'He was known as the... brother of all mankind'

Today marks the beginning of a new image throughout the Nation, January 15, 1970, known as Human Rights Day, dedicated to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

He was known as the Prince of Peace, and brother of all mankind. We should all look back and see what he really stood for by casting aside our ideologies which face the Nation today.

Let us not seek to satisfy our thirst for freedom by drinking from the cup of hate and bitterness. — Martin L. King Jr.

Few people know how humble this giant was. He had inexhaustible faith in people and multitudes felt it with their hearts and minds, and went beyond respect almost to worship, and even fewer know how troubled he was, and even tortured, because he doubted his own capacity.

He drained his closest friends, like A. Philip Randolph for advice, he searched within himself for the answers, he prayed internally for guidance.

Today when millions of his portraits hang on walls in simple homes and in stately halls throughout the world, he did not want to be idolized, he only wanted to live and be heard.

That is why, in the nobility of man he was matchless, that is why though stilled by death, he still lives. Many of us mourned his death throughout the world, but the time has come for all men of human dignity to honor this day, January 15, 1970, the birthday of Dr. Martin L. King Jr., by going to churches, synagogues, cathedrals and praying for a better world to come in this decade with peace on earth, goodwill to men.

The universities and public schools should be closed, events are being held throughout the nation on campuses and colleges, the church bells toll with echoes from the belfry; sounding, the King will never die!—Howard Bennett, National Coordinator, National Citizens Committee For a Dr. Martin Luther King Holiday.

Julian resolution, remarks on Dr. King

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are the remarks and text of the resolution on Dr. Martin Luther King introduced in the City Council Monday evening by Councilman Emerson R. Julian (4th D.), and adopted unanimously by that body.)

"Words are really not adequate for me to describe the high esteem in which I held the late Dr. Martin Luther King.

"Starting with the Montgomery bus boycott, he forged an illustrious career dedicated to bringing dignity and respect to the black American.

"I am proud that in the beginning he worked through an organization known as the Montgomery Improvement Association. My father, the late James S. Julian Sr. founded the original Montgomery Improvement Association many years ago — in 1915.

"Just as Patrick Henry made his famous cry for liberty, Dr. King appealed for the same liberty for his people, and just as Moses sought to lead his people out of the wilderness and into the Promised Land, so did Dr. King.

"His wife was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world — this was a man!

"He was a man; take him for all in all, and I doubt if we shall be privileged in our lifetime to look upon his like again."

Following is the text of Councilman Julian's resolution.

Thursday, Jan. 15, 1970, marks the 41st anniversary of the birth of Dr. Martin Luther King — great American.

Although born a member of a minority group, Dr. King never waivered in his faith in his God and in his country.

He preached the doctrines of non-violence and brotherhood, while working to better the lot of his brothers until the day of his death.

He gave strength, courage, hope, and a new sense of purpose and direction to millions of black Americans.

He stimulated and provided the moral and spiritual conscience of America.

He left to all of us, both black and white, a legacy — his dreams for a better America in a society based on brotherhood, which he so eloquently described on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

It is for us, the living, now to give a full measure of true meaning to those dreams by translating them into reality.

It is altogether fitting and proper therefore that we should endeavor to keep alive and honor his memory and cherish the fervent hope that one day in this nation, we may truly become one nation under God, and justice for all.

Be it therefore resolved by the City Council of Baltimore that the Mayor of Baltimore proclaim Thursday, Jan. 15, 1970, Martin Luther King Day.

THE REMAINS of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. were quietly removed from the South View Cemetery last Tuesday morning and placed in this new grave site at Auburn Avenue near the Ebenezer Baptist Church where he served as pastor. The reinterment was approved by joint action of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Atlanta Board of Aldermen.

THINKING OUT LOUD

How we can best honor Dr. Martin Luther King

When a great man is cut down in the prime of life, it is not unusual that before his broad philosophy is clarified and codified, his followers are apt to substitute one for the real one.

This condition, of course, stems from two weaknesses of the human race. One is colossal ignorance, and the other is mental laziness which prevents them from trying to dissect a man's thinking and figure out what he really stands for and how to interpret it.

It is much easier for people to accept at face value a popular impression held by a majority of people who have made no effort to analyze the character under discussion than his other fellow citizens. This is not a real character study, but a personality cult. All opinions are formed on what men think a man represents not what he actually did represent.

Most of those who lead the chorus for the glorification of an individual really do not know him at all.

This happens most commonly in the field of politics where you find the loudest champions of a candidate as spokesmen who go around interpreting his views on issues, but have never met the candidate personally.

He formed his opinion from what he read, or overheard people say about the candidate substituted his own opinion for the candidate's. Sometimes he gets away with it and no harm is done; only the listener getting a viewpoint that is not only uncondoanded but distorted to boot.

Such a problem arose in a group of evotees of Dr. Martin Luther King JKR., met to plan for the celebration of the King Memorial Day celebration. Of course, celebration is hardly the word for a man whose death has been caused by assassination.

Everything seemed to be going smoothly until the Rev. Douglass Moore rose and up and dramatically tore up the proclamation because white folks had been invited to participate in the festivities.

The Rev. Mr. Moore, born in a Jim crow society, can not disabouse his mind of this fact. It was to rid America of this kind of thinking that Dr. King fought; and any celebration or memorial to his memory that included any vestage of this practice would not be a memorial to him but an abomination.

Dr. King gave his life preaching brotherhood, of Jim crow or exclusion of anybody because of race.

