Mrs. Clara C. Walker dies after brief illness

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara C. Walker of 1113 Winchester St. were held May 11 at the Joseph E. Russ Funeral Home.

Mrs. Walker, 57, died May 6, at Johns Hopkins Hospital after a short illness.

A native of Baltimore, she was a graduate of the Douglass High School and a member of St. Alphonso Catholic Church.

For many years she was employed at the Kimo Laundry.

She was married to Howard Walker, who survives her.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Joan Brown and Mrs. Diane Walker; and two sons, Charles and Robert; five grandchildren, Maurice, Johnson and William and Larry Walker; and one great- grandson Maurice Johnson Jr.

Burial was held in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Paul Watson, 47, dies suddenly

Funeral services for Paul Watson of 911 N. Stricker St. will be held Monday, May 18, at Morton and Dyett Funeral Home.

Mr. Watson, 47, died suddenly May 13 at his home.

Born in Baltimore, he attended the Carver Vocational High School. He was a disabled Veteran of World War II and had been employed at the Bethlehem Shipyard.

He was married to the former Miss Olive Newman, who survives him.

Other survivors are his three sons, Stanley, Edward and Robert Watson and three daughters, and three daughters the Misses Maxine, Phyllis and Ernestine Watson, and eight grandchildren.

Burial will be in Baltimore National Cemetery.

Community College Gives High School, College Students Opportunity To Get Credits, Improve Background This Summer

120 Courses Meet All Education Needs

CCB Has Credit and Informal Courses

The two summer sessions at CCB will offer 120 courses which appeal to every interest and educational need.

You name it—CCB has it!

You may study in the credit courses, but you may enroll also in the informal, non-credit courses.

CCB summer students study in every department you can think of. Some are interested in business, so they enroll in the accounting, business administration, data processing. Or they sign up for the economics, psychology, public speaking, business law, advertising and other courses of value to them.

Interested in engineering? Then enter the construction, electronics, drafting or surveying courses—and benefit them.

For those concerned with the physical and biological sciences, CCB offers some top instructors in these subjects. Mathematics, fundamental to most studies, is also offered. Do you like to paint, to draw? Then art at CCB will increase your skills and develop your appreciation this summer. Proving very popular are the courses in music appreciation and in current trends in music.

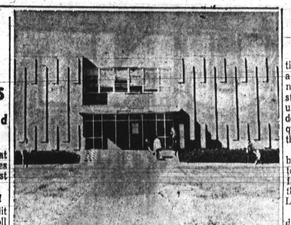
An honors course program for present juniors in high schools which has been developed is described in adjoining columns.

Many summer students want to learn about the social world around them—and so they study geography, history, psychology, human relations or the population crisis. Others are attracted to the courses in juvenile delinquency, law-enforcement, while many others prefer marriage and the family. The study of American Indian culture is something new and will have a strong enrollment, officials predict.

Other students wish to improve their English or take advance courses in writing or literature. Still others desire to study television and film production or still photography.

The excitement of learning a foreign language is experienced by summer students, while others want to explore the courses in food administration and hotel management.

Informal programs in speed reading, contemporary theatre and theatre workshop attract a number of students. Send the brochure for complete listing of summer courses. Mail the coupon in adjoining columns today.



Community College of Baltimore has a complex of beautiful new buildings at 2901 Liberty Heights Avenue, with which high schoolers should become acquainted. The buildings include a large classroom-administration building, art and music wing, business and allied health wing, library and a Field House, or gym, athletic field, plus tennis courts and a tree-shaded campus for pleasant summer studying.

Enjoy A Variety Of Summer Fun Activities At CCB

Students who enroll in the 1970 summer sessions at CCB will be able to enjoy an expanded program of extra curricular activities. Students will learn, but they will have some fun too.

Why waste your summer looking for things to do? Beat your brain out trying to find something of interest to occupy your time? CCB's summer school is planning a number of enjoyable programs, with plenty of activity for you.

Responsible for this publication, Mr. S. Joseph Salvaggio, director of student activities, and his assistant, Mr. John A. Faulkner, are working hard to provide relaxation for you!

"We will have coffee-houses with plenty of good food and entertainment," they said. "Folk music by top performers and a jazz combo will supply the entertainment. An exciting play will be produced, 'Blues for Mr. Charles' is the first, with others later in the session."

The directors told also about the bus trips to places little explored in Baltimore and the surrounding area. A co-ed college picnic will be held and later a swim party in a local pool is being arranged.

Tennis courts and the gym and other athletic facilities are available for tennis, badminton, softball, basketball and for general physical fitness.

REGISTRATION TIMES

Honors Program Valuable For High Schoolers

The Senior High Honors Project, sponsored by the Community College of Baltimore this summer, gives selected students the unusual opportunity to take college-level courses for full credit.

This project introduces the academically able student to the stimulating challenge of a college community. In addition to the regular classroom work, the student will have the benefit of student-teacher conferences and competent counseling services. He will use the CCB library for individual research. The high school students will enjoy a wide-range of college campus activities.

It is further hoped that such experience will encourage such students to pursue higher education after graduation from high school. High school principals are invited to recommend those students who will complete the 11th grade in June 1970 and have demonstrated aptitude and achievement.

Students who are interested in the honors program at CCB should contact their high school counselors immediately for further information.
