The PIP's, a newly organized social group, entertained husbands following their regular club meeting last Saturday night.

The meeting was held in the Forest Park home of Helen Whittaker.

The Valentine theme was the exciting decor for the beautifully arranged tables that glowed in the warmth of flames from the ultra-modern fireplace in the Whittakers' family room. In the background was a breath-taking view of the forest through the spacious glass wall doors leading to the patio and pool area.

The men drew partial song-titled slips which they matched with odes of the ladies who was then assigned to serve him during the evening. This delightful idea created the ice-breaking procedure and mood of fun was set for the entire evening.

The husbands were thrilled with the menu of a variety of soul food, cold duck, home made desserts personally served them by the glamorously-attired PIP's. Each table was colorfully decored with red and white table cloths, bright red heart designs, and center-pieces.

The three hostesses were the pace-setters for fashion flare Jean Davis was ultra chic in a soft peach knit pants set with the torso-length jacket, caressed with circular designs of brown and white, inserted to the soft flow of the bell bottom pants; Minnie Smoot sparkled in autumn-red bell bottoms which were smartly topped with a black knit pull-over top, and worn with long gold jewelry; Helen Whittaker was smart in heart-beat red casual knit accentuated at the neck with a black and white silk scarf drapped to the side and jewel pinned.

Mrs. Whittaker directed the group in an original game created by her called PIP and based on the concept of pokeno which included names of all members and their husbands instead of numbers. Prizes were awarded by the hostesses for the vertically matching of six members and mates names. The time for leaving was uniquely established by passing around a toy bomb and the person holding it graciously said good night. This continued until all guests had departed still laughing and on high note of gaiety, it all ended on a bombing note.

A special table was set for the birthday PIP's and their husbands. The honorees included Vera Carrington who was absent because of illness so a special phone call was made by the group to wish her a happy birthday. Ada Woodland, whose husband was ill, and Pat Seldon, who was on call at the White House where she is employed as an executive secretary.

Other absent members included Joan Phillips and her husband who were bathing in the sun of Jamaica, and Eleanor Sheldon, entertaining house guests from California.

PIP members and their husbands present were;

Dr. and Mrs. Tom Jones, Dr. and Mrs. Lionel Des-Bordes, Mr. and Mrs. Clift Gaddis, Mrs. Frankie Henderson and Jacque Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blount, Dr. and Mrs. William Birt, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Davis; Dr. and Mrs. Roland Smoot, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Woolridge, Mrs. Ada Woodland and Mr. and Mrs. Yancy Whittaker.

The Faculty Wives Club of Morgan State College will present "A Then and Now Happening" on Friday, Feb. 20, at 8 p.m., in Murphy Auditorium. "We intend to compare and contrast four areas, then and now," said Mrs. Melville Pugh, club president. "We hope to do it humorously."

The program is being presented to benefit the Faculty Wives Club Scholarship Fund. Each year the club awards a scholarship to a deserving student.

Preparation for the presentation began more than a month ago. Credit for the original idea goes to Mrs. Leo Hill, although the entire club is working on the program.

Participation in "Then and Now" is not limited to members of the club. The club president stated, "We are interested in having students as participants in our programs instead of as an audience."

"Several students and some student organizations themselves to this program have already committed program," Mrs. Pugh noted.

Publicity for the program is being handled by Mrs. Ruth Butcher, who has made posters, and given advertisements to the local paper.

Other activities planned by the group include a program in which the club members and interested students may engage in a meaningful dialogue, and a speaking engagement with Mrs. Martin Jenkins.

"In the past," said Mrs. Pugh, "our presence has not really been felt on campus. "What we are striving for is to have our presence felt and recognized."

The club sees student participation in the planned extravaganza as an indication of future interaction between the student body and the club.

Other officers of the Faculty Wives Club are Mrs. Marvin Farbstein, who is vice-president; Mrs. Earl Banks, recording secretary; and Mrs. Roger Williams, corresponding secretary.

New waste plan will give Cherry Hill a play center

Earlier this week Mrs. Sarah Bundy, chairman of the Cherry Hill Coordinating Council, and other council members had a "fruitful" meeting with members of the Recreation and Park board.

At issue was the removal of the incinerator in Cherry Hill and the building of a recreation center in its place.

"They didn't know anything about the proposal sent to the Metropolitan Baltimore Solid Waste Committee by William Aloe, president of Aloe Coal Co." said Mrs. Bundy "but we got their approval of the plan which will begin this fall."

The proposal was sent in December.

The eliminating of the incinerator would create disposal facilities for the metropolitan area of Baltimore within a period of six to nine months after letting of a contract.

Such disposal units would construct a transfer station at Port Covington which would be architecturally in step with the character of the area and yet functional and sanitary.

It also would be capable of handling up to 1,500 tons of waste daily during an eight hour shift and would be equipped with scales, unloading and like facilities to assure minimum unloading time for collections.

In addition, the disposal system would provide the necessary rail transportation, acquire adequate packer trailers for hauling wastes delivered to the transfer station by a piggy-back rail service to a landfill site, and acquire a landfill site at Mt. Savage in western Maryland covered by State permit, an area adequate to dispose of unlimited quantities of waste daily.

Mrs. Bundy stated that "Charles Benson, head of the Finances for Baltimore, approved the plan" and that the proposal will be sent to the Baltimore City Council next week for approval.
