Five Girls, 'Pearls', Founded Zetas At Howard

1920 ZΦB 1970 50th ANNIVERSARY

"Zeta Peral" is the traditional name given to the distinguished women who are responsible for the founding of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority.

Host of these women are still living and continuing to make contributions to their respective fields of discipline and to the community at large.

SOROR PEARL ANNA NEAL — a retired music teacher who spent 43 years in her profession, first teaching at Americus Junior College, Americus, Ga.; then Mary Allen Junior College, Crockett, Texas and finally in the public schools of Winston-Salem, N.C.

Educated at Lincoln Academy, King's Mountain, N.C. at Howard University, the Juilliard School of Music and the Columbia University. Soror Neal has been active in the YMCA, the Urban League, N.C. Teachers' Association, the NAACP and the National Education Assoc.

SOROR MYRTLE TYLER FATHFUL became a housewife after a short stint at teaching following graduation from Howard University.

She is mother of two daughters, one married and nearing a family and the other following her mother's vacations as a teacher Soror Faithful devotes her time to community action programs and to travel.

SOROR FANNIE PETTIE WATTS — was born in Perry, Georgia, the daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Foster B. Pettie. She received her A.B. in education at Howard University where she became one of the five girls who founded Zeta Phi Beta Sorority in 1920.

Soror Watts is the mother of two children, Dr. Lloyd A. Watts of Brooklyn, N.Y. and the late Algernon C. Watts of Los Angeles, Calif.

Before her retirement in July, 1969, Soror Watts was a teacher at Cyler Jr. High School and at Beach High School in Savannah, Ga., a social worker in New Rochelle, N.Y. and a social investigator in New York.

She is a member of the Nazarene Congregational Church of Brooklyn, N.Y. where she serves as co-director of the Cradle Roll Division.

SOROR ARIZOSA CLEAVER STEMONS — founder-president, Grand Basileus Emeritus was educated in the public schools of Hannibal Mo. and returned there to teach after graduating from Howard University.

In 1928 she married James S. Stemons, author and inventor, and moved to Philadelphia where she worked from 1933 until 1965 as a social worker.

Currently Soror Stemons travels over the United States visiting chapters in answer to their invitations to participate in various programs.

Her home is an archive of gifts and emblems from her Zeta offsprings. She has received the World Emancipation Exposition Award and the Four Chaplain's Legion of Honor Award.

SOROR VIOLA TYLER GOINGS — more to come — received her A.B. degree from Howard in 1920 and immediately began to teach school in the District of Columbia until marriage.

Now the mother of four children, and a well-known speaker on sorority matters, Soror Goings has become an avid community worker and traveler.

in politics (that is, except in the lower level capacities where they have been assigned). They have been told that it is too strenuous for women.

Granted it may be strenuous, but so is the back-breaking job in party headquarters where they are assigned. They have been told that women are too emotional and politics requires cold reasoning; but some of the most lasting social legislation was passed at the initiation and instigation of women.

Women were in the forefront of movements for legislation that resulted in child labor laws. Today, another kind of legislation is needed to give children the educational opportunity they deserve and the nation must provide. What are women really doing to come to grips with the fact that education is today inextricably bound to politics, by the decisions being made regarding financing schools; about salaries for school personnel, about appointment of school officials and boards by partisan party representatives and about legislative action on taxes and other sources of revenue that leave only meagre amounts to support education?

Education and social reforms will cost more in the days to come, and this should not be difficult to understand. EVERYTHING else costs more, too.

Women must use the rights they now possess and they must move far, far away from the position that "what women will say or do really won't matter." Nothing could be farther from the facts. When women make up their minds that things will happen, they do; for they work to make it so.

What is today's woman saying in a concerted voice about the social ills of our society? AND, what is she doing about it? We can no longer tolerate the notion that fun and games are the essence of our existence. These are important ingredients of our lives, but we cannot "fiddle while Rom burns" in our rural and urban areas, while racism exists, while conditions remain as they do in the ghettos. We must become more knowledgeable and more adept at making our influence felt. It begins at birth. NOW is the time.

