Officials Explain Efforts To Get Men Out Of Jail

The Effect
By AL RUTLEDGE

"Baltimore City Jail is one of the most prejudiced departments in the city government", an unidentified jail guard told the AFRO, "and if the AFRO really wants to do anything it had better check out the conditions for black employees and inmates alike."

The guard declared, "Nobody over there will tell you anything if you mention names because we fear what will hapoen to our jobs."

But he assured this reporter, "with about 80 per cent of the guards being black there's not a single black captain and not much chance of there being one for a long time."

When asked what not having back captains meant he said, "the real power is white, the warden, the assistant warden and six captains.

"Its a tight knit clique and all the really important decisions are made among this group."

• • •

The officer pointed out that "the conditions for the prisoners aren't as bad as some would have you believe.

"The warden tries to see to it that men get the benefit of every penny which is allocated for their comforts."

He went on to say that the structure of the security force favors the whites.

"There are about eight black sergeants and out of 15 lieutenants we have six blacks. Among the file guards, most of whom are on probation. You have a fast turnover.

"When a man is on probation," he explained, "he can be cut loose anytime without reason."

• • •

In defense of the jail's overcrowded condition and the large number of men awaiting trial the officer said

"The jail administration is not responsible for these men being there. Our job is to keep them until the courts settle the cases.

"We try to make sure that it is kept as clean as possible and the food is not garbage.

"It is cooked in the best manner we can provide. People complain about food in the army but everybody knows that the service is the best they can do."

Also coming to the defense of the City Jail was Richard O. Motsay, director of the Pre-trial Release

STUDENT ADVIE—High school leaders met Tuesday at Northwestern High School with School Board members to give their wives views on what can be done to cut down on violence in public schools. Left panel, Michael Lee, City College, president fo citywide student government group. Miss Linda Johnson, Carver and Board Member Samuel T. Daniels. Second panel, Board Member Larry Gibson, who conducted the dialogue and John Harmon, City College teacher. Third panel, Eastern High's Miss Joan Millon, Mrs. Thelma Mayers and Miss Regina Freeman and Board Member Elizabeth Murphy Moss. Fourth panel, Assistant Superintendent Dr. Wilmer V. Bell and Northwetern student leader, John Mayden. (AFRO Staff Photos by I. Henry Phillips).

SUBJECT: VIOLENCE IN SCHOOLS

Students let their hair down, tell School Board like it is

Although they had no firm answers as to what to do about the problem of violence in public schools, leaders from the city's 14 high schools are in agreement that arming security guards will not help the situation.

This was the consensus reached on Thursday when student government presidents and school editors met at Northwestern High School.

In addition to student leaders, School Board members equally concerned about the violence problem, and student advisors, were in attendance.

Dr. Wilmer V Bell, assistant superintendent of secondary schools, presided at the luncheon session.

• • •

School Commissioner Larry S. Gibson, chairman of the Board committee to study violence and security officers, presided at the discussion period.

Superintendent Thomas D. Sheldon, Board Chairman Francis D. Murnaghan Jr., and School Commissioners James Griffin, Samuel T. Daniels and Elizabeth Murphy Moss were also present.

Who causes fights in schools? Who are the persons who create disorder outside?

Who are the people who bring knives and guns to school?

What can be done about the problem?

Should security officers be armed? What about gas or mace for officers instead of guns?

Not a single student leader would assert arming officers was the solution.

In fact, they suggested such officers may be useful when there are particular problems, particularly in junior high schools, but not

PARKS, ADAMS

New club to challenge Welcome

Long smoldering dissension among the Democratic leadership in the 4th District has boiled over and split former allies into distinct, separate camps.

The division came with the recent pulling-out of the veteran the District Democratic Organization of a band of such political leaders as Henry G. Parks Jr., former City Councilman, who a few weeks ago resigned his seat because of pressing business interests.

Mr. Parks was chairman of the board of the 4th District club, headed by Sen. Verda F. Welcome. The group deserting the Welcome club, with Mr. Parks, are forming a new political organization currently called the Metro Democratic Club, Inc.

