AURTHUR ASHE AND CONG. CHARLES C. DIGGS

Ashe says U.S. shouldn't hit back at S. Africans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tennis star Arthur Ashe, denied entry to play in South Africa, said Wednesday he thinks it would be wrong for the United States to bar South African athletes from America in retaliation.

"My gut reaction, being a black American, is that we should keep all of them out," he told a Congressional Subcommittee.

But upon reflection, Ashe said, he had concluded that to do so would be to "stoop as low" as South Africa had when it recently refused him a visa so he could play in South African Open in March.

* * *

"My social conscience, brought up the way I was, wouldn't allow it," he said.

Ashe also commented: "A couple of their players are friends of mine. I wouldn't want them to suffer the indignities at the hands of my government that I suffered at the hands of theirs."

However, Ashe said he felt the U.S. State Department should exert all the pressure it can to bring about a change in policy by the white supremacist government in South Africa.

* * *

Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Africa, had said previously the United States should answer Ashe's exclusion by "excluding South African athletes such as (golf professional) Gary Player from entering the United States."

The congressman took issue earlier with Oliver S. Crosby, the State Department's director for South Africa, who had taken a position similar to that of Ashe.

Diggs warned there could be demonstrations in this country against South African athletes because of the Ashe incident. Crosby said that while the United States would not retaliate in kind, if the entry of a South African athlete would result in a threat to public safety, then a visa might conceivably be denied.

Diggs said that various sources informed him that demonstrations and protests might take place, and added this would not be surprising in view of the recent protest against South African athletes in other parts of the world.

"These problems appear to be escalating, and other countries are developing a concern and nervousness over this matter," Diggs said.

Camp Mohawk's reunion Sunday

Campers and former campers of the YMCA's Camp Mohawk will hold a reunion on Sunday at 3 p.m. at Lemmel Junior High School.

Members of the Mohawk Mothers Club Inc., of which Mrs. Mamie Jones is president, are sponsoring the reunion.

The show will feature campers and former campers in dance numbers and songs.

The program is free and open to the public.

Camp Mohawk, the YMCA's resident camp, is located in Huntingtown, Md.

Its name, this season, has Landing. It will serve all YMCA campers in the Baltimore metropolitan area. There are periods for both boys and girls.

During the reunion program, youngsters will be crowned 'Miss Mohawk,' and 'Chief Mohawk.'

A. P. Moss, YMCA associate general secretary in charge of camping, will present the winners.

Hulmes second to quit Colts

The Baltimore Colts announced Thursday that Harry Hulmes is leaving the club's front office to become assistant general manager and director of public relations for the New Orleans Saints.

Hulmes had served for about two years as general manager of the Colts, but was replaced by Don Klosterman from the Houston Oilers in January. Hulmes then became assistant general manager.

Hulmes had been with the Colts for almost their entire time in the NFL. He was previously the team's public relations director and business manager.

Hulmes is the second Colt official to resign this week. Earlier defensive line coach Bill Arnsparger resigned because of other

Seattle settlement?

SEATTLE — The final chapter of the "Perils of the Pilots" must be completed by today (Friday) and only money — at least $2 million more — can write a happy ending for Seattle baseball fans.

Hotel executive Ed Carlson, heading the campaign to keep the American League club in Seattle, is counting on leaders of the city's business community to write the script.

All that's needed is enough signatures on financial documents. The league has set a $9 million price for the franchise with today as the deadline on the purchase.

What Carlson needs to hear from fellow business leaders and financiers is that they will put another $750,000 into limited partnerships and $1.3 million more into underwriting a nonprofit corporation which would become the Pilots' ultimate owner.

Falling that, the club was expected to go to either Dallas-Fort Worth or Milwaukee.

NBA in Portland?

PORTLAND, Ore. — Portland may yet become a member of the National Basketball Association next year.

Promoter Harry Glickman has been invited to attend an NBA meeting in Los Angeles tonight (Friday) at which a final decision is scheduled on the league's organization for the 1970-71 season.

Portland earlier rejected a possible NBA bid because the league revised its franchise terms and backers said they were too tough to accept.

Glickman says he had been assured by Baltimore's Abe Pollin, chairman of the NBA franchise committee, that there would be changes in expansion ground rules.