Soror Koontz, author of the foregoing article, is a native of Salisbury, where she teaches a junior high school special class for the educable mentally retarded.

Having recently completed a successful term of office as President of the Department of Classroom Teachers of the National Education Association, and a year as President-elect, NEA, Soror Koontz received the gavel as NEA president in Dallas, Texas, July 6, 1968.

"Libby's" dedication and contributions to the cause of education are internationally known.

She was the first to serve as a major officer in the NEA Department of Classroom Teachers.

In 1961, she was elected secretary of this department.

Her performance as an officer gained her the respect of the nation in successive years and won her the office of secretary for the second term, vice president in 1963, president-elect in 1964 and ultimately, president in 1965.

As a member and officer, she served on many Commissions and Committees of the NCTA and NEA. She is also the recipient of an almost endless list of honors and rewards.

The demand for "Libby's" time is still great! However, she served as consultant for the Undergraduate Workshop and Zeta Youth groups at the 48th Anniversary Boule in Chicago.

After serving as a delegate to the World Conference of the Teaching Profession in Seoul, Korea, July-August, 1966, Mrs. Koontz traveled around the world.

appeal for fair play, in telegrams, letters to congressman and senators, and public protest meetings and through membership in the American Council on Human Rights.

Zeta has been outstanding in carring its share of community relief work in participation in voluntary services, in contributing to organized charity, as well as in granting scholarships and fellowships to deserving women students.

The sorority sponsors a national juvenile delinquency project which functions throughout the United States. Different aspects have been highlighted through special projects such as Foster Home Care, Youth Conferences, Vocational Guidance Clinics, Tinker Shops, and the development of youth groups. There is a six-point African project jointly sponsored by the chapters in America and Africa. In such a way, better understanding has been developed between the two continents.

As a non-profit corporation incorporated in Washington, D.C. and also in the state of Illinois, the sorority is supported only by annual dues paid by its members for operating expenses. Scholarships are donated annually from a special fund contributed by chapter members.

Soror Cleaver won many honors

SOROR RUTH MYRTLE CLEAVER was born in Charles County, Md., the daughter of the late Maggie White, a gifted designer although she had no formal training in this field, and the late George White, a country school teacher.

She was one of eight children, five of whom became teachers.

Educated in the public schools of Baltimore, she was graduated from Douglass High, Coppin State Teachers College, Morgan State College and New York University.

She did further graduate work at the University of Maryland and religious education at Hood College and taught in the Baltimore public schools until she retired in July 1969.

She is the wife of the Rev. Walter C. Cleaver, who is pastor of St. Paul Christian Community Church, Washington, D.C. and national president of the National Association Council of Christian Community Churches of America and Elsewhere, Inc.

Soror Cleaver is a member of her husband's church where she is superintendent of the Sunday School, director of the Adult Dramatic Club, director of the Volunteer Chorus, president of the Women's Christian Service Council, founder of the Rho Mu Chi Christian Fraternity, (for young boys and men of the Sunday School and church), and organizer of 'The Cleaverettes,' a Sunday School choir.

Soror Cleaver is national treasurer of the Women's Division of the National Association Council of Christian Community Churches and chairman of the Publicity Committee.

She is editor of the official organ, "The Voice" and advisor-general of the National Christian Community Ministers' Wives, a member of the B and P Women's Club, Trinity Chapter, Order of Eastern Star and the Chi Delta Nu Social Club.

She is recipient of the "Bronze Woman's Award" presented by the Bronze Men's League in recognition for excellence in editing the Bronze Woman's Magazine. In 1963 she received the Zeta Key and Certificate and was named the Zeta of the Year.

In 1968 the Rho Mu Chi presented a plaque for the founding and continued Christian guidance of this fraternity.

In 1969, the Men's Chorus of St. Paul Christian Community Church of Washington, D.C., made Soror Cleaver the honoree on their anniversary and presented her a beautiful plaque for Christian Service, thus adding her name to a list of twelve others who have received this honor.

