Panthers plan drug flow halt

NEW YORK — The death of a 15-year-old student has prompted the Black Panther Party in the Corona-East Elmhurst area of Queens to launch a drive against narcotics pushers in the community.

Steve Wilson, the victim, lived around the corner from the Panthers headquarters. He died from an overdose of heroin.

Announcing the drive, the Panthers noted how police aid and abet the circulation of drugs. Several known pushers were also listed and many of those listed were said to be federal narcotics agents.

Agnew to address Center science fair

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has ben invited to address the International Science Fair, scehduled 5 May 10-15 at the Baltimore Civic Center.

Mr. Agnew, chairman of science programs for President Richard M. Nixon, has been asked to speak to the Science Fair's opending banquet, scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 12, at the Civic Center.

• • •

The 21st annual International Science Fair will be the second held in Baltimore and is expected to attract 150,00 visitors to see 450 exhibits by outstanding high school science students from across the nation and overseas.

Sponsors of the 1970 International Science Fair are the North Baltimore Kiwanis Club, Baltimore City, the State of Maryland, Maryland Industries, and the Johns Hopkins University.

• • •

Vice President Agnew, a former Governor of Maryland and former County Executive of Baltimore County, was a member of the Loch Raven Kiwanis Club, a unit of the same Kiwanis division that the North Baltimore Kiwanis club is part of.

The science fair in May "will be the biggest in the history of the International Science Fairs," according to Paul R. Arnold, general chairman of the event. The Baltimore exposition will involve an estimated 1,200 persons, including student exhibitors, teachers and counselors from high schools and representatives of numerous professional associations, educational institutions, industries and government agencies from the U.S. and abroad.

Thousands of dollars worth of prizes will be awarded in nine scientific categories to student exhibitors, all of whom will be winners of 225 regional Science Fairs—including a Baltimore Science Fair, scheduled April 2, 3 and 4 at Johns Hopkins University.

Arrangements for the International Science Fair are being managed by International Science Fair—Baltimore, Inc., a civic organization incorporated for the purpose. Mr. Arnold, a special assistant to the Baltimore City Auditor and a member of the North Baltimore Kiwanis Club, is president of International Science Fair—Baltimore, Inc.

Great masters featured in CBB symphony concert

By DR. SIDNEY KOBRE
News Bureau
Community College of Baltimore

Music of the great masters will be featured in a free concert to be given by the Community Symphony Orchestra, Sunday, Feb. 15, at the Community College of Baltimore.

The concert will be performed in the Campus Theatre, beginning at 3 p.m.

"Also featured will be flute and trumpet soloists who have had, or are beginning distinguished careers in Baltimore music life," said Jaap Van Opstal, director of the 50-piece symphony orchestra. Mr. Benjamin Durant, head of the music department of the Harlem Elementary School, is assistant director of the orchestra.

"We welcome all residents of the city who would like to enjoy a musical Sunday afternoon and hear a variety of great compositions and top soloists," said Mr. Durant and Van Opstal in a joint statement for the AFRO. "You can't spend your leisure-time in a more constructive way. Music is uplifting, and the music we play can be understood and thoroughly enjoyed by all persons."

The Community Symphony will play Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," which always has had a strong appeal to audiences. Equally popular is Handel's "Water Music," which has given many audiences great pleasure since it was first composed and performed many years ago.

Philip Pfeiffer, a member of the CCB faculty and director of the Community Brass Ensemble, will be featured in Torelli's "Trumpet Concerto." Sharette Kern, a flute virtuoso who has studied at the Peabody Conservatory of Music, will play Kennan's "Night Soliloquy!" an appealing mood composition.

• • •

"This is the fourth year for the Community Symphony Orchestra, which is made up of matured persons: professional musicians, music teachers, public school teachers, doctors, dentists, accountants and businessmen.

"These residents are given the opportunity to fulfill their music interests and get the experience of playing with others in a music group," said Dean Andrew M. Bohle, director of the CCB Community Services Division which sponsors the orchestra and concert.

"At the same time, we believe these musicians provide musical enjoyment and pleasure for others in the community. This is carrying out the true function of the Community College in an urban setting. This is the first concert of the orchestra this season. The orchestra will play at school, at old age homes and other places in town later in the spring."

Is mini-skirt girl insecure extrovert?

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI) — A Rutgers University sociologist who has correlated the handwriting of 400 women with the length of the skirts they wear says the miniskirt girl is extroverted and possibly insecure as well.

Sociologist John A. Becker announced his results after a survey conducted by his nightschool students at the college of South Jersey.

The students collected handwriting samples and noted the skirt lengths of their sociological subjects, then turned the raw data over to Becker, who was assisted by a handwriting analyst and a psychologist.

Anything shorter than an inch above the knee was considered mini.

The sum total of all this legwork was expressed as follows:

"Extroverted females are more likely to sport a mini than their less out-going sisters."

But he said they may have a "negative self-image" and thus want to express their womanhood more dramatically through a dramatic form of dress.

However, Becker had little patience for the woman who wears culottes.

He termed her an "imposter" and said, "Women who have adopted this fashion want people to think they are confident, enticing and aggressive."

Bond firm gets FBI clearance

WASHINGTON — Frontiers Unlimited, an Atlanta consulting agency, owned partly by Rep. Julian Bond, has been cleared to carry out its contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The clearance follows a three-month investigation by the FBI to determine whether two members of the firm were in conflict-of-interest situations because of their governmental connections.

Frontiers Unlimited was awarded a $158,000 contract last July to provide technical assistance to OEO-funded programs but funds were cut off pending the proble.

Hampstead schedules special guidance activity

During the past week and in the next few weeks special events in the guidance field have been scheduled at Hampstead Hill Junior High.

Tuesday evening, Feb. 17, at 7:30 p.m., there is scheduled a Parent-Counselor Conference Night when the seventh grade counselors, Mrs. Elizabeth Green, Miss Jennie Palces and Miss Minerva Messenger, Department Head, will be on hand to meet with parents of 7th Grade pupils.

The program will begin in the auditorium at 7:30 p.m. with introductory remarks by Dr. Warren P. Crothertson, principal.

Later the meeting will break up into sectional meetings in separate rooms where the seventh grade counselors will present to the parents of their own counselees the following topics:

1. How junior and senior high school curricula are related;
2. The role of the counselor (counseling services available);
3. The testing program and its significance in discovering a child's aptitude.

This will be followed by a question and answer period.

• • •

The following week, on Tuesday, Feb. 24, a similar parent-counselor conference will be available for parents of eighth and ninth grade pupils regarding "Planning Ahead for High School."

During the past two weeks ninth grade counselors have been taking groups of students to visit some of the senior high schools, especially those at a distance from East Baltimore: Edmondson, Western, Polytechnic, Northwestern, Northern and Mergenthaler High Schools.

On Thursday, Feb. 12, forty-five eighth graders were taken by bus to visit the Woodrow Wilson General Vocational School No. 294 at Hollins and Monroe Sts.