Suncoast Patriots?

TAMPA, Fla. — The Florida Suncoast Pro Football Committee has proposed to Boston Patriots owner Billy Sullivan that the football team be sold to Tampa interests or at least play a portion of the 1970 schedule here.

Committee executive secretary Bill Marcum outlined three possibilities in a telegram to Sullivan.

"We would ask that you consider each of the three following possibilities," Marcum said. "Play part of the 1970 home schedule at Fenway Park and part at Tampa Stadium ... transfer the franchise to Tampa and play all seven regular season games at Tampa Stadium ... allow the outright purchase of the Patriots by Tampa interests."

No 11th for N.D.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Notre Dame will not expand its present 10 game football schedule at this time, athletic director Edward W. Krause said Wednesday.

Krause said that the faculty board in control of athletics voted against adding an 11th game at its regular winter meeting.

Razorback switch

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Arkansas broke a couple of traditions Wednesday and announced a home-and-home football series with Southern Cal.

The teams will play in Little Rock in 1972 and in Los Angeles in 1973. It will be the 11th game of the season for both clubs.

The landing of USC as an addition to its schedule was a boon to Arkansas which has been criticized for playing weak teams outside its own Southwest Conference.

Addendum

MONTREAL — Don Drysdale, who pitched 14 years with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, will join the Montreal Expos as a minor league coach, television broadcaster and public relations representative, effective immediately, the Expos announced Wednesday night.

PITTSBURGH — Pitcher Bo Belinsky, 33, was traded Wednesday from the Pittsburgh Pirates' International Association farm club in Columbus, Ohio, to Indianapolis of the Pacific Coast League in exchange for Dennis Ribant.

Groups combine to support Afro-American History week

Local civic and civil rights groups are combining forces to present a preview of the 70's in a special Afro-American History Week program Wednesday, Feb. 11, at Heritage United Church of Christ, 3106 Liberty Heights Ave.

A number of prominent civil rights and political leaders are included on a program headed by the Rev. Channing Phillips, Chairman of the Washington, D.C. National Democratic Committee.

The Rev. Phillips, the first black man ever to be nominated to the office of president of the United States at a major party convention, will speak on the political climate facing the black revolution during the coming decade.

The program comes in the midst of a week declared Afro-American History Week by the Black United Front. Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro presented a proclamation to representatives of the William L. Moore Foundation and the Center for Afro-American Studies at City Hall Monday.

Other speakers include Parren Mitchell, Assistant Director, Urban Affairs Institute, Morgan State College, and a 7th District Congressional candidate last year; John Clark, former minister for the Baltimore Black Panthers; and Bill Lunsford, Chairman of the New Democratic Coalition.

Music and dramatic interludes will be provided by the Arena Players, the Messengers, and the Baltimore Fellowship Choir.

Dr. Delores L. Hunt, a prominent Baltimore educator and a spokesman for one of the sponsoring groups, called the program one of the "most significant events of the year." She noted that it had broad community support.

Co-sponsoring the affair in conjunction with the William L. Moore Foundation and the Center for Afro American Studies are:

Mother of infant killed in crash is critical at Lutheran Hospital

Three survivors of the two-car accident that claimed the life of 10-month-old John Galbreath Jan. 24 are still hospitalized.

Edison Johnson, 10, is in good condition at Sinai Hospital. Stitches have been removed from his head.

Vernon Johnson, 8, and Mrs. Eloise Galbreath, driver of the car, are not as lucky as Edison. Vernon is unable to talk; his condition is critical at Lutheran.

Mrs Galbreath suffers from severe brain damage, and is in critical condition in the intensive care unit, also at Lutheran.

The accident occurred at Ocala and Towanda Aves. when the car driven by Mrs. Galbreath struck a car stopped in a traffic Ocala.

The other five people, all children, suffered minor injuries and were released shortly after being treated.

Charges against Mrs. Galbreath will be made contingent on her release from the hospital.

Cutting off rights no cure for criminality — Russell

George L. Russell Jr., Baltimore's Solicitor General, told a meeting of the Criminal Justice Commission last week that the hot issue of increased criminality does not justify a relaxation or abandonment of civil liberties and rights.