Initiated into Gamma Chapter in 1924 Soror Cleaver held many offices. As basileus of the chapter she produced the first local handbook listing the names, addresses and telephone numbers of local Zetas and Phi Beta Sigmas.

She organized the well known Zeta Choir which sang at Howard University and Morgan College and many local churches and for all Zeta affairs under the direction of Soror Adah Killion Jenkins.

She was promoted to regional director and became an active member of the committee which met in Chicago to set up the Zeta Five-Year-Program.

She has held many offices in the graduate chapter, Alpha Zeta.

SOROR Thelma C. Ashe — French teacher at Douglass High School, was educated at Howard University. A Past Basileus of Alpha Zeta Chapter, Soror Ashe is also a member of the Board of Administration of the Madison Avenue YWCA, of the Business and Professional Women's Club, and is chairman of the World Fellowship Committee.

Alpha Zeta chapter was founded at Morgan

By MARYE WILSON LAWS

It was in the early 1920's that Alpha Zeta Chapter of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority had its beginnings.

Significantly, charter members included a group of sorors, who, as determined Morgan College coeds of like mind, convinced the revered President John O. Spencer that they would be able to contribute more meaningfully to Morgan's expansion program if they could function as an organization.

This first effort had culminated in the setting up of Gamma Chapter which has the distinction of being the first chartered Greek letter sorority on Morgan's campus.

Numbered among these planners were Iradelle Bond Williams, Nellie Buchanan and Mary Laws.

After graduation from Morgan, this same intrepid group, motivated by the same compelling considerations they held as undergraduates, decided on another banding together.

The planning and execution of this second venture took place in 1923 in the home of Iradelle Bond Williams whose dynamic and dedicated leadership gave it impetus and direction.

Membership grew with the addition of graduating sorors and of new members who shared belief in the concerns of the chapter.

These included Iradelle Bond Williams, Nellie Buchanan, Mary Laws, Alice Taylor, Bernice Naylor;

Also Ethel Cummings, Hodges, Ethel Taylor Payne, Mae Williams Fortune, Florence Purviance, Marian Webb, O'Goldia Smith, Alice Wilson, Alma Kelly, Jeanette Johnson and others. Soror Jeanette Johnson Moore became its first president.

In 1924 Soror Nellie Buchanan of this chapter served as National President.

Then, as now, the organization regarded itself as an instrument for promoting growth and development of the individual, not only in sound scholarship, but also in the fundamental humanistic values.

From the welter of problems facing today's society comes the cry for recognition of the truism that bettering human relations is basic to desirable understanding.

This conviction was inherent in the credo of the founders of Alpha Zeta Chapter.

It is simply and succinctly expressed in a publication of the Mental Hygiene Society of Delaware two decades ago improved human relations will "not (be) based on how a person looks, where he lives, what kind of clothes he wears, or how much money he has to spend, but on the kind of person he really is."

"Meeting this requirement, Alpha Zeta sorors added, "and is capable of becoming."

Gamma, first chapter in Baltimore

On November 2, 1921 a charter for Gamma Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority was issued. The following persons were authorized to establish this chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority at Morgan College, Baltimore, Maryland: Josephine H. Brown, Marion E. Johnson, Junia M. Smith, Manilla D. Crews, Francis L. Banks, Faith R. Ililes, Sadie M. Moore, Inez A. Kelly, Mary E. Wilson, Vinetta T. Haywood, Lela M. McIntrye, Goldia L. Smith.

This group of young ladies was subject to the laws and regulations of the General Sorority.

Soror Arizona Cleaver, the National President at that time, presided over the meeting of the formation of Gamma Chapter.

Authorized members of the General Board of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority from Washington, D.C. who affixed their signatures to the charter are Arizona Cleaver, National President and Myrtle Tyler, National Secretary.

Through the years, since the inception of Gamma Chapter, many fine young ladies have become Zeta Sorors on Morgan's Campus and upon graduation have made worthwhile contributions to society in fields of Science, Teaching, Social Service, Business, Religious Education, Art, Education, etc.