His great triumphs were built on universal participation. He was a man, who, like Jesus when denied by his own Hebrews turned to the Gentiles.

This was his philosophy. He wanted all men to live as brothers. That was the simple message of his life, and anybody who attempts to write anything else into it misses the point-all together and should go back do their homework.

Nobody who sincerely wants to honor Dr. King should not attempt to reduce the world into local ambiguities and hatreds.

We are not trying to memorialize a black man or black people. We are trying to honor a great man who happens to be black. Whites of goodwill can share this occasion without taking anything from us.

Dr. King never fought white people simply because they were white. He fought them for what they did and tried to correct it. That is the only thing worth fighting. Dr. King understood this. We hope his followers can understand the

Memorial roundup

By UNITED PRESS

Thousands of Americans — black and white, big and small — paid tribute Thursday to the memory of assassinated civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

On the 41st anniversary of King's birthday, several states officially observed "Martin Luther King Day," crowds gathered for memorial services, and schools let students loose for a holiday or held special programs.

An overflow crowd of blacks and whites gathered for commemorative services at King's old church, the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Ga., to inaugurate a planned Martin Luther King Memorial Center and dedicate the slain leader's new grave site.

King's widow, Coretta, and their four children were among the persons who heard Atlanta Mayor Sam Massell eulogize the longtime head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) as the "conscience of the nation."

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and New York City Mayor John Lindsay joined more than 500 persons in services at Canaan Baptist Church for Christ and marched with the crowd to Central Park Mall for further ceremonies.

"We are like marchers on a long and unfinished journey," Rockefeller said. "He showed us the way . . . His truth goes marching on."

Washington marked the anniversary with low key ceremonies and activities. The White House said nothing about the day and President Nixon was at Camp David, Md.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who lost two brothers to assassins' bullets, said in a statement the day should be a time to evaluate progress in King's "struggle to end bigotry and violence."

The Georgia House passed a resolution commemorating King's birthday. The nondebatable resolution was introduced by Rep. Ben Blown, who noted that "many people disagreed with his (King's) philosophy but he brought good to humanity and pride and dignity to the area."

Both houses of the Kentucky General Assembly voted to adjourn for the day in honor of King and went on record in favor of a resolution before the U.S. House of Representatives to make Jan. 15 a national holiday.

Tennessee's House of Representatives approved a resolution which would make Jan. 15 of each year a day of special observance of King's birthday. No action was taken on a similar resolution in the state senate.

Schools were closed in dozens of cities across the nation, including ... at major cities as New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Kansas City, Mo.

In New Jersey, classes were dismissed for the day in Newark, Elizabeth, Linden, Plainfield, Rahway, Paterson, Hackensack, Englewood and other communities. In California, public schools closed in Oakland, Berkeley, Sausalito and Emeryville. The San Francisco Board of Education declared a "Human Relations Day."

The West Virginia House of Delegates observed a period of silence. Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley proclaimed a King Memorial Day. U.S. District Court Judge James B. Arsons, a black man, told 50 black community leaders who gathered in Daley's office that King "believed first in peace, second in peaceful expression and third in integration."

Students at Ohio University began constructing a "Resurrection City" shantytown on the campus at Athens, Ohio, to emphasize poverty surrounding American atrocities in Vietnam the school and alleged nam.

Burial was in Carver Memorial Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by Morton and Dyett Funeral Home.

N.C. mayor designates Jan. 15 Dr. King's day

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina's only black mayor, Howard Lee, proclaimed Jan. 15 Martin Luther King Jr. Day in Chapel Hill and called on all citizens to take a few moments during the day to remember the "great contributions which King made to American society."

Lee issued a statement joining groups around the state who planned observance of the civil rights leader's 41st birthday.

The North Carolina Teachers Association declared Jan. 14 "Human Relations Day" and called on Gov. Bob Scott to join in the observance. A spokesman for the governor said however Scott would make no statement.

NCTA Executive Secretary E. B. Palmer urged citizens to take time to go to church or to engage in some special ceremony" to observe the birthday of King.

In Raleigh, black students and others planned an afternoon memorial service on the state Capitol steps, and an evening religious service. The predominantly black Shaw University suspended all classes for Jan. 14 in honor of the leader.

Birthday Tribute

WILKS — A Birthday Tribute to the memory of my dear mother, SAVITIE ONER, who departed this life January 13 ... who departed this life March 2, 1949:

Two dear, bright eyes, a tender smile
A loving heart that knew no guile,
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright,
If sick or suffering one she saw,
Some gentle act of love she'd do;
No thought of self, but of "the other."
I know He said "Well done, dear Mother."
A wonderful mother, woman and wife
One who was better God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million — that mother was you.
Just in your judgement, always right
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends AND all you knew,
Wonderful mother — that, Mother, was you.

Your Devoted Son,
MORRIS PHILLIP GREEN
and FAMILY

WATSON — A Birthday Tribute to the memory of my dear son, PFC. PAUL E. WATSON, on his birthday, January 16th, who passed away May 16, 1968:
Happy Birthday, to you my son
Where I know is resting in peace
In the arms of God.

MOTHER

THOMPSON — A Birthday Tribute to the memory of our dear mother, who passed away January 16, 1967:
After Birthday, January 17, who passed away October 3, 1963:
God made lots of beautiful things;
Sunset and roses, and trees,
Birds, and starlight and loyal friends,
And, after He made all these,
He gave to the earth a gift more rare,
More loving and more true,
Of all God's gifts, the one most rare
A mother as dear as you.
