track star, is now a probation officer in Los Angeles.

Grandson Harry Jr., who was here for the funeral, is now a car salesman in New York.

MRS. NELLIE BRAGG
'She esteemed it a joyful service of her God and the man she loved. . .'

Berea Temple sets Christmas programs

The Youth Choir of Berea Temple, Madison Ave. and Robert St., will give a pre-Christmas Recital Sunday, Dec. 20th at 4 p.m., at the temple.

Under the direction of Kenneth Dean the choir will perform seasonable music from Bach's "Magnificant," Haydn's "Creation" Handel's Messiah" and "Twelfth Mass" by Mozart.

Christmas baskets are to be distributed by the Home Missionary Society, of which Mrs. Florence Seaborn is leader.

The concert is sponsored by the Associated Florists Organization of Maryland, Mrs. Myrtle Smith, president.

Donations and clothing for the project may be left at the florist shop, 1544 Pennsylvania Ave.

School 180 Teens attend D.C. rites

Twenty - six Y-Teens from School No. 180 participated in the Y-Teen World Fellowship Cathedral Service recently held at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C.

The service was a beautiful and colorful one. The children saw a well planned, integrated, stimulating religious service which stressed world fellowship through active participation.

Yule program

The Ushers and Young People's Choir of Union Bethel AME Church, Randallstown, will present a special Christmas program on Sunday at 8 p.m.

Dear friends in the brotherhood of God, through the love of Jesus Christ and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit. We ask the aid and cooperation of all mothers in encouraging their children to attend regularly the Sunday school. We believe that the Bible, particular training in the teachings of Christ is an investment that will contribute greatly to the future happiness of both parent and child. It is up to us, the people of God, to begin such a movement NOW. May the inspiration of the Holy Spirit bless the people of all races and go with us, in this, our chosen endeavor.