Nor does it warrant such extreme measures as Atty. General John Mitchell's proposed "preventive detention" bill.

The answer to the problem is to speed up the trial process, and in addition, to stop confusing the rights of the accused with the rights of the criminal, Judge Russell said.

Making the remarks under the topic "Criminal Justice Today, Are The Scales Balanced?", Judge Russell said the intense concern over criminal activity and enforcement of criminal law has been brought on by "the revolution in criminal law made by the Supreme Court."

"It's time to sweep away the myths and fallacies underlying a lot of the criticism of the courts.

"We have to reaffirm our respect not only for the rights but the dignity of the individual even the unsavory, hostile, repulsive individual who has no respect for himself.

"We have to decide if an occasional failure to punish a guilty person is worse than abandoning the right of due process of law.

"We have to stop confusing the rights of the accused with the rights of the criminal.

"It is wrong to equate the two. It is contrary to our legal system, as well as reason and logic.

"It is invalid to place the rights of society and the rights of the accused in mutually exclusive categories. There can be no clash at all if our fundamental institutions protect the rights of the individual.

"Society must do justice to the accused in order to secure justice for society itself. The rights of society are diminished by the deprivations of the rights of any individual.

"We must remember that crime is not a problem of race. The black community is the victim of crime. Eighty-four per cent of assault victims, and 70 per cent of murder victims in Washington, are black.

"Urban slum dwellers consider crime one of their most serious problems. It is in the inner city that there are truly "unsafe streets." I don't deny that there is hostility toward the police in ghetto areas, for historic and sociological reasons beyond police control.

"But most acts of hostility by blacks are directed at other colored people not at strangers, but at those with whom they eat, drink, and live. It must be remembered that, despite the high crime rate in the ghettos, over 85 per cent of the residents have never committed an offense and have no arrest record.

"The law-abiding black citizen's desire is more strongly than any others that the police do their job. They don't want less police protection, but more. They don't want fewer policemen in their neighborhoods, but more. They know better than any people in America that, without policemen, they would be living in an absolute jungle."

At the annual meeting of the Criminal Justice Commission, Philip Isaac Sachs, a practicing attorney and a director of the Commission since 1955, was elected president of the Commission for a two year term.

The Criminal Justice Commission, affiliated with 26 community organizations and is funded by the United Fund, seeks to promote and secure an intelligent and efficent administration of criminal justice through constructive and helpful cooperation with all officers, departments and tribunals charged with the administration of justice.

In accepting the office of the president, Mr. Sachs stated that during his Criminal Justice Commission membership of 15 years he had observed at close hand the Commission's constructive assistance to the administration of criminal justice, and he pledged that the Commission would continue its operations with renewed vigor and enthusiasm by becoming involved in specific projects to combat crime and intensifying its program of education and crime prevention.

Richard G. Sullivan, managing director and a former FBI agent, reviewed past and present Commission activities and called for implementation of the Criminal Justice Commission recomendations for improvement of the Baltimore City State's Attorney's Office, and for an expert survey of the Baltimore City Traffic Court by the American Bar Association's Traffic Court Division.

The difference between Black and White is Green.
When you get right down to it, money is the great equalizer. And what makes the difference in earning power is education. At R. J. Reynolds, we see education as one of the solutions to the problems of Black Americans. Trouble is, most Black families can't afford to send their children to college. And we look on that as a waste of this country's most valuable resource.
That's why we made a grant of $390,000 to Winston-Salem State University. The R. J. Reynolds grant provides scholarships for Black students each year. It also supplies funds to attract highly qualified faculty members to Winston-Salem State University and broaden the school's curriculum.
During the past decade, R. J. Reynolds has also supported The United Negro College Fund with grants of more than one quarter of a million dollars.
These educational grants are just an example of what the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company is doing to aid in the struggle for equal opportunities for all Americans. But we think it's an especially important one. Because the next generation of Black people, armed with a college education, will have the "green power" that only education can give.
People have helped R. J. Reynolds by buying My-T-Fine Desserts, Chun King Oriental Foods, Vermont Maid Syrups, College Inn Chicken and Tomato Products, Davis Baking Powder, Winston, Salem, Camel and Doral cigarettes and our many other fine products. We're just returning the favor.
