Male bias charged to Judge Carswell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee seem to agree that the panel will approve the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell, but only after a complete hearing.

The committee called both supporters and critics of the federal judge to testify Thursday, in an effort to speech the hearing.

But it appeared the proceedings could still be stretched out if those who want time to study Carswell's federal bench record insist on more delays.

The committee completed Wednesday, at least for the present, its direct interrogation of Carswell, 50, Tallahassee, Fla.

Former Florida Gov. Leroy Collins, in whose law office Carswell once served, gave the judge high marks for ability and integrity.

Collins also said Carswell was no racist, as some critics contend in citing a 22-year-old political speech in which the nominee championed white supremacy.

* * *

Standing by to testify in favor of the nomination when Collins finished were Mark Hulsey Jr., president of the Florida Bar Association, and Prof. James W. Moore of the Yale Law School.

Rep. Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, charged Carswell not only believed in white supremacy but "male supremacy" as well. In her testimony, she said his nomination was "an affront" to the women of America.

Mrs. Mink gave a lengthy review of a case in which Carswell joined in denying an appeal to a woman suing under the civil rights laws after being denied employment because she had small children.

Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., requested permission to testify against Carswell, and committee aides said they were uncertain when he would be called.

* * *

In announcing he will be joined by eight other colored congressmen in his appearance, Conyers said "there are 320,250 attorneys in the United States and 43 federal judges. Why can't (President) Nixon find someone to appoint to the Supreme Court who does not have a racist background?"

Carswell was nominated for the vacancy created when Abe Fortas resigned. U.S. Circuit Court Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. was rejected by the Senate in October, 1969. He has rejected notions of racial superiority despite his policies at speeches.

Carswell also denies there was any racial motivation in his contributing $100 to a group organized to take over a segregated municipally-owned country club when it was threatened by integration.

We Moms Club held their first '70 meeting recently, and happily pessed over to Dr. Lillie Jackson a check membership dues in NAACP.

The session was in the home of the newly-elected president, Mrs. Marguerite Wilkins, where a novel "pot luck" supper, with members bringing their favorite dishes, was served.

New officers, other than Mrs. Wilkins are:

Mesdames Jeanette Smith, vice president; Bernice Turners, secretary; Leanna Ferrell, business manager; Isolene Crowner, reporter.

Members also include Mesdames Margaret Lassiter, Marion Ampney, Minerva Williams, Jeanette Smith, Neonita Corbin and Katherine Newsome.