All former officials of the Welcome club....they include: Mrs. Victorine Q. Adams, city councilwoman; Lloyal Randolph, veteran political leader and chief clerk of the Supervisors of Elections;

William Adams, businessman; Abner Lee, former president of the 4th District club, and Mrs. Ethel P. Rich, former secretary of the organization and a City Council clerk.

• • •

They are joined in the new Metro Club by Sen. Clarence M. Mitchell III, some time ago bolted the Welcome organization and formed his own group.

It has been no secret that dissension has long been brewing among the leadership in the 4th District Club.

Chief disagreement has been between the dissident group and Sen. Welcome over political tactics.

This came to a head when Mr. Parks resigned his Council seat and named Robert C. Marshall, head of the Northwestern Investigation Bureau, to succeed him.

• • •

Senator Welcome charged that Mr. Marshall had ties to political leader Jack Pollack and that Mr. Adams and Mr. Parks were filling posts and making appointments without the approval of the Fourth District organization to which they belonged. The Marshall selection was a case in point.

In a show of force at the last organization election, Senator Welcome and her forces pushed though a slate of officers loyal to the

700 Cheer 'Freedom' Speakers At Housing Exploitation Rally

"The Edmondson Village Community Association welcomes you to our citywide meeeting dealing with EXPLORLATION when buying and renting houses, clothing and food."

Approximately 700 persons were drawn to a rally at St. Bernadine's Catholic Church by this announcement.

The meeeting of "black freedom fighters, was held Monday night and characterized by fiery speeches made by several community leaders.

Chief among them were Horace Davis, chairman of the Edmondson Village Community Association; Fred Punch, director of Local 1199E of the Hospital and Nursing Home Employees Union; Parren Mitchell, co-director of the Urban Studies Institute of Morgan State College and Sampson Green, of Activists, Inc.

The Edmondson Village Community Association, which has a membership of close to 500 homeowners, was formed to stop realtors exploitation of the black community in housing.

In a fighting statement by the group, they declared, "we know that our destiny lies in our being able to eliminate this problem. It is essential that all black brothers and sisters make a constructive effort to unite and fight to end the problem of exploitation, simply because it robs our community of millions of dollars each year."

• • •

Mincing no words, they further stated, "We and we alone must carry the fight to our oppressor in such force that he will know that we, the black people of America, will no longer accept anything less than complete freedom ..... henceforth, and forever more.

Butch's son goes home from hospital

Melvin Stanford, 22, son of the slain Boss of the Bottom William AIVR "Butch" Stanford, went home from the hospital on Wednesday morning.

Young Stanford was gunned down about 4 a.m. on Jan. 12 in a second floor apartment in the 2400 block Winchester St.

Police have a warrant out for Charlie Boy Ringo who reports show they are associating with the incident.

Young Stanford, who says he was a cook at Brooks Restaurant, 1054 Pennsylvania Ave., was confined to Maximal Care at Lutheran for 10 days before he was returned to his home in the 2500 block Hollins St. to recover.

He sustained a shot in the left chest just below the heart.

Egypt's accused slayer out on $25,000 bail

Mack Douglass Thomas, 32, 900 block Newington Ave., was released Monday on $25,000 bail by Judge Harry A. Cole.

Thomas is accused of the Sept. 5, 1969 murder of Clarence "Egypt" Jones inside a carryout shop in the 1000 block Pennsylvania Ave. owned by William Alvin "Butch" Stanford.

"Butch" himself was murdered in November, 1969 during an argument over the 50-cent entrance fee at a S. Wheeler St. tavern. The accused slayer was freed on self defense without a trial.

Thomas gave himself up to Homicide officers on Jan. 6. However, it is not known if he confessed to the slaying of "Egypt" who Narcotics authorities, both state and Federal, say was engaged in extensive dope traffic.

In a statement of facts filed along with his request for freedom while awaiting Criminal Court trial, Thomas said he has gainful employment waitinf for him.

He also stated through his attorney, Gerlad Kroop, that he will be residing at home with his mother until the murder trial.

Thomas also told Judge Cole that he was born July 30, 1938 in Halifax, Va. but has resided in Baltimore since 1940.

He stated that he served in the Army from 1958 to 1960 and attained the rank of P-3.