Soror Mary Carter Smith, lady of many talents

SOROR MARY CARTER SMITH — a teacher-librarian in the public schools of Baltimore, was born in Birmingham, Ala. She received her early education in the public schools of Alabama, Ohio, West Virginia, and Baltimore.

Soror Frazier an outstanding Zeta

SOROR MARY CLAYTON FRAZIER is an honor graduate of Frederick Douglass High School. She has served as Secretary of her Alma Mater and of Paul Lawrence Dunbar High School.

While still employed as a school secretary, she commuted an aggregate distance of over one hundred miles each day to complete four years of undergraduate work at Howard University in Washington.

She was an honor graduate at the end of four years study and earned an A.B. degree.

She took the qualifying examination for a position in the Baltimore school system — ranked first — and was appointed to teach at her Alma Mater — Douglass High.

She returned to Howard University during the first two years of teaching — still commuting — and earned the M.A. degree.

She decided to study further at Loyola College, where she earned the distinction of being the first to earn a higher degree from that institution.

She received the Master of Education degree in 1952.

She has also taken courses at Johns Hopkins University and New York University.

Soror Frazier has participated actively in community activities. She has taken youth groups on tours through the Maryland Penitentiary where they could see first-hand the results of failing to live up to the standards of a good life. (Prevention and control of juvenile delinquency is one of the great concerns upon which Zeta is continuously working)

She has taken large groups to bring cheer to the older citizens of Baltimore City Hospitals; the Homes for the Aged in the city and penal institutions for youth of the city.

She is president of a group that recently distributed contributions to the Anna Mae Hunter Home for the Blind, the Building Fund of Provident Hospital, scholarship aid for needy students; to the sick and widows who were in need of assistance.

When she was president of the Baltimore Chapter of Howard University Alumni Association, she was instrumental in having that group as the first Chapter of Howard University in any state to become a life member of the NAACP.

She has served as a member of the Board of Management of the YWCA, corresponding secretary of the General Alumni Association of Howard University and clerk of Shiloh Baptist Church since 1959.

Soror Frazier is a member of the Maryland State Teachers Association, National Education Association, Public School Teachers Association, Department of Education Employees Association, Public Personnel Association, Classified Municipal Employees Association, Public School Administrators and Supervisors Association of Baltimore City, Order of Eastern Star and three national groups in connection with the Masonic auxiliary.

She has also received citations from the Baltimore AFRO, the General Alumni Association of Howard University and Zeta Phi Beta Sorority. She has served efficiently as Epistoleus, Antropkritis, chairman of the Auditing Committee and co-chairman of the Finer Womenhood Week Activities.

Alpha Zeta Chapter selected her as their first member to become Woman of the Year.

Her progressive steps have been: From school secretary to teacher to head of the Business Education Department of Frederick Douglass High School to her present position — specialist in personnel at the Department of Education where she works primarily with the secretarial staff in all of the public schools of Baltimore City and in the Central Offices.

33 years a member

SOROR KATHERINE O. JOHNSON — retired elementary school teacher is the product of Baltimore's public elementary schools, Douglass High School Teachers' Training School, now known as Coppin State College.

She received her B.S. from Morgan State College and her M.A. from New York University. She has done further graduate study at N.Y.U.

During her teaching career she was demonstration teacher, practice teacher and summer school principal.

Since joining Gamma Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. at Morgan State College she has continued an active, unbroken membership for 33 years.

In Gamma Chapter she held the offices of Anti-Basileus and Basileus. In Alpha Zeta, graduate chapter, she held the offices of First Anti-Basileus and Third Anti-Basileus.

She is amember of the senior choir of Grace United Presbyterian Church of which organization she has been recording secretary and is presently the Vice President.

Soror Johnson is the widow of Dr. Carson C. Johnson, Sr., physicisn and surgeon and past president of the Baltimoe chapter of the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity; and the mother of Dr. Carson C. Joanson, Jr. a consultant research psychologist and professor of experimental psychology at Emanuel (Wnannie), Northeastern and Boston Universities. Dr. Johnson, Jr is also a signa.
